FAILURE AND SUCCESS IN AMERICA

A Literary Debate

MARTHA BANTA

Ranging widely over a span of 350 years of discussion and controversy, Martha Banta makes a fundamental contribution to the continuing debate on the nature of success and failure in a specifically American context. Her Whitmanesque view of the debate takes in the work of innumerable writers, particularly Emerson, Thoreau, Twain, Melville, Henry Adams, William and Henry James, Faulkner, Gertrude Stein, and Norman Mailer. She draws on the work of philosophers, psychologists, and historians as well. Cloth, $30.00. Limited Paperback Edition, $12.50

MINDSCREEN

Bergman, Godard, and First-Person Film

BRUCE F. KAWIN

"Bruce Kawin has managed to examine and analyze film narrative as a self-conscious form of storytelling without any appeal to literary 'analogues' to the film process, but rather through a careful explication of selected films in terms of their own shot-by-shot narrative development. His 'close readings' of the films are often dazzlingly perceptive and convincing, and alone worth the price of admission."

— Frank D. McConnell, Northwestern University. Illus. Cloth, $15.50. Paper, $4.95

TRANSPARENT MINDS

Narrative Modes for Presenting Consciousness in Fiction

DORRIT COHN

"This is a first-rate book full of the sort of insights that reward the reader, developing a fresh conception of the limits of narrative treatments of consciousness out of an unusually thorough awareness of theory and scholarship. More than a contribution to American criticism and theory or even to comparatist theory, this is a book of international stature that cuts through to an understanding of one of the central aspects of 'modernism.' I long to hand it to my students." — David Hayman, University of Wisconsin. $14.50

TIME AND THE NOVEL

The Genealogical Imperative

PATRICIA DRECHSEL TOBIN

Focusing on the temporal structure that dominated 19th-century novels, the author traces the collapse of linear narrative in 20th-century novels, and parallels the current challenge to linearity from many other areas of modern thought. "Patricia Tobin is very close to being completely successful in constructing a new inner framework for the novel and its development. Of the many recent books on the novel, hers is certainly among the most impressive for the theoretical power of its argument." — Edward W. Said, Columbia University. $12.50

THOMAS CHATTERTON'S ART Experiments in Imagined History

DONALD S. TAYLOR

Although Thomas Chatterton's fabrications — or "forgeries" — of historical poems have attracted much attention and discussion, his works have never before been the subject of a sustained serious and critical investigation that focused on his artistic achievement rather than on the legend and myth surrounding his melodramatic life. Donald Taylor's study is the first to provide a thorough analysis of Chatterton's poems and to place them in the context of the poetic and literary traditions that influenced him. $17.50

JAPANESE LINKED POETRY
An Account with Translations
of Renga and Haikai Sequences
EARL MINER

As a link between the court poetry of the classical period and the haiku poetry of the modern period, the renga and haikai which constitute Japanese linked poetry have a position of central importance in Japanese literature. "This is the first comprehensive study of a major Japanese verse form — linked poetry — in a Western language. It is a fitting sequel to Japanese Court Poetry (1961), a renowned work coauthored by Professor Miner." — Makoto Ueda, Stanford University. $18.50

I, VINCENT
Poems from the Pictures
of Van Gogh
ROBERT FAGLES

Using poems to express the content of and genius behind the paintings of Van Gogh, Robert Fagles gives us an especially creative biography of Vincent. "Fagles has found a way to give us the richest and fullest Van Gogh I have seen in print, except for Vincent's letters. He has given us a Van Gogh who is the master of his experience, not merely the victim of it, and I delight in his achievement." — Richard Howard, Princeton Essays on the Arts, 5. Illus. Cloth, $12.50. Paper, $4.95

MODERN JAPANESE FICTION
AND ITS TRADITIONS

An Introduction
J. THOMAS RIMER

"After pathbreaking studies of modern Japanese fiction by Donald Keene, Masao Miyoshi, and Makoto Ueda, the time is ripe for a more or less pantoscopic account of modern Japanese fiction in the light of its traditions. An intelligent cicerone is needed, and Rimer fills the need. His book is unquestionably a popularization of Japanese understanding, and it should stimulate study that will lead to a further development in the state of our knowledge of prose fiction in a tradition older than any other in the world." — Earl Miner, Princeton University. $15.00

