

MEDITERRANEAN ARCHAEOLOGY

THE AUSTRALIAN AND NEW ZEALAND JOURNAL FOR THE ARCHAEOLOGY OF THE MEDITERRANEAN WORLD

For over fifty years, scholars from Australia and New Zealand have played an important role in the archaeological exploration of the Mediterranean region. Until recently, information about their research and discoveries in the field has appeared scattered in various journals, published overseas.

MEDITERRANEAN ARCHAEOLOGY now provides easy and direct access to their most recent findings, featuring regular reports on the major expeditions and excavations carried out in the Mediterranean area by scholars from Australasia:

- the Australian excavations at I Fani in South Italy;
- The University of Sydney's Pella excavations in Jordan;
- the Australian Expedition to Pompeii;
- the excavations conducted at Torone in northern Greece by the Athens Archaeological Society in collaboration with the Australian Archaeological Institute at Athens.

The journal is also the main medium for the publication of relevant material held in collections and museums in both Australia and New Zealand, including:

- the Abbey Museum in Caboolture, Queensland;
- the Antiquities Museum at the University of Queensland, Brisbane;
- the Classics Department Museum in the Australian National University in Canberra;
- the John Elliott Classics Museum at the University of Tasmania, Hobart
- the Logie Collection at the University of Canterbury, Christchurch, New Zealand;
- the Melbourne University Collection;
- the Nicholson Museum at the University of Sydney;
- the Victoria University Collection in Wellington, New Zealand.

MEDITERRANEAN ARCHAEOLOGY is published annually. One of its main objectives is to provide a forum for archaeologists in Australia and New Zealand whose research and field work focus on the Mediterranean region. At the same time, it responds to the need for an international journal that treats this area as an entity. It is open to contributors from any country and will publish papers in English, French, German, and Italian.

1. Articles should be typed in double spacing and on one side of the paper only. Footnotes should be numbered consecutively and typed in double spacing on separate sheets. Greek quotations should be in Greek script and not transliterated.
2. Quotations in English, Latin, French, etc. should be put in single inverted commas, e.g. . . . the phrase 'dux femina facti' has . . .
A quotation within a quoted passage has double inverted commas. Single words or self-contained phrases (such as faute de mieux) may be underlined to indicate italics. The following should not be underlined: ad loc., ap., c., cf., e.g., ibid., i.e., op.cit., s.v., viz.
3. References should normally be given in the footnotes, in the following form:

BOOKS

G.H. Gellie, Sophocles, A Reading (Melbourne 1972) 53-78.
A.D. Trendall, The Red-Figured Vases of Lucania, Campania and Sicily 1 (Oxford 1967) 193-4, or 1.193-4.

Authors' initials should be stated, at least at their first mention.

ARTICLES

A.S. Henry, 'Euripides, Hippolytos 790-855', CQ 26 (1976) 229-31.

or A.S. Henry (CQ 26 [1976] 229-31).

Both year and volume number should be given.

Abbreviations may follow the style of Marouzeau's L'Année philologique.

Most single references to ancient authors and documents should be placed in the text, rather than in footnotes.

When a modern work is referred to several times in footnotes, it is preferred that its full title be given only in a preliminary footnote together with the abbreviation by which it will be subsequently mentioned. Frequent use of 'op.cit.' is discouraged. Cross-references inside an article should be kept to a minimum and, if used, the author should indicate the relevant page and line of the type-script.
