

People in Political Science

Activities

Beverly C. Grier, assistant professor, department of government, Clark University, has been named a Bunting Fellow at the Mary Ingraham Bunting Institute of Radcliffe College. Grier will use her fellowship to study child labor and the law in Ghana and Zimbabwe during the colonial era.

Douglas A. Hibbs, Jr. of the Trade Union Institute of Economic Research, Stockholm, has been granted an additional 2.2 million Swedish crowns by a consortium of Swedish foundations in support of his research program on the fiscal system, wage formation, and income distribution in industrial societies.

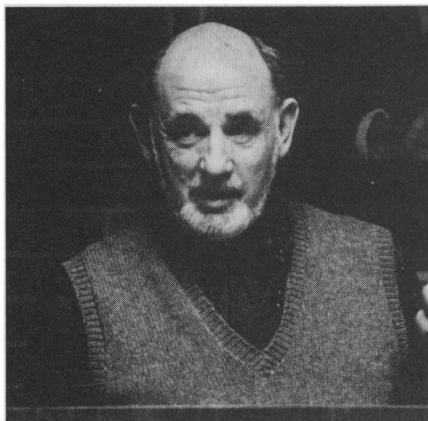

Matthew Holden, Jr., department of government and foreign affairs, University of Virginia, is the new editor of National Journal of Political Science.

Michael A. Jogerst, assistant professor of political science, University of Iowa, has been awarded a Quebec Faculty Enrichment Grant for Summer 1990 by the Quebec National Government. The award will support research in Quebec City to conduct interviews with Quebec national legislators.

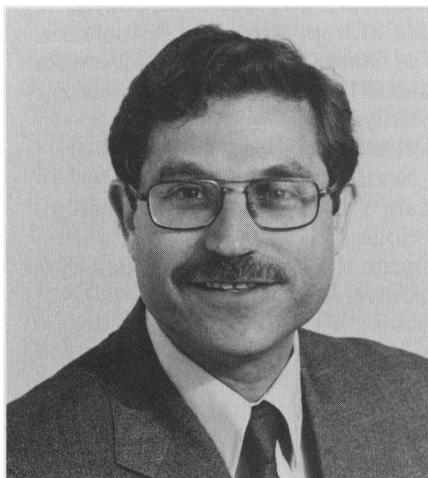

Lynda Lee Kaid, professor of communication, University of Oklahoma, has received a grant of $186,784 from the U.S. Department of Education to complete cataloging of the Political Commercial Archive, part of the university's Political Communication Center, which Kaid founded in 1984. A computerized database will be compiled, and a printed catalog will be available in 1991-92.

Michael S. Lewis-Beck, University of Iowa, has been appointed as editor, American Journal of Political Science.

Arthur H. Miller and William M. Reisinger, department of political science, University of Iowa, have received an NSF grant to direct the first broad public opinion poll in the

Aaron Wildavsky

Michael Baer

Marguerite Ross Barnett

Soviet Union in May and June 1990. The opinion poll will address what Soviets think of economic reform, a multi-party system, ethnic conflicts, and their perceptions of internal and external threats. Other faculty involved in the project are Joel D. Barkan, James M. Lindsay, Lois W. Sayrs, and Vicki Templin.

Zoltan Tarr, Rutgers University, during his recent Fulbright Fellowship (fall-winter 1989) in Budapest, presented papers on Weber, Lukacs, Perestroika and Glasnost in Zagreb/Yugoslavia, Milan, Pavia, Bergamo (Italy), and Upsala, Gothenburg (Sweden).

Aaron Wildavsky, professor, department of political science and graduate school of public policy, University of California, Berkeley, has been distinguished scholar-in-residence at the school of public affairs, The American University, for the academic year, 1989-90.

Wildavsky taught a seminar for Ph.D. students entitled "Political Culture and Public Administration" and, in the spring, presented a series of lectures open to the public on the topic, "The Rise of Egalitarianism and the Decline of American Exceptionalism."

Administrative Appointments

Michael A. Baer, provost and senior vice president for academic affairs, Northeastern University, effective August 1, 1990; formerly dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, University of Kentucky.

