Transitions: Asia and the Pacific

Mark Selden, series editor

The Asia/Pacific region stands at a crossroads, riven by the competing forces of socialism and capitalism, tradition and modernity, nationalism and globalism. The books in this series will explore broad themes of transition—the human, ecological, and civilizational consequences of economic development, political and military conflict, and of social and cultural transformation.

CHINA'S POLITICAL SYSTEM
Modernization and Tradition
JUNE TEUFEL DREYER

How will China cope with the aftermath of Tiananmen Square? How is the country reacting to events in the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe? This exciting new text offers unsurpassed coverage of the political terrain of the world's largest remaining communist state. Written especially for introductory level courses in Chinese politics, the book offers a comprehensive overview of the workings of the government, issues of current interest, and a balanced assessment of policy successes and failures. Among the topics addressed:

- the state of the Chinese economy
- health and family-planning policies
- politics and the arts
- environmental issues
- the fate and future role of the military
- ethnic minorities and national integration
- and more.

An engaging and rewarding work suitable for courses in Asian studies.

Japan's Capitalism: Creative Defeat and Beyond

Shigeto Tsuru

Foreword by John Kenneth Galbraith

In this book, one of Japan's most eminent economists gives a comprehensive account of the recovery process after the Second World War and a unique interpretation of the post-war Japanese economy, both as political economist, and as government advisor over most of the period. He analyzes the welfare significance of Japan's money-oriented affluence, and the emergence of a distinctive corporate capitalism.

The Culture of Flowers

Jack Goody

Spanning a variety of disciplines and four millennia of human civilization, this book examines the symbolic and transactional uses of flowers in secular life and religious ritual. Jack Goody links the use of flowers to the rise of advanced systems of agriculture, the growth of social stratification and the spread of luxury goods. A particular feature of the book is its analysis of the flowers in the Far East and of the aesthetic and political implications of flowers in China during the cultural revolution.

Policing and Punishment in China

From Patriarchy to the 'the People'

Michael R. Dutton

This book traces the transition in the regimes of regulation and punishment through late imperial to modern China, an area long neglected in Chinese studies. Particularly significant for its theoretical framework, it is not a simple narrative history of policing, but rather draws on Michel Foucault's theoretical work on governmentality, punishment, and control, using his genealogical method to construct a "history of the present." While most Chinese Marxist accounts of history have assumed the sublimation of the past as a precondition for the present, Dr. Dutton shows that "feudal relics" do play a part in the social regulation of contemporary China.

Jerome Silbergeld with Gong Jisui

Since the advent of socialism in China, no mainland Chinese artist has dared expose his life in detail. As a result, little is known outside China of how artistic life is lived or of the system that regulates it. In exploring the career of Li Huasheng, who represents the first generation of artists raised and trained in the People's Republic of China, this biographical study reveals for the first time both the details and the character of artistic life in socialist China.

NATIONAL UNIVERSITY OF SINGAPORE

Department Of Japanese Studies

Applications are invited for teaching appointments in the Department of Japanese Studies from candidates who possess a relevant PhD degree or who expect to obtain this degree shortly. The Department has currently about 600 students doing courses in language, literature, history, economics, sociology, management and politics at the undergraduate level. It has also a small coterie of graduate students.

Preference will be given to candidates who can teach in two of the following areas:

Japanese Economic History
Japanese History
Japanese Economics and/or Management

or one of the above areas and another area taught in the Department (eg. Politics, Sociology and Culture).

Besides appointments on normal 3-year contracts, visiting appointments for one or two years will also be considered.

Gross annual emoluments range as follows:

Lecturer	S$50,390 – 64,200
Senior Lecturer	S$58,680 – 100,310
Associate Professor	S$88,650 – 122,870

The commencing salary will depend on the candidate's qualifications, experience and the level of appointment offered.

Leave and medical benefits will be provided. Depending on the type of contract offered, other benefits may include: provident fund benefits or an end-of-contract gratuity, a settling-in allowance of S$1,000 or S$2,000, subsidised housing, education allowance for up to three children subject to a maximum of S$16,425 per annum per child, passage assistance and baggage allowance for the transportation of personal effects to Singapore. Staff members may undertake consultation work, subject to the approval of the University, and retain consultation fees up to a maximum of 60% of their gross annual emoluments in a calendar year.

The Department of Japanese Studies is a department in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences. There are eight faculties in the National University of Singapore with a current student enrolment of some 18,000. All departments are well-equipped with a wide range of facilities for teaching and research.