Two books about the incomparable Dorothy L. Sayers

Dorothy L. Sayers

A Literary Biography

By Ralph E. Hone. A new life examining the writer's progress from the popular Lord Peter Wimsey novels to religious drama to translations of medieval literature—a progress that, knowing the woman, is not as discontinuous as might be thought. Parson's daughter, Oxford scholar, London Bohemian, advertising copywriter, Christian apologist, champion of causes—her life fed her writing and her biography is not only fascinating in its own right but provides new insights into Sayers' writings and the thoughts and events that motivated them. Illustrated, $15.00

As Her Whimsey Took Her

Critical Essays on the Work of Dorothy L. Sayers

Edited by Margaret P. Hannay. Fourteen essays on all aspects of Sayers' work, from detective stories to Christian aesthetics, indicate the growing importance attaching to the wide range of her output. Not just a vastly popular novelist, her work also relates to that of her Oxford friends C. S. Lewis, J. R. R. Tolkien, and Charles W. S. Williams. The volume also contains a bibliography of Sayers materials in U.S. archives. $15.00

"Morris Dickstein has written the first comprehensive appraisal of the 60's in America. With excellent literary judgment and judicious sympathy he covers politics and culture, the rise of a new sensibility, the 'new journalism,' fiction, rock music, black writing and black nationalism, and concludes with an autobiographical sketch that nicely reveals the relationship of the observer to the things observed."

—Editor's Choice, New York Times Book Review

"A vital and important book for anyone who wants to know the intricate and sometimes explosive connections between culture and politics in the 60's!"—Richard Poirer

ON DIFFICULTY

And Other Essays

George Steiner. What do we mean when we say a text is "difficult"? How have new criteria for acceptable erotic speech affected literature? In this vigorous new book, the author of the seminal After Babel discusses the erosion of the classical and humanistic ideals that have animated Western society and thought.

200 pp., $10.95

NIETZSCHE, HENRY JAMES, AND THE ARTISTIC WILL

Stephen Donadio. "This distinguished thematic study might be called parallel portraits of Nietzsche and Henry James, rightly linked here by their common Emersonian heritage. . . .

I am indebted to Donadio for his discussions of William James on sainthood, on immortality, and on indeterminism." — Harold Bloom, Commentary

347 pp., $15.95

DEMOCRACY AND THE NOVEL

Popular Resistance to Classic American Writers

Henry Nash Smith. The author of the classic Virgin Land has now produced another striking work, a major interpretation of 19th-century American literature. "It is a book that sorts things out and puts them together, and it does so with a kind of wisdom and humanity, and a range of vision rarely attained these days."

— R. W. B. Lewis, New Republic.

204 pp., $13.95

THE INTERPRETATION OF OTHERNESS

Literature, Religion, and the American Imagination

Giles Gunn. This probing book uses cultural anthropology, aesthetics, and the history of religion to shed new light on the relationship of art to religion and literature to belief. Latter chapters concentrate on the works of some major 19th- and 20th-century American writers.

From "The Magic Mountain"

Mann's Later Masterpieces

By HENRY HATFIELD. In this enriching introduction to the later novels of Thomas Mann and to the novelist himself, the author reviews the literary harvest of Mann's last thirty years. Granted access to a wealth of unpublished papers in the Thomas Mann Archive in Zurich, he uncovers fascinating new material to explain why the "old magician" still holds readers under his powerful spell. $15.00

Satire's Persuasive Voice

By EDWARD A. BLOOM and LILLIAN D. BLOOM. What is satire? What can it accomplish? Why does it make us laugh? These are the concerns of the Blooms' literate and urbane book. They discuss the advocates and the critics of satire from the Restoration up to modern times, with special attention given to the period 1660 to 1800, and make a valuable contribution to our understanding and enjoyment of satiric literature. $15.00

The Language of Allegory

Defining the Genre

By MAUREEN QUILLIGAN. This lively and innovative work treats a body of literature not previously regarded as a unified genre. Offering comparative readings of a number of texts that range from the 12th-century De planctu naturae to Pynchon's Gravity's Rainbow, the author formulates a vocabulary for talking about the distinctive elements these allegories share. $15.00

Faulkner's Career

An Internal Literary History

By GARY LEE STONUM. Through close readings of Faulkner's poetry, The Sound and the Fury, As I Lay Dying, Absalom, Absalom! and the Snopes trilogy, the author discerns four main stages in his career and accounts for changes in style, theme, method, and aesthetic principles that define each stage. He views Faulkner's career not as a simple unity or a linear progression but rather as a cumulative process of change. $12.50

Shakespeare's English Comedy

The Merry Wives of Windsor in Context

By Jeanne Addison Roberts

Supplementing the work of previous scholars with her own, Roberts examines The Merry Wives of Windsor, dating the play circa 1597 and discussing the implications of such a date. Roberts also deals with the arguments of critics who have dismissed The Merry Wives as farce and establishes that it is squarely in the tradition of genuine English—and Shakespearean—comedy.

