

International Organization Prize Award

To encourage creative writing by younger scholars in the broad field of United Nations and international organization affairs, the Board of Editors is pleased to announce the establishment of an International Organization Prize Award in the amount of $300. This shall be for the best manuscript submitted on or before March 1, 1964, by an author not more than 32 years old on a theme of the author's choice in the field of international organization affairs.

Manuscripts may be on any aspect—political, economic, technical, or legal—of United Nations affairs, on the activities of other organizations including regional systems, or on theoretical aspects of international organization. In considering the manuscripts the judges will pay particular attention to

- (a) their scholarly character,
- (b) their original contribution to knowledge,
- (c) their relevance to the field of international organization, and
- (d) the gracefulness of their style and composition.

Manuscripts submitted for the International Organization Prize Award should not exceed 30 double-spaced, 8½" x 11", typed pages, including footnotes. Manuscripts should be accompanied by a curriculum vitae of the author, including his date and place of birth. A manuscript submitted for the Award must be plainly marked as such and dated.

Manuscripts submitted for this Prize shall become the property of the Board of Editors. The Board reserves the right to make no award if, in its judgment, no manuscript submitted is worthy of receiving the Prize.

The prize-winning article will be published in International Organization. Other manuscripts judged of special merit may be awarded Honorable Mention and will be considered for publication in International Organization. Manuscripts accepted for publication will be accorded the customary reprint privileges.

Manuscripts will be judged by a committee of three members of the Board of Editors. Awards will be announced in the Summer 1964 issue of the magazine.