All academic staff have access to the following computer and telecommunication resources; an individual microcomputer (an IBM AT-compatible or Apple Macintosh); an IBM mainframe computer with 16 MIPS of computing power; an NEC SX supercomputer with 650 MFLOPS of computing power; departmental laser printers; a wide spectrum of mainframe and microcomputer software; voice-mail. A campus-wide network, which is based on the high speed optical fibre based FDDI technology, links up all the academic staff and student microcomputers, UNIX workstations and provides access to the mainframe computer, the supercomputer, UNIX hosts, the on-line library catalogue, CD-ROM databases, Televue, Internet and BITNET.

Plundering Paradise

The Struggle for the Environment in the Philippines

ROBIN BROAD

with JOHN CAVANAGH

Foreword by Barbara Ebreneich

"This is a wonderfully illuminating book, confronting us with both the realities of environmental destruction in a Third World setting and the promise of grassroots democracy as a creative and vital force in the struggle to save the planet, as well as to sustain the livelihood of immediately affected communities."

Sugar and the Origins of Modern Philippine Society

JOHN A. LARKIN

The sugar industry has been a vital part of the economic and social life of modern Philippine society. Larkin examines how both the Filipino people and colonizing forces participated in this industry and how two types of society emerged: one based on plantation agriculture, the other on tenant farming.

Religious Nationalism
Confronts the Secular State
MARK JUERGENSMEYER

"This is an indispensable book in helping us understand the new world disorder that seems to be overtaking us. Juergensmeyer points out that much of the world neither understands nor finds attractive the idea of a "secular state." He helps us see that religious nationalism is a fact of life that will be with us for a long time to come. ."

Claiming the High Ground

Sherpas, Subsistence, and Environmental Change in the Highest Himalaya

STANLEY F. STEVENS

The Khumbu Sherpas, famous for their mountaineering exploits, have frequently been depicted as victims of the world's highest-altitude tourist boom. But has the flow of outsiders to Mt. Everest and the heights of Nepal in fact destroyed a stable, finely balanced relationship between the Sherpas and their environment? Stevens's innovative use of oral history and cultural ecology suggests that tourism is not the watershed circumstance many have considered it to be.

Japan's Orient

Rendering Pasts into History
STEFAN TANAKA

In this absorbing study, Tanaka examines how Japanese historians during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries created the equivalent of an "Orient" for their new nation state. After the Meiji Restoration, Japan faced the necessity of becoming modern while both shedding the Western characterization of "Oriental" and maintaining its own identity. The concept of toyoshi (Oriental studies) made it possible to fit the changes of the previous century into a comprehensive ideological system.

A HISTORY OF CHINESE MEDICINE

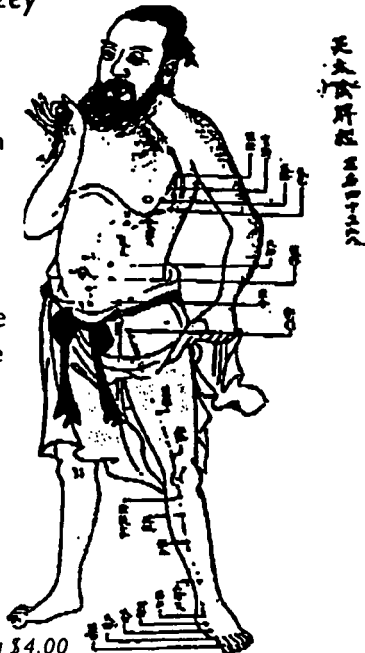

Dominique Hoizey and Marie-Joseph Hoizey

Translated from the French by Paul Bailey

From the legendary Fire Emperor and his magical whisk to herbal solutions for the modern population crisis, this is the first European account of medicine in China from the earliest times to the present day. The authors examine the myth and legend of the Shang dynasty and discuss the theories of yin and yang and the five elements, pointing out that by the time of the Tang dynasty China was considered the medical centre of Asia and significantly influenced the development of Arab medicine.

PURPOSE AND ORGANIZATION

The Association for Asian Studies is a scholarly, non-political, and non-profit professional association open to all persons interested in Asia and the study of Asia. It seeks through publications, meetings, and seminars to facilitate contact and exchange of information among scholars and to increase understanding of Asia. The Association for Asian Studies is the largest society of its kind in the world. Its 7,000 members include scholars, teachers, business people, diplomats, journalists, and interested laypersons.

Founded in 1941 as the Far Eastern Association, the organization was renamed the Association for Asian Studies in 1957 to reflect the wider geographic interests of its membership. In 1970, four elective area Councils—South Asia, Southeast Asia, China and Inner Asia, and Northeast Asia—were established to guarantee each area constituency its own representation and a proportionate voice on the Board of Directors. In 1977, a Council of Conferences was established as a liaison with eight regional conferences throughout the United States to serve the needs of those interested in Asian studies in different parts of the country. The Association is a member of the American Council of Learned Societies and the National Council of Area Studies Associations, actively participating with its sister societies in a wide range of activities, including joint participation in research and informational exchanges.

