PRIVATIZING THE PUBLIC SECTOR

E. S. SAVAS

"A provocative, tightly-argued justification for reducing the role of government in providing goods and services. His original, four-cell classification should go a long way toward moving from ideological warfare to hard-headed analysis the underpinnings of the debate over what functions government should continue to undertake and what ones it should 'shed.' Savas is both a scholar and an experienced administrator so that his arguments will have to be taken seriously even by those who ultimately disagree with his prescriptions."

THE CASE FOR BUREAUCRACY

CHARLES T. GOODSSELL

"Goodsell has produced a wonderful book. Nothing could be more timely or important. His scholarship is first-rate, his arguments are well-reasoned and persuasive, and his exposition is marvelous. This is one of the most important books in the field in recent years."

TERRITORIAL DIMENSION IN GOVERNMENT

RICHARD ROSE

Rose identifies what constitutes the Union that governs the diverse nations contained within the United Kingdom today and explains how public policies are distributed territorially and why the United Kingdom works as it does. It is intended for use in courses in British politics as well as courses dealing with intergovernmental relations in the United States, Canada, and Australia.

POLITICS AND GOVERNMENT

ALEX DRAGNICH, JOHN DORSEY, AND TAKETSUGU TSURUTANI

"A really splendid (and rare!) example of a "small" book that has sacrificed no comprehensiveness and no intellectual solidity. I know of no comparable work sampling the universe of governments as widely (China, Soviet, Third World, major European, and American governments), and none which can match Dragnich's thoroughness of examination in even twice the size." John C. Wahlke, Univ. of Arizona

Pursuit of Profit and Preferment in Colonial North America
John Bradstreet's Quest

William G. Godfrey

John Bradstreet was born in Nova Scotia and died in New York. He was a major participant in colonial North American military events ranging from the capture of Louisbourg in 1745 to the British campaign against Pontiac in 1764. Early in his career he became lieutenant-governor of St. John's, Newfoundland, and eventually rose to the rank of major-general in the British army, while linking his military performance to a relentless pursuit of profit and preferment. He was a man consistently on the periphery of both English and American societies; yet his career reveals a great deal about the mid-eighteenth-century trans-Atlantic world and about the dilemma of proponents of Empire who were viewed with increasing suspicion in both mother country and colonies.

The author draws upon British, American, and Canadian archival sources, taking advantage of Bradstreet's prolific correspondence to support and develop his narrative.

William G. Godfrey has published reviews and articles in the Dictionary of Canadian Biography, Acadiensis: Journal of the History of the Atlantic Region, and the Canadian Journal of History.
