

ANNOUNCING . . .

A major study of the role of law school training in the preparation of lawyers

THE MAKING OF A PUBLIC PROFESSION

By Frances Kahn Zemans and Victor G. Rosenblum

This study describes the formal role of law school training in the preparation of lawyers and considers how this role affects the legal profession as a whole. Drawing on a survey of about 550 practicing lawyers in Chicago, it connects in-school and in-practice experiences to assess professional schooling within the context of socialization. Tables present data on variations in background, type of law school, nature of practice, and years at the bar, and the relations of these variables to motivation for entering the profession, academic performance, evaluations of law schools' contributions to skills and knowledge important to law practice, and perceptions of professional responsibility.

Integrating their findings with those of other empirical studies, the authors appraise criticisms of formal legal education and various proposed reforms.

Cloth Edition $12.00*

Paper Edition $5.00*

xvi + 247 pp.

February 1981

---

An important new work on how to regulate legal service plans effectively

Research Contributions 1981, No. 2

A PROPOSED ACT TO REGULATE LEGAL EXPENSE INSURANCE

By Werner Pfennigstorf and Spencer L. Kimball

Recently, interest in legal expense insurance, also known as prepaid legal services, has grown among consumers, employers, and especially insurers. We can thus expect increased pressure on state legislatures to smooth the way for this new form of coverage. It is therefore an opportune time for a new edition of the proposed model act that the authors prepared in 1977 for the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. The authors believe that legislative action is necessary to remove the uncertainty in many states about the regulatory requirements and restrictions applicable to legal expense insurance, and to provide a regulatory framework within which legal service financing and delivery systems can freely develop while the public is adequately protected against unsound or fraudulent schemes. The model act is accompanied by comments on individual sections and is preceded by an introduction, which sets out the authors' regulatory philosophy on legal expense insurance and legal service plans generally. Paper 39 pp. $2.00*

---

Research Contributions 1981, No. 1

DOING INSURANCE BUSINESS ABROAD

By Werner Pfennigstorf

The emphasis of this monograph is on the legal issues of engaging in the insurance business abroad and especially on those relating to government regulation of the insurance business. Paper 22 pp. $2.00*

*Include $1.50 for shipping and handling

Order from:

American Bar Foundation
Dissemination Department
1155 East 60th Street
Chicago, Illinois 60637

