

Last Cracks From Legendary Cloisters

BROTHER CHOLERIC

10/6 net

Brother Choleric is retiring from the monastic cartoon rat race. The spoils of victory have been his, and with this volume he finally breaks the tape.

The Resurrection

F. X. DURRWELL, C.S.S.R.

30/- net

Traditional apologetic gives the Resurrection as a sort of nice appendage to the Passion. Father Durrwell, writing exciting theology, shows just how central the Resurrection is to our salvation.

Offbeat Spirituality

PAMELA CARSWELL

16/- net

Our spiritual life is not really something quite different from our life. We come to God through the circumstances in which we find ourselves and this rarely makes for the simplicity of most spiritual writing. Miss Carswell looks at our real lives.

Hypocrisy and Humour

E. J. OLIVER

15/- net

British 'hypocrisy' is a world legend. In a splendid survey ranging from Aesop to Orwell, Mr Oliver shows how hypocrisy makes us tick.

Liturgy and Doctrine

5/- net

Liturgy forms the centre of the ordinary life of the Church. The author discusses what is meant by Christians gathered together and carrying out the activities that belong to them as Christians.

'That incomparable woman', 'that apostolical virago' altered the face of the Church by founding the first order of unenclosed nuns. She did this in order to work as a 'spy' in Elizabethan England. A violent and fascinating woman.

Christ and the Christian

R. W. GLEASON, S.J.

12/6 net

The relationship described in this book between Christ and the Christian is one of a kind we can see to be possible between a man such as we know of and a God who means something real to us in ordinary human terms.

Witnesses to God

Rev. LEONARD JOHNSTON

13/6 net

We often think of the Bible as a collection of fascinating stories. Father Johnston shows its characters and stories culminating in Christ as the witnesses to, and vehicles of, a saving history.

Approach to Christian Sculpture

DOM HUBERT VAN ZELLER, O.S.B.

Public Affairs, Literature, and the Arts

Most widely known as a journal of opinion edited by Catholic laymen and focused on public affairs, The Commonweal is nevertheless highly regarded for the consistent quality of its varied criticism of present-day writing and contemporary art.

Week-by-week the magazine's writers, from the United States and overseas—including such regular contributors as Robert Barat, John Cogley, Michael Fogarty and Gunnar D. Kumlien—present discerning viewpoints on public affairs, literature, and the arts, in comment which makes good reading of a most enjoyable sort.

A Guide to the Thought of St Augustine

Eugene Portalle, S.J. 42s. 'The indispensable introduction' (Gilson) to the life and writings of Saint Augustine, translated into English and supplemented by a comprehensive introduction.

From Shadows to Reality

Jean Danielou, S.J. 35s. An important contribution to our understanding of the mind of the early Church and the Fathers, who interpreted the historical events of the Old Testament as being 'types' or 'figures' of the events of the New Testament and of the sacraments instituted by Jesus Christ.

The author made his name as 'A Carthusian', the monk who wrote They Speak by Silences. Here is a further selection of his writing, some to a friend in the world, some to a fellow monk. Through all is a deep calm—the result of a long and ceaseless struggle with his own fiery nature which he had learned not to destroy but to master'.

Dom Augustin Guillerand:

Where Silence is Praise. 9s 6d

'Each short chapter treats of an aspect of Christian unity, either in relation to the big feasts of the year or the liturgical seasons. . . . The insights and practical guidance which derive from Père Dumont's studies, correspondence, and participation in widespread discussion . . . make the book so practical'.
