

NEW EDITION
The Story of Nigeria

By MICHAEL CROWDER

This well-known book has established itself as the best history of Nigeria both for the student and the general reader. For the fourth edition Professor Crowder has made revisions to the text in the light of the new nineteen-state structure of the country, and revised some of the appendices. He has added a new chapter on the period 1960-1970 as well as a postscript which brings the history of Nigeria up-to-date.

Of this new edition West Africa said: "The Story of Nigeria, again revised, and in its fourth edition – it was first published in 1962 – is still the best introduction to Nigeria on the market. It is clear and concise, fully annotated and has valuable tables in the appendices . . ."

Of the third edition The Times Literary Supplement said: "The Story of Nigeria remains not only a useful book for those looking for an eminently manageable introduction to the history of the most important independent nation of Black Africa but is still unsurpassed – and as a one-man feat, in all probability unsurpassable – for the next decade as a concise history of Nigeria."

Hard covers £6.95; Faber Paperbacks £3.95; Nigerian Edition £2.25 non-net.

The Rulers of British Africa, 1870-1914

L. H. Gann & Peter Duignan. This history of the formative years of Britain's empire in Africa focuses on the administrative, technical, and military personnel, both on the scene and in London, who actually conquered, built, and governed the British colonies. It assesses their performance—their successes and their failures—and also gives information on such matters as educational and class background, ideology, and subsequent careers. The full spectrum of governing personnel is covered: Colonial Office officials, military and police forces, colonial governors, district officers, African assistants, and specialists such as physicians, engineers, and educators. $18.50

Trade without Rulers

Pre-colonial Economic Development in South-Eastern Nigeria

David Northrup

Pre-colonial south-eastern Nigeria had a dense population and vigorous internal and external trade, but lacked large-scale political units. As the author shows, complex marketing networks enabled this 'stateless' region to function as an economic unit long before the arrival of the first Europeans. He examines the operation and effect of the overseas slave trade in the region, in terms of its previous economic development. The final chapters describe the social and economic adjustments by which the area made a successful transition to a 'legitimate' export trade in palm oil in the early nineteenth century. £9 Oxford Studies in African Affairs

Clan Leaders and Colonial Chiefs in Lango

The Political History of an East African Stateless Society
c. 1800–1939

John Tosh

This book studies the Langi, one of Uganda's major peoples, and reconstructs their history for the first time. It spans the period from the formation of Lango society in the early nineteenth century to the middle of the colonial era. The author advances the study of stateless societies (i.e. those without kings or chiefs) by stepping outside the conventional demarcation between pre-colonial and colonial history. He also contributes to our understanding of local-level political change in Africa by tracing the changing forms of political leadership in Lango. £11.50 Oxford Studies in African Affairs

A HISTORY OF AFRICA

A definitive single-volume history of Africa

by John Donnelly Fage

Deftly tracing the complex history of the vast African continent and its people from prehistoric times to the present, Professor Fage argues that the development of African society must be charted on its own terms; that Western history does not provide the model for the evolution of all societies. He shows how, despite the powerful impact of Asian and European mores, economic exploitation, and conquests, Africa has retained its unique cultural and historical identity.

Beginning at the beginning, Professor Fage leads us from the first appearance of African man through the acquisition of the agricultural and other skills that made it possible for them to create the first politically and economically complex societies.

This is Part I, "The Internal Development of African Society." Parts II and III, "The Impact of Islam" and "Africa in the Age of European Expansion"—reveal how Africa turned Islamic and European influences to her own use. Part IV, "Africa in the Modern World," follows the story from the colonial period to the resumption of independence soon after World War II. Students will gain a new appreciation for the uniqueness of the African experience from this fascinating and authoritative overview.

THE LAGOS CONSULATE 1851-1861

Robert S Smith

This book covers the crucial period from 1851–1861 in Nigerian history which saw the transition of Lagos and its surrounding territory from autonomy to colonial rule. It provides a detailed study of the form of embryonic colonial rule sometimes known as 'informal rule', as well as throwing light on the pre-colonial history of South-Western Nigeria.

African History

Editors: P. D. Curtin, S. Feierman,
L. Thompson and J. Vansina

A new book celebrating the coming of age of African history, representing a quarter of a century of research by scholars from Africa, Europe and America. It traces African history from the roots of African cultures in the late Stone Age through to the liquidation of European Empire. Providing a broader conception of history than in the usual textbook, it emphasises social, intellectual and economic trends.

CONTRIBUTIONS

Contributions to the Journal are welcomed. They may be submitted in either English or French. They should not exceed about 6000 words (excluding footnotes), except with the prior approval of the Editors. A summary of the contents of the article, not exceeding about 300 words in length, should be attached on a separate sheet. Contributors are asked to observe closely the conventions listed in the Notes for Contributors, Vol. XV, pp. 173-4. It is essential that contributors observe these conventions, as the Journal now goes straight into page proof. This severely limits the number of corrections which are possible.

Page proofs will be sent, if necessary by airmail, to each contributor (or his nominee) provided that the Editors have been given an address through which he can be reached without delay. Corrections should be kept to the minimum, and should be corrections, not new material. If they are to be incorporated in the master proof corrected by the Editors, it is important that the contributor should return the page proofs, by airmail if necessary, to the Editor named when they are sent out (and not to the Cambridge University Press), within ten days of his receipt of them.

Contributors of articles and review articles receive 25 free offprints. Additional offprints may be obtained at reasonable cost, provided that they are ordered before publication on the special form sent out with the page proofs.

All contributions and books for review should be addressed to The Editors, The Journal of African History, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, London, W.C.1.
