

Allott's Judicial and Legal Systems in Africa

Second Edition

1970. Edited by A. N. Allott, M.A., Ph.D., Professor of African Law, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London.

Since 1962 when the first edition of this book was published, there have been rapid and far-reaching changes in the laws of common-law Africa, and the courts have undergone the most profound transformation. As with the first edition, the book concentrates mainly on the courts, but more space is now given to the sources and characteristics of the main branches of the law in each country. Each chapter deals with one country and is arranged in a standard pattern which makes the book largely self-indexing.

This book is No. 4 in Butterworths African Law Series.

Allott's New Essays in African Law

1970. By the above author.

This book provides the only up-to-date general introduction to the legal systems of English-speaking common-law Africa. The decade which has passed since the author's Essays in African Law (1960) was published has seen numerous changes in African legal systems. Case law, new legislation, and scholarly writing on African legal topics have all appeared in profusion. This material is systematised and developed in New Essays. A number of Appendices reprint verbatim the most important legislative provisions.

This book is No. 13 in Butterworths African Law Series.
