R. H. P. MASON

A study of the first parliamentary election ever held in Asia, based on contemporary newspapers, state documents and rival party manifestos.

A descriptive and analytical account of the election is introduced by a discussion of the main political trends leading up to the establishment of constitutional government in 1889. The discussion is continued in Dr Mason's conclusion to form a conceptual framework for the election and Meiji political development as a whole. $7.50

Modern China's Search for a Political Form

Edited by JACK GRAY, University of Glasgow. This volume is the product of a 1965-66 symposium that examined the historical antecedents of the Communist revolution in China. It brings into closer relationship the research in progress on a number of supporting subjects, thus providing for each separate line of research the broad background which, until now, has not existed in a published work. The contributors are: Jerome Ch'en, Mark Elvin, Martin Bernal, Jean Chesneaux, John Gittings, Sybille van der Sprenkel, James MacDonald, and George Moseley. VOLUME VI

Edited by E. STUART KIRBY, University of Aston. The period covered in this volume had many marked developments, particularly the economic improvements of 1962, that were strongly sustained and widened in the following years. In these years, the ideological differences between the Chinese and Russian Communist parties developed into more direct forms of confrontation. This volume consists of documentary material dealing with specific current problems present in China during this rapidly changing era.

Revolution in Siam 1688

TRANSLATION OF THE MEMOIRE OF PÈRE DE BEZE

Translated by E. W. HUTCHINSON. These historical memoirs present the year 1688 A.D., one of revolution in the history of both England and Siam. The kings of both countries, James II and Pra Narai, were dethroned while pro-French policy was reversed, and a severe setback administered to the ambitious aims of Louis XIV to impose Catholicism and French grandeur on the national religions and statehood of both countries. The account of these events is presented around the central figure of Constans Phaulkon, a Greek adventurer. $7.25

Politics and Social Conflict in South India*The Non-Brahman Movement and Tamil Separatism, 1916-1929*

Eugene F. Irschick

Mr. Irschick breaks new ground in this strikingly intimate account of social and political conflict in early twentieth-century India. Although his findings have relevance far beyond Madras Presidency and the period under review, they concern essentially the non-Brahman political movement in South India following the inauguration of the Indian Home Rule movement in 1916.

Southeast Asia in the Eyes of Europe: The Sixteenth Century

Donald F. Lach

"No scholar before Donald F. Lach has attempted to survey the intricate web of relationships between Europe and Asia at such a level of detail. His book is a masterpiece of comprehensive scholarship," J. H. Plumb wrote in The New York Times Book Review on the publication of The Century of Discovery, the first volume of Asia in the Making of Europe, in 1965. Geoffrey Barraclough, in The New York Review of Books said: "nothing of this scope and magnitude has been performed before, and nothing is likely to be performed again." Unabridged chapters from Part Three of this major work are now available in paperback.

Lach portrays the growth of the spice trade, the invention of printing, and the spread of Jesuit missions during the sixteenth century, and discusses the gradual changes in the legendary character of Asia in European minds. By 1600 there was a body of knowledge derived from the writings of merchant travelers and missionaries and from the printed maps of cartographers. Details of what the literate European could have known, by 1600, about each individual area comprise the chapters now available as paperbacks, with new prefaces by the author.

Perhaps more than any other modern country, China offers a unique opportunity to examine the relationship between tradition and modernity, between continuity and change in political and social institutions. This two-volume major work explains both traditional and contemporary China as well as her position in the current crisis in international affairs. The papers assembled here were presented at the inaugural conference (1966-67) of the Center for Policy Study at the University of Chicago. With a foreword by Charles U. Daly.

G. K. HALL & CO. PUBLICATIONS

Cumulative Bibliography of
ASIAN STUDIES, 1941-1965
 Association for Asian Studies, Inc.

WE ARE PLEASED to publish the Cumulative Bibliography of Asian Studies, 1941-1965. The material for the cumulation has been prepared for publication by the staff of G. K. Hall & Co.

The Bibliography of Asian Studies, under a succession of titles (the Lists of the American Council of Learned Societies' Committee on Far Eastern Studies, Bulletin of Far Eastern Bibliography, Far Eastern Bibliography, Far Eastern Quarterly and Journal of Asian Studies), has provided bibliographical coverage of the field of Asian studies to a growing number of American (and European) Asian specialists for almost thirty years. During this period the Bibliography has increased both in the number of entries and in the areas it covered: the early ACLS Lists were confined to periodical articles on China; the Bulletin included periodical articles on Japan, Korea and other Far Eastern areas, as well as on China; the scope of the Far Eastern Bibliography was expanded to comprise both books and periodical articles on all countries of the Far East and Southeast Asia (1941) and also of South Asia (1955).

At present, the Bibliography of Asian Studies aims at presenting as complete a listing as possible of significant books and articles in European languages concerning the countries of the Far East, Southeast Asia and South Asia in the general fields of philosophy, religion, history, economics, social science, education, language and literature, and political science. To achieve this aim the editors regularly scan the Library of Congress Printed Catalogs and National Union Catalogs, the British, French, German and other national bibliographies, several American and European commercially published bibliographies, as well as the listings and notices appearing in numerous learned journals. In addition, some 700 periodicals devoted to Asian studies, and over 1500 other periodicals of a more general nature are systematically scanned for articles to be listed in the Bibliography.

