Publication Policy

The role of the American Bar Foundation is to create and disseminate knowledge about law and the workings of the legal profession and legal institutions. With that purpose in mind, the American Bar Foundation Research Journal invites the submission of articles. The Journal publishes articles on the legal profession, the provision of legal services, the operation of legal institutions, trends and policy developments in the law, and related topics. Recognizing that a variety of disciplines and approaches can contribute to knowledge of the legal system, the Journal strives to be multidisciplinary and publishes empirical, doctrinal, and theoretical analyses. The analyses, conclusions, and opinions expressed are those of the authors and not those of the American Bar Foundation, its officers and directors, research staff, or others associated with the Foundation's work.

Manuscript Evaluation: To ensure informed publication decisions, the Journal employs a refereed publication process. Articles that the Editors deem potentially appropriate for the Journal are normally evaluated by two or more reviewers chosen on the basis of their familiarity with the subject matter and the research methods. Manuscripts produced by scholars affiliated with the Foundation are evaluated by the same process as outside manuscripts and are not accorded priority in publication.

Submission of Manuscripts: Manuscripts submitted to the Journal should be typed double spaced and be accompanied by an abstract of not more than 150 words. Because an author's identity will not be disclosed when a manuscript is sent to reviewers, the author's name, credentials, institutional affiliation, and any acknowledgments should appear only on the cover sheet or other separate pages.

The Journal does not accept multiply submitted articles. The Editors will make publication decisions promptly, usually about two months after submission.

Editing of Manuscripts: All manuscripts accepted for publication are edited for style by professional copyeditors in consultation with the author. Copyeditors do not check citations. Authors see both edited manuscript and proofs.

Reprints to Authors: Without charge, the Journal provides authors with 25 reprints of their article or essay or of the Review Symposium in which the essay appears. Additional reprints may be ordered at authors' expense. Article authors receive 3 copies of the issue in which their contribution appears; review essay and book review authors receive 1 copy.

Republication Rights: The Foundation normally permits authors to republish or use their manuscripts after publication in the Journal, but the Journal has the right to first publication of edited manuscripts. The Journal retains the right to republish manuscripts as reprints or as part of any reproduction of the issue or volume in which they appear, by any means, including without limit electronic means or microfilm.

Comments and Responses: Comments on or responses to articles or review essays in the form of brief, scholarly statements will be published at the discretion of the Editors or Review Section Editor.

Announcement from the Editor

We are pleased to announce that beginning in 1988 there will be some exciting changes in the American Bar Foundation Research Journal. To serve our current readership better and to broaden our circulation, the new developments will include:

- A new name—the Journal title will be changed to Law and Social Inquiry: Journal of the American Bar Foundation
- A new numbering system—volumes of Law and Social Inquiry will be numbered from Volume 13 effective with issue 1 of 1988
- A new design—both in appearance and format
- Production of Law and Social Inquiry on a regular quarterly schedule

With these improvements, we will be better able to bring you the finest articles and review essays in sociolegal research. Our name change will describe the contents of the journal more effectively to potential subscribers and readers, with the result that the research and debates we report will be disseminated more widely. Altogether we expect that these changes will increase the impact of Law and Social Inquiry not only on the vigorous field of socio-legal studies but also on public and professional discourse.
