
National Endowment for the Humanities 1973-74
Program Announcement Brochure

The 1973-74 Program Announcement Brochure for the National Endowment for the Humanities is now available by writing to the Endowment, 806 15th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20506. The brochure contains information on educational programs, research grants, fellowships, and youth grants.

SSRC Fellowship and Grant Programs for 1973-74

The Social Science Research Council and the American Council of Learned Societies have announced fellowship and grant programs for 1973-74. Detailed information on Research Training Fellowships; Grants to Minority Scholars for Research on Racism and other Social Factors in Mental Health; Fellowships for Advanced Graduate training and field research on foreign areas (Africa, Asia, Latin America, the Caribbean, Near East, and Western Europe); and Grants to Scholars for Research on Foreign Areas are available by writing to the Social Science Research Council, 110 East 59th Street, New York, New York 10022.

Announcement of Awards

SSRC-ACLS Fellowships

The Social Science Research Council and the American Council of Learned Societies have announced the following awards:

Study of East European Languages

Thomas A. Oleszczuk, University of Wisconsin.

James H. Seroka, Michigan State University.

Africa and the Near East

James Bingen, University of California, Los Angeles, for research in Zaire on the role of U.S. aid in the Republic of Zaire.

Gary Schiff, Columbia University, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation on tradition and politics: the religious parties of Israel.

Neal Sherman, University of Wisconsin, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation on Uganda government dairy policies.

East Asia Studies

Richard Gaulton, Cornell University, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation in Hong Kong and the United States on political control and popular mobilization in Shanghai during the takeover by the Communist Party.

Daniel Okimoto, University of Michigan, for preliminary training in the United States and research in Japan on the impact of language on politics.

Vivienne Shue, Harvard University, for research in Hong Kong on political organization in rural China.

Ralph Thaxton, University of Wisconsin, for research in Taiwan on peasant revolution in China.

South Asia Studies

Rakhahari Chatterji, University of Chicago, for research in India on the political role of its labor unions.

Southeast Asia Studies

Ronnie Lee Hatley, Yale University, for preparation of a dissertation in the United States on psychological responses to the social and political changes in Indonesia, 1968-73.

Margaret Roff, Columbia University, for preparation of a dissertation in the United States on the political mobilization of tribal people in Southeast Asia.

Western European Program

Franklin H. Adler, University of Chicago, for research in Italy on the political development of the industrial bourgeoisie, 1906-26.

Lyndelle D. Fairlie, Indiana University, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation in England and the United States on the role of Conservative and Labor Party secretary-agents in English constituencies.

Anthony F. Greco, Columbia University, for research in Italy on the political evolution of the Confederation of Italian Labor Unions.

Dennis Lacorne, Yale University, for completion of research in France on Communist and Socialist elites.

Michael S. Lund, University of Chicago, for training in empirical comparative research and research in England on the influence of welfare policy elites on antipoverty legislation in the United Kingdom, 1964-72.

Jerry L. Ulrich, University of Chicago, for completion of research and preparation of a dissertation in England and the United States on political culture and the expansion of political participation in England, 1850-1900.

Latin America and Caribbean Program

Bruce Bagley, University of California, Los Angeles, for research on power and politics in Colombia: decision making under the Frente Nacional, 1958-74, in affiliation with the Department of Political Science, University of the Andes.

Paul A. Ballard, Columbia University, for research on political leadership, informal groups, and the role of the Mexican federal government in industrial development in affiliation with the College of Mexico.

William M. Berenson, Vanderbilt University, for research on bureaucracy and bureaucratic elites in Uruguay, in affiliation with the National Office of Civil Service.

Robert D. Bond, Vanderbilt University, for research on the bureaucracy and bureaucratic elites in Venezuelan polity, in affiliation with Andres Bello Catholic University.

Linn A. Hammergren, University of Wisconsin, for research on national institutional integration in Peru, in affiliation with the National University of San Agustin.

Cynthia McClintock, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, for research on agrarian structures and peasant attitudes and behavior, in affiliation with the Catholic University of Peru.

A. Israel Rivera-Ortiz, State University of New York, Buffalo, for research on the political environment of organizations dealing with development, in affiliation with the University of the Andes, Bogota.

Mitchell A. Seligson, University of Pittsburgh, for research on peasant attitudes and behavior in relation to land tenure patterns, in affiliation with the University of Costa Rica.

Brian H. Smith, Yale University for research on working class politics and the transition to socialism in Chile.

William C. Smith, Jr., Stanford University, for research on political concomitants of industrialization in Argentina, in affiliation with the Torcuato Di Tella Institute, Buenos Aires.

Barbara B. Stallings, Stanford University, for research on leadership and strategies of development in Chile, in affiliation with the Center for National Planning Studies and the Latin American Faculty of Social Sciences, Santiago.

United Kingdom

Peter F. Bird, University of Toronto, for Spanish language training at the Francisco Marroquin Linguistic Project, Antigua, Guatemala, and graduate study at the University of Toronto, including Latin American studies.

Kenneth H. Hundert, University of Western Ontario, for Spanish language training at the Francisco Marroquin Linguistic Project, Antigua, Guatemala, and graduate study at the University of Western Ontario, including Latin American Studies.

Collaborative Research Training Fellowships

Robert L. Stone, University of Chicago.
Nelson Traquina, University of Denver.

Bernard Rosenberg, University of California, Los Angeles.

David A. Silberstein, Yale University.