Editorial policy regarding coverage has changed over the years. In the late 1940's and early 1950's, coverage was confined largely to periodicals primarily concerned with Asia. During the later 1950's coverage was expanded to include periodicals of a more general nature which were not indexed in the Reader's Guide and International Index. In the 1960's even these "general" periodicals have been covered for articles dealing with Asia.

These catalogs will be reproduced by offset on Permalife paper on pages measuring 7" x 10". The estimated 85,000 entries in the Author Catalog will be reproduced in four volumes and the estimated 83,000 entries in the Subject Catalog will be reproduced in four volumes. The volumes will be bound in Class A library binding.

"The most important firsthand memoir to come out of the American experience in Viet Nam."^{*}

Viet Nam—The Unheard Voices

By DON LUCE and JOHN SOMMER
With a Foreword by
SENATOR EDWARD M. KENNEDY

This is no ordinary book about Viet Nam. Written by two Americans who speak Vietnamese fluently, it reports the words of the people as the authors remember them from many years of living and working in South Viet Nam's hamlets, cities, slums, and refugee camps.

In no other book have the attitudes of the Vietnamese toward the Saigon government, the Viet Cong, or the war's effects on their ancient society been set forth with such insight and documentation. The information on Vietnamese rural life and on the plight of the refugees, Montagnards, and religious groups, combined with discussions of the moral dilemma of American servicemen and the anguish of Vietnamese students, conveys to students and scholars alike the reality of Viet Nam today.

"Don Luce and John Sommer are two extraordinary young men. . . . They and a few others became a part of the [Vietnamese] people, listened to them, spoke for them, worked for them, loved and understood them, at a time when a thoughtless war was rolling over them."

—EDWARD M. KENNEDY, from the Foreword

"The most important firsthand memoir to come out of the American experience in Viet Nam; it is also the most fascinating. . . . Their book is a story of people, of the tragic sympathy the Vietnamese have for Americans despite the suffering our acts have caused, and of the incapacity of Americans to understand the human dimension of the conflict."

COLONIALISM VS. NATIONALISM IN ASIA—AN ECONOMIC IMPASSE?

Underdevelopment and Economic Nationalism in Southeast Asia

By FRANK H. GOLAY, RALPH ANSPACH, M. RUTH PFANNER, and ELIEZER B. AYAL. The authors show that Southeast Asians are determined to match their hard-won political independence with meaningful economic sovereignty. This book, the product of ten years' field research, examines past and present efforts to transform alien-dominated economies into nationally controlled economies in the Philippines, Indonesia, Thailand, Malaya, South Viet Nam, and Cambodia. Though fully cognizant of the unattractive aspects of economic nationalism, the authors stress the necessity for westerners to understand and adapt to this complex force.

The Concept of Man in Early China

Donald J. Munro

On the basis of very early Chinese bronze and bone inscriptions, as well as classical texts, the author reaches new conclusions about the ancient Chinese view of man's possibilities and limitations, and his relations with other men and with the universe. The work also serves as a new approach to understanding the nature of early Chinese philosophy as a whole. The crux of early Chinese thought is the idea that men are naturally equal. This doctrine is philosophically more important than the well-known Chinese beliefs in the necessity of social hierarchies and the unequal moral worth of man, and, as the author shows, it is in no way incompatible with them. The book concludes with a discussion of the impact of the idea of natural equality on Chinese intellectual history up to the present day. Illustrated. $7.50

ASIAN POLITICAL SYSTEMS

Edited by Betty B. Burch and Allan B. Cole, both of Tufts University. 1968, 464 pages, $5.95, paper.

A collection of edited readings covering Communist China, Japan, India and Pakistan. The work is distinguished by the fact that the selections are derived exclusively from indigenous sources—learned journals, books, governmental and party documents, and newspapers of the respective nations. The contributors are Asian politicians, political scientists, historians, sociologists, etc., representing a wide range of disciplines and perspectives. The stress is contemporary, although a few pieces have been selected from earlier post-war years where conditions described continue to prevail. An introductory essay by the editors discusses each political system, and a common analytical framework facilitates comparison.

Advaita Vedānta:

A Philosophical Reconstruction

BY ELIOT DEUTSCH

Advaita Vedānta is the most important philosophical system in India. It involves a discipline of spiritual experience as well as a technical philosophy, and since the time of Śāṅkara in the ninth century some of the greatest intellects in India have contributed to its development.

In his reconstruction of Advaita Vedānta, Eliot Deutsch has lifted the system out of its historical/cultural context and has concentrated attention on those ideas which have enduring philosophical value. His reconstruction is "the attempt to formulate systematically one's understanding of what is of universal philosophical interest in it." His work covers the basic metaphysical, epistemological, and ethical ideas of Vedānta.

Students and scholars of Western as well as of Indian philosophy will be interested in the lucid, organized manner in which the material is presented and in the fresh interpretations given. The book is written in a critical rather than simply "pious" spirit and should thus also be of interest to anyone concerned to deepen his appreciation and understanding of the richness of Indian thought. $6.00