Renaissance Drama and the English Church Year

By R. Chris Hassel, Jr.

This original study demonstrates the existence of a tradition of performance at court of plays and masques which are relevant to the feast day of their performance. Hassel investigates the correlations between these plays, which entertained the English court from 1510 through 1640, and the thematic, imagistic, and narrative facets of their recurrent festival occasions.

Social Poetry of the 30's

This stunning anthology of the work of 23 social poets of the Depression Era in the United States collects hundreds of poems that have been virtually lost since their original publication. The works of Horace Gregory, Muriel Rukeyser, Kenneth Patchen, Richard Wright, and the 19 other poets represented show that this was indeed a rich era in American letters.

Social injustice, the Depression, the Spanish Civil War, Joe Hill, the Soviet Union—these are the subjects on which the poems in this collection center. America for these poets had failed, and a new world had to be won with poetry as a force in the class struggle. They wrote in newspapers and magazines and read their work at meetings and rallies. Very little ever appeared in books or any other permanent form.

The result is an anthology that will be treasured by everyone who is fascinated by the social struggles of the thirties.

Social Poetry of the 30s is the first of a five-volume series devoted to American Literature of the Depression decade. Volumes to appear in later seasons center on theatre, short stories, essays, and journalism. April, Cloth $15.95, Paperback $5.95

Portrait of the art critic as a young man.

For more than 30 years Bernard Berenson was the most formidable presence in the Anglo-American art world. Critics studied him, collectors heeded him, the great talents of the day flocked to his Florentine villa.

The story of the making of the connoisseur is a splendid one and is splendidly told by Pulitzer-Prize-winning author Ernest Samuels. The book, which includes dozens of photographs, spans the first four decades of Berenson's life, both public and private.

If you love art, you'll want to make this book your own.

SYLVIA PLATH

New Views on the Poetry

edited by Gary Lane

A thoughtful, deeply provocative new look at the poetic art of one of the most intense, compelling poets of recent times. Noted critics and scholars — among them, Calvin Bedient, Hugh Kenner, J. D. McClatchy, David Shapiro, Sister Bernetta Quinn, and Marjorie Perloff — offer original readings of Plath's poetry (including some poems scarcely mentioned in previous criticism) and foster new understandings of such matters as Plath's comedy, her assimilation of influence, her relation to poetic tradition, and her use of autobiography. $14.00

SAUL'S FALL

A Critical Fiction

Herbert Lindenberger

Written in the spirit of such classics as Tristram Shandy, Pale Fire, S/Z, and Glas, Saul's Fall is a totally fictitious "critical edition" of what purports to be a little-known drama by "Orlando Hennesy-Garcia." Conceived by Herbert Lindenberger (through the guise of a score of distinguished — but imaginary — scholars and critics), the book skillfully parodies genres, literary techniques, and critical conventions and methodologies. It pokes good-natured fun at current literary trends, provides an often rollicking account of life inside academia, and presents a touching portrait of a troubled young playwright struggling to achieve his moment of fame. $14.95

MYSTERY AND ITS FICTIONS

From Oedipus to Agatha Christie

David I. Grossvogel

"The most advanced and stimulating study of the 'detective story' or 'murder mystery' made of fiction that has been given to us. . . . The entire book — theory and practical criticism together — aids profoundly in expanding the genre of murder mystery to all but encompass what is most problematic and inescapable in the traditions of modern fiction." — Harold Bloom, Yale University

An intriguing book, especially for all who care about who killed Roger Ackroyd, Mystery and Its Fictions leads the reader through a lively, lucid examination of the crimes and criminals conceived by Sophocles, Dostoevsky, Camus, Poe, Pirandello, Borges, Kafka, Robbe-Grillet, and Agatha Christie. $12.95

Charles Dickens and His Publishers

ROBERT LOWRY PATTEN, Professor of English, Rice University, Houston. This book considers the whole range of Dickens' relations with his English and foreign publishers. It chronicles the private drama of his personal and professional associations; the techniques of publishing through the periodical issue of his work, and through four widely-circulated reprint series; and identifies the sources and size of Dickens' income, comparing it to that of his contemporaries. The study demonstrates that the conditions of publishing had much to do with the shape and success of Dickens' career.

