THE SLAVE SHIP

A HUMAN HISTORY

MARCUS REDIKER

In this intimate history of an infamous institution, Marcus Rediker shines a light into the darkest corners of the “floating dungeons” of the eighteenth-century American and British slave trade, exploring how the ships, their crews, and their human cargo connected and transformed societies on both sides of the horrendous voyage.

“The Slave Ship is the best of histories, deeply researched, brilliantly formulated, and morally informed.” — Ira Berlin, Univ. of Maryland

“The Slave Ship is truly a magnificent and disturbing book — disturbing not only because it details the violence and barbarism of the free market in human beings, but it reminds us that all actors in this drama are human, including the ship’s crew.”

— Robin D. G. Kelley,
Univ. of Southern California

*“I was hardly prepared for the profound emotional impact of The Slave Ship: A Human History. Reading it established a transformative and never to be severed bond with my African ancestors who were cargo in slave ships over a period of four centuries.”* — Alice Walker

“A tour de force. Never before has the reality of the trade been so comprehensively and subtly conveyed.” — Robin Blackburn, author of The Overthrow of Colonial Slavery

This new journal serves as a focal point and forum for scholarship on intellectual and cultural history from 1650 onwards, with primary attention to Europe and the United States but also to transnational developments that encompass the non-West. It enquires into this era's intellectual discourses and texts, their contextual origins and reception, and the recovery of their historical meanings.

Journal of Global History addresses the main problems of global change over time, together with the diverse histories of globalization. It will also examine counter-currents to globalization, including those that have structured other spatial units. The journal will seek to transcend the dichotomy between 'the West and the rest', straddle traditional regional boundaries, relate material to cultural and political history, and overcome thematic fragmentation in historiography.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

The Journal publishes research and reviews on all aspects of the African past. Contributors should keep in mind the general readership for whom they are writing and relate their findings specifically to relevant secondary literature.

Authors may submit contributions in either English or French. They should not exceed about 7,500 words (excluding notes), except with the prior approval of the Editors. Where appropriate, carefully drawn maps, photographs and other illustrations should accompany the text. An abstract of the contents of the article, not exceeding about 100 words, should follow the title.

Contributors should seek clarity, brevity and simplicity of expression and avoid long sentences and unduly lengthy or short paragraphs. They should closely observe the conventions set out below ('Format and Style'). Print-outs must be checked personally before despatch, to remove accidental errors.

Contributions may be sent to any one of the Editors listed on the inside cover; they should be addressed to them at their university addresses. Where possible, submissions should be sent as e-mail attachments, preferably in MS Word.

When an article has been accepted for publication, and after typesetting, page proofs will be sent to each contributor. Corrections must be kept to a minimum: they should not include new material. Contributors should be prepared to return corrected proofs promptly. Authors of articles and review articles receive 25 free offprints and may purchase additional copies, provided that they order before publication on the form sent out with proofs.

Format and Style

Articles should be submitted electronically. They should be typed in double-spacing throughout. Lines beginning new paragraphs should be indented. Ample margins (at least one inch left and right, one and one-half inches top and bottom) must be left, and all pages should be numbered.

Spelling (in English) may follow either British or American convention but must be consistent. African words and names should conform to the orthography of the International African Institute. In referring to people, Bantu prefixes should normally be omitted: thus 'Luganda', 'Buganda', but 'a Ganda', 'the Ganda'. Quotations of more than forty words or so should begin on a new line, indented from the left-hand margin.

Italics should be used only for the names of publications and for words in languages other than English. Foreign words should be used only when necessary, and then only with a translation in parentheses. Figures should be used for units of measurement, percentages (to be shown in the form '7 per cent', not '7%'), and any number which includes a decimal point. Spell out other numbers up to ten and multiples of ten up to one hundred ('seven', 'twenty', but '25', '127' and '10,000'). Cite dates in the form '12 February 1968' (or 'Feb.' in source-references). Express sequences in the briefest form possible ('68-9', but '1911-12', '1849-50').

Notes should be footnotes not endnotes. They should be numbered consecutively throughout the article and double-spaced. Citations of references should be made only in the notes and not in the text, and there should be no separate bibliography. First references should be given in full, thus: S. Johnson, The History of the Yorubas (Lagos, 1921); E. W. Smith, 'Sebetwane and the Makololo', African Studies, 15 (1956), 49-74. All subsequent references should be given in abbreviated form, thus: Johnson, History, 43; Smith, 'Sebetwane', 65, except that ibid. should be used to refer to an immediately preceding citation of a title. Loc. cit. and op. cit. should not be used. Do not abbreviate periodical titles. Archival citations should be as brief as is consistent with clarity. The identity and location of each archive must be fully spelled out where it is first cited.

Maps should be prepared where the topography is important for an understanding of the text. Maps should if possible be camera-ready and show all relevant information, but only such information as is mentioned in the text. Photographs should specifically enhance the text and carry full captions and attributions.
