Studies in Christianity and Culture

INSTRUCTIONS FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Send manuscripts and books for review to the editorial office. Manuscripts should run 6,000–11,000 words (or approximately 30–35 pages), not including endnotes, and should be double-spaced in 11- or 12-point font; endnotes must be printed double-spaced on separate pages following the text. The editors request an electronic submission (preferably by email attachment; cd-rom submissions sent to the address below will also be accepted) of the following items:

- (1) The manuscript (in order to protect the author's anonymity during the review process, the author's name should appear only on the title page of the essay);
- (2) A 200-word abstract (that is used during the review process and if Church History publishes the essay, the abstract may be included on the Church History webpage at www.churchhistory.org).

Please see www.churchhistory.org/churchhistoryguidelines.html for further manuscript submission guidelines. The editors will consider submissions of 70–90 pages for publication as “extended articles.” Persons wishing to submit such manuscripts should query before sending them.

“Riveting. Kane’s compelling narrative uses the story of a stigmatic nun to illuminate broader themes of convent culture, authority and resistance, and religion and science.”

—Kathleen Sprows Cummings,
University of Notre Dame

“This brilliantly researched and told story of ‘a failed saint and possibly a false stigmatic’ is at the same time a revealing study of how American Catholics in the twentieth century lived their everyday lives in close proximity to the supernatural. Kane offers a new perspective on almost everything about modern American Catholicism—family life, ethnic tensions, Catholic bodies, kitchen devotions, urbanism, relations among nuns and between nuns and priests, attitude towards suffering and pain, and much more. Reading Sister Thorn, I was repeatedly gripped by the sense that nothing about American Catholicism would ever look the same again.”

—Robert Orsi, Northwestern University

PAULA M. KANE is associate professor and John and Lucine O’Brien Marous Chair of Catholic Studies at the University of Pittsburgh and author of Separatism and Subculture: Boston Catholicism, 1900-1920.

The Spiritual Practice of Remembering

Margaret Bendroth

“Bendroth makes a powerful case that the past is never totally past but remains a rich resource for the practice of our faith. The point is less the mastery of this or that ‘dry’ detail than to see that our spiritual parents often faced questions similar to ours yet gave answers different from ours — answers more practical, more creative, and more faithful. It pays to pay attention. The book is at once learned, thought-filled, and wonderfully engaging.”

— Grant Wacker

“Abounding in colorful anecdotes — and laced with wry and sympathetic humor — this memory book reads like a good diary, a page-turning adventure through sacred history.”

— Nancy S. Taylor

"Alistair Stewart applies his considerable distinction in the literature of early liturgy and church order to produce an outstanding, scholarly tour de force. . . . Stewart has produced a major contribution to the study of church order in early Christianity that will form part of the foundation for future research."

"Basil of Caesarea is the giant of the fourth-century theologians, and he intimidates many who approach his works today. Here lies the value of Stephen Hildebrand's book: he introduces us not to a part of Basil's thought but to his theology as a whole. . . . [A] valuable book not only for historians of theology but for anyone who wants to understand the role of theology in late antiquity."
—Thomas O'Loughlin, University of Nottingham

Organized according to geographical areas, this book examines what various regions looked like before and after the introduction of Christianity. How and when was introduced into the region? How were Christian life and thought shaped by the particularities of the local setting? And how did Christianity in turn influence or reshape the local culture?
