Jane Austen's Names Riddles, Persons, Places Margaret Doody

“A brilliant, provocative, and important book. Doody has marshaled a truly unprecedented array of material about names, places, and plotting culled from a dazzlingly expansive reading of eighteenth- and early nineteenth-century novels—as well as books on local history and the English countryside. The result is an illuminating and enjoyable book that teaches us to think about Austen’s artistry in a fundamentally new way.”—Claudia L. Johnson, author of Jane Austen’s Cults and Cultures
CLOTH $35.00

The Reformation of Emotions in the Age of Shakespeare Steven Mullaney

“An important book by an important critic. Mullaney gives historical depth to the affective turn in early modern studies, linking Reformation texts to the emotions they generated. What he has to say is always subtle, revelatory, and rhetorically brilliant.”—Jean E. Howard, Columbia University
CLOTH $35.00

The Animal Claim Sensibility and the Creaturely Voice Tobias Menely

“The Animal Claim accomplishes what many would consider the impossible feat of making eighteenth-century poetry a matter of pressing concern to a wide range of fields. This book is one of the most convincing accounts of the enduring relevance of the eighteenth century to our own moment that I have ever read.”—Helen Deutsch, University of California, Los Angeles
PAPER $30.00

Preserving the Spell

Basile’s The Tale of Tales and Its Afterlife in the Fairy-Tale Tradition

Armando Maggi

“A wonderfully original work. Maggi’s analysis is erudite but adventurous, and he is an exacting, inquisitive, and often brilliant reader. He combines and links the macroscopic—the consideration of major questions in literary and cultural history—and the microscopic—extended close readings—in exemplary fashion.”—Nancy L. Canepa, Dartmouth College

Katherine Parr

Complete Works and Correspondence

Edited by Janel Mueller

“Early modernists will be long indebted to Janel Mueller for her sumptuous edition of Katherine Parr’s Complete Works and Correspondence.”—Studies in English Literature 1500–1900
PAPER $50.00

Humoring the Body

Emotions and the Shakespearean Stage

Gail Kern Paster

“Humoring the Body challenges our familiar understanding of the relationship between early modern subjects and their surroundings. Paster reveals a Shakespearean landscape saturated in feeling. . . . Paster’s book is lively, colourful and often very funny. Its most striking achievement is to reveal not only how Shakespeare’s men and women inhabited the world, but also how the world inhabited them in return.”—Times Literary Supplement

Approaches to Teaching Cervantes's Don Quixote

SECOND EDITION

James A. Parr and Lisa Vollendorf, eds.

"The new edition reflects an updating of the critical scholarship on Don Quixote and introduces new ideas based on advances in media and on the interests of the twenty-first-century student. The breadth of imaginative approaches is truly valuable."

—William H. Clamurro, Emporia State University

Approaches to Teaching Tolkien's The Lord of the Rings and Other Works

Leslie A. Donovan, ed.

"This work fills a major need. It will give graduate students and experienced professors alike the confidence to teach Tolkien and the ability to construct a meaningful and challenging course."

—Janet Brennan Croft, University of Oklahoma

Approaches to Teaching the Works of Jack London

Kenneth K. Brandt and Jeanne Campbell Reesman, eds.

"This outstanding volume invites instructors to consider a much larger number of works than are generally assigned. It provides a solid grounding in the literary and historical context necessary for newcomers to London and fresh ideas for those who have taught the canonical texts before."

—John Dudley, University of South Dakota
