Notes on Contributors

Ruth Ben-Ghiat is Professor of Italian Studies and History at New York University and was, until August 2013, Chair of the Department of Italian Studies. She is the author of Fascist Modernities: Italy 1922–45 (University of California Press, 2001; 2004), and the editor of Gli imperi: Dall'antichità all'età contemporanea (il Mulino, 2009), and, with Mia Fuller, of Italian Colonialism (Palgrave Macmillan, 2005; 2008). Her book Italian Fascism's Empire Cinema will be published by Indiana University Press in 2014.

Paul Corner is Professor of European History and Director of the Centre for the Study of Totalitarian Regimes at the University of Siena. He has published widely on issues relating to the inter-war dictatorships and in particular on questions concerning the origins and subsequent development of the Italian Fascist regime. His most recent publications are the edited volume Popular Opinion in Totalitarian Regimes (Oxford University Press, 2009) and The Fascist Party and Popular Opinion in Mussolini's Italy (Oxford University Press, 2012).

Philip H. J. Davies is Director of the Brunel Centre for Intelligence and Security Studies at Brunel University, UK. He recently published a two-volume comparative analysis of the British and US intelligence communities, Intelligence and Government in Britain and the United States: A Comparative Approach (Praeger Security International, 2012), and was one of the authors of the UK's current joint military intelligence doctrine JDP 2-00 Understanding and Intelligence Support to Joint Operations (DCDC, 2011).

Mehmet Döşemeci is an Assistant Professor of History at Bucknell University. He has published numerous articles on modern Turkey, examining Turkey's relations with the European Union, Turkish nationalism, Turkish anti-Westernism, and Turkey's place in the cold-war Mediterranean. His book, Debating Turkish Modernity: Civilization, Nationalism, and the EEC, is about to be published by Cambridge University Press.

Liesbeth van de Grift is Assistant Professor at the Departments of Political History and German Studies at the Radboud University Nijmegen, Netherlands. Her article outlines the preliminary results of the research project entitled 'Brave New Worlds:

Internal Colonisation in Europe, 1900–1940’ with a focus on the Netherlands. This project, which compares cases of internal colonisation in the Netherlands, Sweden and Germany, is funded by the Netherlands Organisation of Scientific Research. In 2012, her book, Securing the Communist State: The Reconstruction of Coercive Institutions in the Soviet Zone of Germany and Romania, 1944–1948 appeared in the Harvard Cold War Studies Book Series, published by Rowman & Littlefield/Lexington Books.

Martin Gutmann is currently an associated researcher at the University of Lucerne, Switzerland. During the 2012/13 academic year, Gutmann conducted research in Switzerland on the nature and technology of mountaineering in the inter-war period as an ACLS New Faculty Fellow. He has also published work on foreign volunteers to the Waffen-SS in Transnational Subjects and on the German armed forces’ anti-partisan strategy in Journal on Terrorism and Security Studies. He gained his PhD in History from Syracuse University, USA, in 2011.

Matteo Millan holds his PhD (2011) in History from the University of Padua. He is currently working on a book on the fascist squads after the March on Rome. His main fields of expertise comprise the role of the political violence during the Fascist regime, European paramilitarism after the First World War and the intelligence network of the Italian Resistance movement (1943–5). His publications include Guerra di servizi: Tra Italia e Svizzera, la rete informativa della Resistenza (Poligrafo, 2009).

Kiran Klaus Patel is Professor of European and Global History at Maastricht University in the Netherlands, where he is also head of the Department of History. Before joining Maastricht University, he held a professorship at the European University Institute in Florence, and an assistant professorship at Humboldt University in Berlin. His most important and recent publications include The Cultural Politics of Europe: Capitals of Culture and the Integration of Europe since the 1980s, ed. (Routledge, 2013); Europeanization in the Twentieth Century: Historical Approaches, ed. with Martin Conway (Palgrave Macmillan, 2010) and Europäisierung wider Willen: Die Bundesrepublik Deutschland in der Agrarintegration der EWG (Oldenbourg, 2009).

Dan Stone is Professor of Modern History at Royal Holloway, University of London. He is a historian of ideas whose recent publications include: Histories of the Holocaust (Oxford University Press, 2010); The Oxford Handbook of Postwar European History (Oxford University Press, 2012); The Holocaust and Historical Methodology, ed. (Berghahn, 2012) and The Holocaust, Fascism and Memory (Palgrave Macmillan, 2013). He is currently completing a book on post-war Europe for Oxford University Press.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contemporary European History covers the history of eastern and western Europe, including the United Kingdom, from 1918 to the present. By combining a wide geographical compass with a relatively short time span, the journal achieves both range and depth. It is open to all forms of historical enquiry – including cultural, economic, international, political and social approaches – and welcomes comparative and transnational analysis.

Submissions

Articles submitted for publication should be sent electronically to Contemporary European History, at ceh@sheffield.ac.uk, or, in the case of submissions from North America, to the Corresponding Editor for North America, Professor Amir Weiner, weiner@stanford.edu

Articles should normally be about 8,000 words long, the total to include footnotes. Review articles should not exceed 5,000 words.

The journal is published in English, and contributions are normally submitted in that language; however, we will also consider articles submitted in other major European languages. If accepted for publication, these will be translated. All articles, including those commissioned, will be refereed.

An abstract of each article is published in English, French and German.

Submission of a paper will be taken to imply that it is unpublished and is not being considered for publication elsewhere. On acceptance of a paper, the author will be asked to assign copyright (on certain conditions) to Cambridge University Press. An article cannot be published unless a signed copyright form is returned promptly.

Contributors are responsible for obtaining permission to reproduce any material in which they do not hold copyright and for ensuring that the appropriate acknowledgements are included in their text.

The editors would be grateful if contributors kept closely to the journal's stylistic conventions. Copy-editing is time-consuming and the editors will return any contribution which does not follow the conventions for correction and re-typing.

Prospective authors should refer to the full set of Instruction for Contributors by following the link at <http://www.journals.cambridge.org/ceh>

Contributors of accepted papers should send a final version via email. This should include

1. the text, which should begin with the title, the author's name and email and postal address, and the author's affiliation as he/she should wish it to appear
2. a 100-word summary of the article in English, French or German
3. a short title for use as a running page-head
4. a statement of the article's length in number of words (including both text and footnotes), and a list of tables, graphs, maps and any other illustrative material (each of which should be supplied as a separate file)
5. a short biographical note with a description of work in progress and previously published work (130 words max.)