The Journals of Lady Gregory

Volume I: Book 1-29, 10 October 1916 – 24 February 1925

Edited by DANIEL J. MURPHY. These journals, which are important for artistic, social and political reasons, record Lady Gregory's friendship with William Butler Yeats – one of the most enduring literary relationships in modern times. Included is material dealing with the Abbey Theatre and the Lane pictures, as well as accounts of the Black and Tans, British ex-soldiers who terrified the countryside trying to suppress the drive for an independent Ireland.

A Light from Eleusis

A Study of Ezra Pound's Cantos

LEON SURETTE, Associate Professor of English, University of Western Ontario. A Light from Eleusis suggests for the first time that the ritual nights spent by Odysseus at Eleusis in The Odyssey form the basis of the organization of the Cantos. Pound's developing knowledge and changing attitudes toward his work are followed through published and unpublished correspondence, and scattered periodical contributions.

Evidence in Literary Scholarship Essays in Memory of James Marshall Osborn

Edited by RENÉ WELLEK, Sterling Professor Emeritus of Comparative Literature, Yale University; and ALVARO RIBEIRO, Research Fellow, Balliol College, Oxford. James Marshall Osborn (1906-1976) scholar, collector and benefactor of learning, devoted his energies and resources to the collection of primary source materials and their preparation for publication in the conviction that precise scholarship is an exciting and adventure-filled enterprise. Twenty-eight distinguished scholars have contributed to this volume of essays on literary and historical topics ranging from the seventeenth to the nineteenth century.

The Mid-Eighteenth Century

JOHN BUTT; edited and completed by GEOFFREY CARNALL. This volume of The Oxford History of English Literature gives an account of what was achieved in different genres during a period which saw many experiments in poetry and prose fiction, a radically new approach to the writing of history, and the composition of the most famous biography in the English language: Boswell's Life of Johnson. Attention is also paid to such forms as the hymn, the sermon, and the philosophical dialogue, while an entire chapter is devoted to the work of Samuel Johnson.

The Memoirs of Anne, Lady Halkett, and Ann, Lady Fanshawe

Edited by JOHN LOFTIS, Professor of English, Stanford University. These two memoirs, written in the late seventeenth century by widows of Royalists who had been prominent in the Civil Wars, provide firsthand accounts of important events and persons of their era. Together, they bring to life two strong-minded, intelligent and adventurous women. Both these Memoirs have been out of print for generations. For this volume Professor Loftis has edited them from manuscripts in the British Library and provided explanations for many of the topical allusions.

JACK KEROUAC'S On the Road: Text and Criticism

Edited by Scott Donaldson
(College of William and Mary)

This new addition to the Viking Critical Library brings together the complete text of On the Road and the best critical writing about Jack Kerouac and his novel. The opening section on the Beat Generation provides historical perspective. Nine essays about On the Road follow, including two written especially for this edition. "Kerouac and His Art" explores the literary principles underlying the author's work, and John Clellon Holmes's poignant reminiscence, "The Great Rememberer," concludes the volume.

Robert Lowell

Life and Art

STEVEN GOULD AXELROD

This major biography of Robert Lowell, the first published since his death, exposes the full relationship between the poetry and the personal and national experience to which it is so remarkably connected. In his discussion of Lowell's poetic achievement, Axelrod establishes the poet's inheritance of the American literary tradition and the influence of his mentors, Allen Tate and William Carlos Williams. Illus. $14.50

Marianne Moore

The Poet's Advance

LAURENCE STAPLETON

“... An excellent critical study. . . . With respect for Moore's intentions, Stapleton teases the meaning out of poem after poem, fathoming their dazzling range of associations. This is one of the few in-depth examinations of Moore and a veritable reader's guide to her poetry.”

— Publishers Weekly. Illus. $15.00

René Char

The Myth and the Poem

JAMES R. LAWLER

Although René Char's distinctive voice has brought him to the forefront of contemporary French writers, his complex poetry has remained virtually inaccessible to the general reader. In this book an eminent authority on French literature describes Char's evolution and, through close readings, offers a clear and rewarding introduction to the poet's oeuvre. Princeton Essays in Literature. $11.00

Alexander Pope

The Poet in the Poems

DUSTIN H. GRIFFIN

Seeking to define the relation between the historical Alexander Pope and the idealized author of the poetry, Griffin examines the self-expressive nature of Pope's poems. He brings a sensitive critical reading of the texts and an impressive knowledge of the poet's life and writings to his discussion of poems from the entire range of the poet's career. $17.50

Blake and the Assimilation of Chaos

CHRISTINE GALLANT

Throughout his life Blake struggled with different solutions to the problem of assimilating chaos into imaginative order. By observing the changing pattern of Jungian archetypes in The Four Zoas, Christine Gallant shows that during the ten-year period of composing his first epic, Blake's myth expanded from a closed, static system to an open, dynamic process. $12.50

FROM ACHILLES TO CHRIST

The Myth of the Hero in Tolstoy's War and Peace

Laura Jepsen

In the matrix of epic genre, exemplified by the archetypal Iliad, Tolstoy develops a Christian antitype, which exalts not the glory of war but the brotherhood of peace.

