We have experimentally proved that Listerine is a powerful antiseptic, preventing the development of bacteria and decomposition of vegetable infusions.—British Medical Journal, May 3, 1890.

LISTERINE is an efficient, non-toxic ANTISEPTIC of known and definite power, prepared in a form convenient for immediate use.

It is a saturated solution of boric acid, reinforced by the antiseptic properties of ozoniferous oils.

It is unirritating, even when applied to the most delicate tissue.

It does not coagulate serous albumen.

It is quite generally accepted as the standard antiseptic preparation for use where a poisonous or corrosive disinfectant can not be safely used.

It is particularly useful in the treatment of abnormal conditions of the mucosa, and admirably suited for a wash, gargle or douche in catarrhal conditions of the nose and throat.

In proper dilution, it may be freely and continuously used without prejudicial effect, either by injection or spray, in all the natural cavities of the body.

There is no possibility of poisonous effect through the absorption of Listerine

A pamphlet descriptive of the antiseptic, and indicating its utility in medical, surgical and dental practice, may be had upon application to the manufacturers, Lambert Pharmacal Co., Locust and Twenty-first Streets, St. Louis, Missouri, U.S.A., or to their British Agents, Messrs. S. Maw, Son & Sons, 7-12, Aldersgate Street, London, Eng., but the best advertisement of Listerine is Prophylaxis of Cerebro-spinal Meningitis.

A powerful germicidal action, though non-toxic and non-irritant, is secured by spraying the mucosa of the nostrils, naso-pharynx, mouth, and throat, first with a dilution of

then, five minutes afterwards, with

ACIDIFIED HYDROGEN PEROXIDE SOLUTION (P., D. & Co.)

By chemical interaction, oxygen and iodine are liberated—and it is well known that when in the nascent state these elements exert their maximum of germicidal power—whilst a coating of the silver salt remains upon the membrane, and maintains a local bactericidal action.