Publications of the Association include The Journal of Asian Studies, the Bibliography of Asian Studies, Doctoral Dissertations on Asia, the Asian Studies Newsletter, the Monograph Series, and committee publications. The Association holds a three-day meeting each spring devoted to planned programs of scholarly papers, round table discussions and panel sessions on a wide range of problems in research and teaching, and on Asian affairs in general. From time to time, it sponsors, through its committees, special conferences on research problems and other matters of topical interest.

MEMBERSHIP INFORMATION

Membership in the Association for Asian Studies is open to all persons interested in Asia and the scholarly study of Asia. Regular Membership dues are based on gross income: Below $20,000/yr = $25; $20,000–$40,000/yr = $40; $40,000–$60,000/yr = $50; above $60,000/yr = $60. Associate Membership (Spouse of Member) = $15. Supporting Membership = $15. Patron = $1,000 or more. Regular and Patron members receive The Journal of Asian Studies; all members except Associates receive the Asian Studies Newsletter.

All correspondence regarding membership, subscriptions, advertising, reprints, or business should be addressed to the office of the Association for Asian Studies at Room 1, Lane Hall, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, MI 48109.

Chan Insights and Oversights

An Epistemological Critique of the Chan Tradition

Bernard Faure

As Bernard Faure examines the study of Chan/Zen from the standpoint of postmodern human sciences and literary criticism, he demonstrates how both West and East have come to overlook significant components of a complex and elusive tradition. Throughout the book Faure reveals surprising hidden agendas in the modern enterprise of Chan studies and in Chan itself.

Taoist Ritual and Popular Cults of Southeast China

Kenneth Dean

Since 1979, when the Chinese government relaxed some of its most stringent controls on religion, villagers in the isolated areas of Southeast China have maintained an "underground" effort to restore traditional rituals and local cults. Kenneth Dean argues that Taoist ritual provides the underlying structure for this unexpected revival of regional cults.

"This is an extremely important book. There is nothing else like it in the field, particularly in its detailed depiction of local religion in the People's Republic. Kenneth Dean has made a major new contribution to Chinese Studies."

Enchantment and Disenchantment

Love and Illusion in Chinese Literature

Wai-yee Li

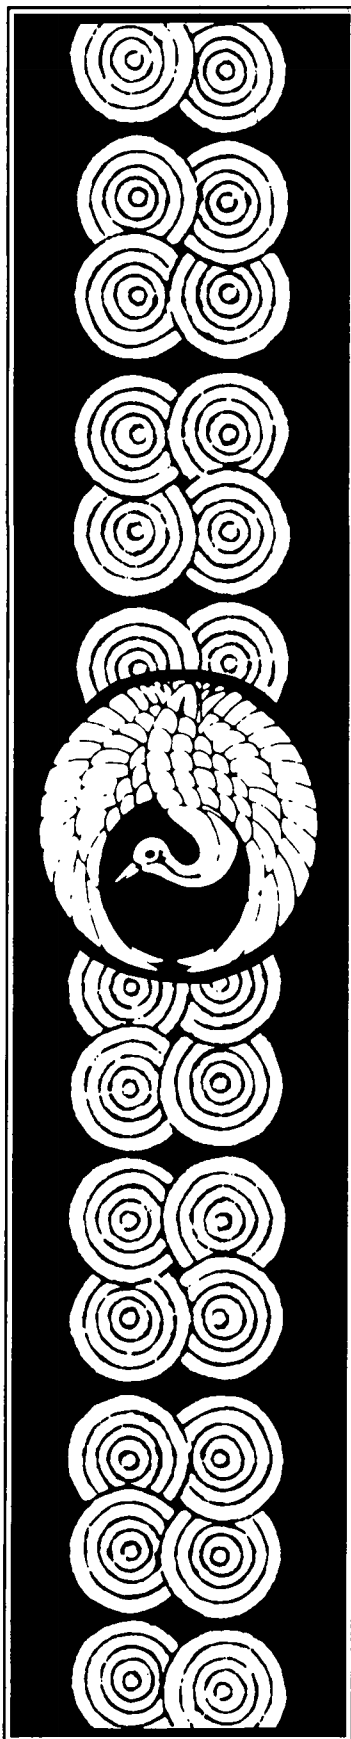

In a famous episode of the eighteenth-century masterpiece The Dream of the Red Chamber, the goddess Disenchantment tells the hero, Pao-yü, that the purpose of his dream visit is "disenchantment through enchantment." Examining a range of genres from different periods, Wai-yee Li reveals the persistence of the dialectic embodied by the goddess.