Marguerite Ross Barnett, president, University of Houston; formerly chancellor, University of Missouri.

Karen Beckwith, chair, department of political science, effective August 1990, and associate professor with tenure, The College of Wooster.

Ronald F. Brecke, chair, department of political science, Park College.

Rev. Colin Campbell, S.J., director, public policy program, Georgetown University.

Constance E. Cook, assistant to the president, University of Michigan; formerly Fund for the Improvement of PostSecondary Education (FIPSE).

Philip B. Coulter, dean, College of Liberal Arts, and professor of political science, University of New Orleans; formerly University of Alabama.

Robert Delorme, chair, department of political science, California State University, Long Beach.

Helen M. Ingram, director, Udall Center for Studies in Public Policy, University of Arizona. Ingram is professor in the departments of political science and public administration and the university and book review editor of APSR.

Felice Levine, executive director, American Sociological Association, effective September 1991; currently law and social sciences program, National Science Foundation.

Robert Lieber, chair, department of government, Georgetown University, for the term 1990-93.

Sarah Liebschutz, chair, department of political science, State University of New York, Brockport.

Michael Malbin, director of Center for Legislative Centers and professor, department of political science, SUNY-Albany; formerly Office of the Secretary, Department of Defense.

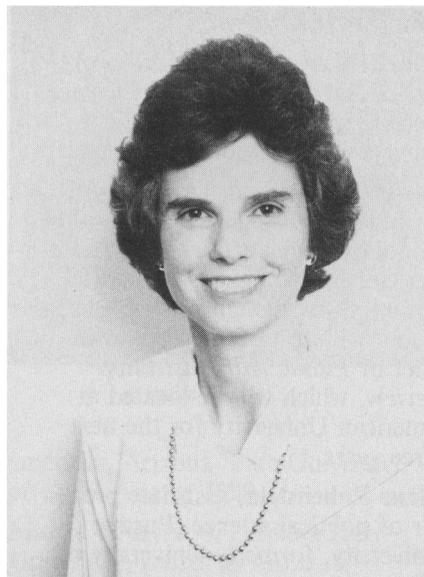

Arthur H. Miller, professor of political science, has been re-appointed as director of the Iowa Social Science Institute, University of Iowa.

Gregory A. Raymond, chair, department of political science, Boise State University.

Karl-Heinz Roder, director, Institute of Law, Akademie der Wissenschaften der DDR.

Robert Swansbrough, assistant dean, college of arts and sciences, University of Tennessee at Chattanooga. He is also chair, department of political science, and a former APSA Congressional Fellow.

M. Elliot Vittes, chair, department of political science, University of Central Florida.

Constance E. Cook

New Appointments

Mohammed Ayoob, associate professor of international relations, James Madison College, Michigan State University; formerly SSRC-McArthur Foundation Fellow at Princeton University.

Lucius Barker, professor of political science, Stanford University; formerly Washington University.

David Bartlett, assistant professor, Vanderbilt University; formerly of University of California, San Diego.

Andrew Bennett, assistant professor of government, Georgetown University; formerly of Harvard and USC.

Robert A. Bertsch, professor, public administration, Troy State University European Program, 1990-91; formerly Troy State, Pacific.

Helen Ingram

Yitzhak Brudny, lecturer, department of political science, Yale University.

Beverly S. Bunch, School of Public Affairs, American University; formerly Maxwell School at Syracuse University.

Berenice Carroll, professor of political science and director of women's studies, Purdue University; formerly University of Illinois at Champaign.

Anthony Celso, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Central Florida.

Cindy M. Christian, assistant professor, department of political science, Texas Tech University; formerly State University of New York-Binghamton.

Elizabeth H. Dalton, assistant professor, department of political science, Western Michigan University.

Shrikant Dash, assistant professor, Vanderbilt University; formerly University of Rochester.

Robert J. Dilger, associate professor of political science and director, Institute for Public Affairs, West Virginia University; formerly of the University of Redlands, California.

Manochehr Dorraj, assistant professor, Texas Christian University; formerly Texas A & M University.

Roxanne Doty, assistant professor of political science, Arizona State University, formerly of the University of Minnesota.