Divided into two sections, myth and metaphor, the study reveals epic aspects of two traditions, differing more in chronology than in theme and structure. 192 pp. Cloth $10.00

PARADISE LOST AND THE CLASSICAL EPIC

Francis C. Blessington, Associate Professor of English, Northeastern University, Boston

The relation of Paradise Lost to the Iliad, the Odyssey and the Aeneid is more subtle, intimate and pervasive than has yet been recognized. The three earlier epics are the literary grammar for Milton's poem and the source of much of its power. This study shows how the classical epic lies behind even the most Christian sections of the poem and forms part of its theology. It serves as an excellent introduction to the classical background of Paradise Lost. June, about $13.75

COLERIDGE

Katharine Cooke

Coleridge's reputation as a poet rests on a handful of supreme poems, but any assessment of his life and work must take into account his power as a literary critic and theorist, his role in expressing German philosophical ideas in England for the first time, and his contributions to social and political theory. Katharine Cooke focuses in turn on each facet of Coleridge's work, and emphasizes the unity of his achievement. April, $16.75

THE AESTHETES: A SOURCEBOOK

Edited by Ian Small,

University of Birmingham, England

This anthology of the Aesthetes makes available in one volume the major documents of the movement and the principal critical reactions to it. The collection provides an indispensable basis for any study of the Aesthetes or the literature of the late Victorian or Edwardian age and resurrects much fascinating material that is otherwise unavailable. ## NEW PHOENIX WINGS: REPARATION IN LITERATURE

Simon Stuart

According to the Kleinian school of psychoanalysis, creativity begins at the mother's breast and develops throughout infant experience. This highly original study considers a number of major texts from a Kleinian point of view, giving special prominence to the work of Blake and Wordsworth and examining a selection of written and graphic productions by children. The book generates insights into both the two masters of English Romanticism and into the nature of creativity itself. May, illustrated, $23.00

LANGUAGE AS IDEOLOGY

Gunther Kress and Robert Hodge,

Head, School of Communication Art, Murray Park College of Advanced Education, Magill, Australia; and School of Human Communication, Murdoch University, Western Australia

Developing from a study of the relation between linguistics and history, this book attempts a more ambitious undertaking: to relate forms of thought to the existence of the producers of those thoughts, as individuals living in a material world under specific social and temporal conditions. Linguistics is seen as providing the theoretical framework for intellectual and cultural analysis. June, about $15.00

THE CULTURAL CRITICS

Lesley Johnson, University of Melbourne

The central focus of this study is the use of the concept of culture by English literary intellectuals over the last hundred years, a period characterized by a constant process of redefinition and change. The author traces the English cultural tradition by discussing the work of various intellectuals, particularly Matthew Arnold, F.R. Leavis and Raymond Williams. The book will be particularly valuable for students of literature, cultural history and sociology of culture. International Library of Sociology, May, $21.95

CRITICAL UNDERSTANDING

The Powers and Limits of Pluralism

Wayne C. Booth

Through extended accounts of three major pluralists, Ronald S. Crane, Kenneth Burke and M. H. Abrams, and shorter considerations of many others, Booth pursues the problems raised for anyone who rejects the search for some single, unitary, perhaps even "scientific" resolution to conflicting critical methods.

THE AMERICAN QUEST FOR A SUPREME FICTION

Whitman's Legacy in the Personal Epic

James E. Miller, Jr.

"This study displays the sensitivity we have come to expect from Professor Miller. It offers an outstanding number of fresh and often quite exciting perceptions. Especially, one learns about the poets as critics: their theories of the long poem, their search for a 'supreme fiction,' their persisting use of Whitman as a base line for their thinking."—John C. Gerber, SUNY, Albany

YEATS

The Poetics of the Self

David Lynch

This book presents a new and controversial approach to the psychoanalytic study of art. In it, Lynch shows the intimate connection between self-image and works of art that characterizes those faced with what Yeats called "the choice"—choosing or being chosen for the creative life.

"David Lynch makes a convincing case for the importance of reading Yeats's work in the light of recent theories of narcissism, and clarifies in frequently brilliant ways the function in Yeats of the idealized self."—Helen Vendler, Boston University
