THE JOURNAL OF LEGAL HISTORY

Editor: Andrew Lewis, University College London, UK

The aim of The Journal of Legal History is to publish not only articles and book reviews of the history of the law of the British Isles, but also contributions in English on significant developments in the countries of the Commonwealth and the USA, not necessarily limited to the common law tradition. Articles on the legal history of continental Europe and other countries are also featured. Besides original work on traditional medieval and early modern law, the editors publish research on important contemporary problems in the light of their history.

Recent and forthcoming articles

Clarendon Press £17.95

Tort Law and Economic Interests

PETER CANE

This study examines the extent to which the law of torts is designed to provide protection against actual or potential loss of wealth.

0 19 825236 6, 560 pages,
Clarendon Press £60.00

Precedent in English Law

Fourth Edition

SIR RUPERT CROSS and
J. W. HARRIS

In a completely updated new edition of the most comprehensive account of precedent in English law, the current doctrine of precedent is set in the wider context of the jurisprudential problems which any treatment of the topic involves.