George C. Edwards III, Distinguished Professor of Political Science, department of political science, Texas A&M University.

Ali Farazmand, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Mississippi; formerly University of Pittsburgh, Bradford.

Glenn W. Fisher, professor, public administration, Troy State University European Program, 1990-91; formerly Wichita State University.

Siegrun F. Fox, assistant professor, department of political science, Texas Tech University; formerly of Angelo State University.

John D. Hane, associate professor, public administration, Troy State University European Program, 1990-91; formerly Central Missouri State University.

People in Political Science

John Haskell, assistant professor, department of political science, Drake University.

Micheline Ishay, assistant professor, department of political science, Hobart & William Smith Colleges; formerly Rutgers University.

Roger Kangas, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Mississippi.

Lyn Kathlene, assistant professor of political science, Purdue University.

Dwight C. Kiel, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Central Florida.

John C. Kilwein, assistant professor of political science, West Virginia University; formerly of Ohio State University.

Silvo Lenart, assistant professor of political science, Purdue University.

Joseph Leppgold, assistant professor of government, Georgetown University; formerly of Lawrence University.

Kevin M. Leyden, assistant professor of political science, West Virginia University; formerly of the University of Iowa.

Peter McDonough, professor of political science, Arizona State University, formerly Vanderbilt University.

Mark C. Miller, assistant professor, department of government, Clark University.

Michael Mitchell, associate professor of political science, Arizona State University; formerly State University of New York at Albany.

Christopher Mooney, assistant professor of political science, West Virginia University; formerly University of Wisconsin.

Patricia Morris, assistant professor of political science, Purdue University.

David L. Nixon, assistant professor, department of political science, Oklahoma State University; formerly Ohio University.

William Odom, adjunct professor, department of political science, Yale University.

Kenneth A. Oye, associate professor of political science, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; formerly Swarthmore College.

Evan J. Ringquist, assistant professor, department of political science, Texas Tech University; formerly University of Wisconsin-Madison.

David Rosenbloom, Distinguished Professor of Public Administration, school of public affairs, The American University; formerly Maxwell School, Syracuse University. Rosenbloom will also become editor-in-chief of Public Administration Review, which will be located at American University for the next three years.

Diane Rubenstein, associate professor of political science, Purdue University, formerly University of Wisconsin.

Arthur B. Sanders, assistant professor, department of political science, Drake University.

Jean Schroedel, assistant professor of political science, Yale University.

Keith Shimko, assistant professor of political science, Purdue University.

Stephen J. Silvia, assistant professor, School of International Service, American University; formerly Tufts University.

David Steiner, assistant professor, Vanderbilt University; formerly Tulane University.

Tomislav Sunic, assistant professor of political science, Juniata College; formerly California State University at Fullerton.

Mark Tilton, assistant professor of political science, Purdue University.

Jonathan Tompkins, associate professor, public administration, Troy State University European Program, 1990–91; formerly University of Montana.

Archie J. Twitchell, associate professor, public administration, Troy State University European Program, 1990–91.

Theodore Vestal, associate professor, department of political science, Oklahoma State University; formerly Oklahoma State University.

Stephen W. Van Evera, assistant professor of political science, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; formerly adjunct fellow, Center for Science and International Affairs, Harvard University.

Gregory Von Lehmen, assistant professor, public administration, Troy State University European Program, 1990–91; formerly Georgia Southwestern College.

Shaoguang Wang, assistant professor of political science, Yale University.

Cynthia Weber, assistant professor of political science, Purdue University.

Alexander Wendt, assistant professor of political science, Yale University.

Dwayne Woods, assistant professor of political science, Purdue University; formerly Texas Christian University.

Promotions

L. Jerold Adams, professor, Central Missouri State University.

Diane D. Blair, professor, department of political science, University of Arkansas.

Ralph G. Carter, associate professor with tenure, Texas Christian University.

David S. Castle, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Lamar University.

Joshua Cohen, professor of philosophy and political science, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Brian J. Cook, associate professor with tenure, department of government, Clark University.

Arnold P. Fleischmann, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of Georgia.