Inter-American Research Training Seminars

Clair Brooks, University of Kansas.

Jose Garcia, Chico State University.

Elisa Reis, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Roger Anderson, Bowling Green State University.

John Corbett, University of Colorado.

Gabriel Murillo, University of the Andes, Bogota.

Ten political scientists have received awards in joint programs conducted by the Social Science Research Council and the American Council for Learned Societies. The awards are as follows:

Post Doctoral Research Grants in East European Studies

Jan B. de Weydenthal, College of William and Mary: The social factor in Communist political change: the workers' rebellion in Poland.

Lubos G. Hejl, University of Rochester: A macrosociological analysis of the "Czechoslovak quarter of a century," 1945-69.

Josef Korbek, University of Denver: 20th Century Czechoslovakia.

Andrzej Korbonski, University of California, Los Angeles: The Warsaw Uprising of 1944.

Peter R. Prifti, Massachusetts Institute of Technology: The domestic and foreign aspects of socialist Albania.

Samuel L. Sharp, American University: Socio-economic and political impact of Yugoslav labor migration.

Thomas A. Oleszczuk, University of Wisconsin, for a study of the Serbo-Croatian language.

James H. Seroka, Michigan State University, for a study of the Serbo-Croatian language.

Post Doctoral Research Awards

Manuel G. Gonzales, Diablo Valley College: Andrea Costa and the rise of socialism in northern Italy.

Elizabeth W. Marvick, Claremont Graduate School: A psychoanalytic study of the reign of Louis XIII and Richelieu.

1973-74 Ford Foundation Graduate Fellowships for American Indians, Mexican-Americans, Puerto Ricans and Black Americans

The Ford Foundation has announced awards for 33 graduate fellowships in political science to American Indian, Mexican-American, Puerto Rican and Black Americans under its program to assist graduate education to individuals from disadvantaged groups. The Fellows were required to meet the following criteria: they must be U.S. citizens engaged in or planning to pursue a career in higher education, they must have strong academic abilities, and must be enrolled in or planning to enter a U.S. graduate school offering the doctorate. The awards, which average $6,300 to cover full tuition and fees plus a monthly stipend, are made for one year but are renewable.

Fellowship winners in political science are: Ralph Chris Carmona, University of California, Santa Barbara; Nand E. Hart-Nibbrig, University of California, Berkeley; Isa M. Infante, Yale University; Armando Navarro, University of California, Riverside; Joseph Robert Rocha, Claremont Graduate School; Eugene A. Stovall III, University of California, Berkeley; Duane R. Taylor, Brandeis University; Cheryl L. Brown, University of Michigan; Benjamin Lomax, University of Kansas; John E. Clark, Atlanta University; Martin Lee Jankowski, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Lester P. Lee, Johns Hopkins University; Alma H. Young, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Gayleatha B. Cobb, Johns Hopkins University; Roberto Mori, Princeton University; Montanna L. Morton, Princeton University; Antonio Arrey, University of Dallas; John Phillip Olguin, Indiana University; Julio Berrios, Columbia University; Dorothy A. Brizill, Columbia University; George Arthur Lopez, Syracuse University; Jose A. Pacheco, Yale University; Ramadier Rodriguez, City University of New York; Jose Rojas, Yale University; Preston M. Yancy, Syracuse University; Calvin F. Young, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Osvaldo R. Aviles, Princeton University; Ronald Blackburn, Princeton University; Juan R. Fernandez, City University of New York; Marian Galvan, Claremont Graduate School; Christine Marie Sierra, Stanford University; Marguerita D. Ragsdale, University of Virginia; and Robert Johnson Franco, University of Washington.

1973-74 Fulbright-Hays Award Winners

Six political scientist faculty and graduate students are among the 1973-74 Fulbright-Hays Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act Award Winners. They will participate in study or teaching activities abroad. The political science winners are: Henry A. Turner, University of California, Santa Barbara; Lynn D. Bartlett, University of California, Davis; Sue A. Smethills, Temple Buell College; Robert R. Bezdek, Ohio State University; William J. Parente, University of Scranton; and Zachary T. Irwin.

Conference Group on German Politics

Two political scientists have been selected as Scholars in Residence for 1973-74 by the Conference Group on German Politics. They are Howard Federspiel of Winthrop College who will serve with the City Planning Division of the City of Munich, and Peter Etzkorn of the University of Missouri, St. Louis, who will serve at the Ministry of Science and Education in Bonn. Etzkorn's award has been incorrectly announced in the summer PS.

A research award has been made by the Conference Group to Arthur B. Gunlicks of the University of Richmond to do a comparative study of state-city relations in Virginia and Lower Saxony.

AREAS of study ARENAS of conflict

Science and Politics

by Jean-Jacques Salomon
$15.00

Scientists and Public Affairs

edited by Albert H. Teich
$14.95

Before the Revolution:

The Vietnamese Peasants under the French
by Ngo Vinh Long
$12.50

Radical Politics in South Asia

edited by Paul R. Brass and Marcus F. Franda
$15.00

The Secret Army:

A History of the IRA
by J. Bowyer Bell
This new paperback edition of an important book contains additional material that brings the story right up to the present.

$3.95

Englishmen and Irish Troubles:

British Public Opinion and the Making of Irish Policy 1918-1922
by D. G. Boyce
$10.00

The Revolution and the Civil War in Spain

by Pierre Broué and Emile Témime
$12.50

THE MIT PRESS

Massachusetts Institute of Technology
Cambridge, Massachusetts
02142