

Acknowledgement of 1986 Reviewers

The review of submitted manuscripts is a time-consuming job, particularly thankless because the identity of the reviewers remain anonymous to all but the Editor. Nevertheless, without such expert and impartial peer review, standards of scientific and journalistic excellence could not be maintained. The review process often benefits the authors of manuscripts by providing helpful suggestions for revising or improving their papers, clarifying ambiguities and style, and citing other relevant papers that may have been overlooked. On behalf of the readers, authors and Editorial Board of the Canadian Journal of Neurological Sciences, we wish to thank our reviewers of manuscripts submitted in 1986 for their generous donation of time and expertise to this important process.