Charles J. Fox, associate professor, department of political science, Texas Tech University.

Dennis J. Goldford, associate professor with tenure, Drake University.

Charles D. Hadley, research professor, department of political science, University of New Orleans.

Loch K. Johnson, Regents Professor, department of political science, University of Georgia.

Terry L. Karl, tenured associate professor of political science, Stanford University.

Charles Lockhart, professor, Texas Christian University.

Paula D. McClain, professor, School of Public Affairs, Arizona State University.

Terry M. Moe, professor of political science, Stanford University.

Alexander J. Motyl, associate professor, department of political science, Columbia University.

Benjamin N. Muego, professor of political science, department of natural & social sciences, Firelands College. Muego will be a resident fellow in international relations, East-West Center, Honolulu, Hawaii, 1990-91.

Stephen P. Mumme, professor, department of political science, Colorado State University.

Michael J. Mumper, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Ohio University.

Augustus Richard Norton, professor of political science, department of social sciences, U.S. Military Academy, West Point; also named as senior research fellow, International Peace Academy, for 1990-91.

Hal G. Rainey, professor of political science, University of Georgia, has been granted tenure.

William M. Reisinger, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of Iowa.

Patricia B. Richard, professor, department of political science, Ohio University.

Craig Rimmerman, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Hobart & William Smith Colleges.

Richard J. Samuels, professor of political science, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Rogers Smith, professor of political science, Yale University.

Steven B. Smith, professor of political science, Yale University.

Mark L. Weinberg, professor, department of political science, Ohio University.

Retirements

Marvin Alisky, professor of Latin American and comparative politics

Paula D. McClain

emeritus, Arizona State University, effective August 1990.

Martin T. Kyre, Jr., Texas Tech University, retires as associate professor.

Ross Rice, professor of American politics, emeritus, Arizona State University.

Francis M. Wilhoit, Thomas Sheehan Professor of Political Science, Drake University, as of May 1990.

Donald J. Wolf, associate professor of political theory, emeritus, Arizona State University.

Visiting and Temporary Appointments

Hannes Adomeit, visiting associate professor of politics, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

G. Pope Atkins, professor of political science, U.S. Naval Academy, is Distinguished Visiting Tom Slick Professor of World Peace at the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, The University of Texas at Austin, for the 1990-91 academic year.

Joel D. Barkan, professor of political science, University of Iowa, was a visiting scholar, Center for International Studies at Cornell University during spring semester 1990.

Evelina Dagnino, visiting associate professor of political science, Yale University, 1990-91.

William Gormley, professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, will be senior visiting professor of public policy at Georgetown University during 1990-91.

Sally J. Kenney, assistant professor of political science and the women's studies program, University of Iowa, will be a visiting professor at the University of Nijmegen in The Netherlands, September-December, 1990.

Ted Jelen, professor of political science, Illinois Benedictine College, will be visiting professor of government at Georgetown University during 1990-91.

Richard A. Melanson, professor and director of international studies, Kenyon College, is acting director of the international relations program at Brown University for 1990-91.

Shaul Mishal, visiting professor of political science, Yale University, fall 1990.

Stanley Rothman, visiting professor of political science, Yale University, spring 1991.

Risto Sankiaho, professor of political science at the University of Tampere, Finland, will be visiting research professor in the political science department, Oklahoma State University, summer 1990.

Stuart Schram, visiting professor of political science, Yale University, fall 1990.

John Schwarzmantel, Leeds University, is a visiting professor of political science at Vanderbilt University for the 1990-91 academic year.

Ehud Sprinzak, senior lecturer, Hebrew University of Jerusalem, will be visiting Israeli professor at Georgetown University for 1990-91.

Peverill Squire, associate professor of political science, University of Iowa, will be a visiting professor in the school of political science and economics, Meiji University (Tokyo, Japan), June-December, 1990.

Susan Sullivan, current teacher at National Cathedral School, Washington, D.C., will be visiting instructor in government at Georgetown University during 1990-92.

Stephen L. Wasby, professor at SUNY-Albany, will be at the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, for 1990-91, as a Secretary of the Navy Fellow.