
Editorial Note

This issue introduces a new concept, “Review Essay Notes,” which will present brief essays that extend the discussion of already published Review Essays. The purpose of these notes is to promote constructive dialog about the boundaries of our field. The first Review Essay Note appears on pages 389–91. We invite other scholars to consider submitting such contributions in response to Review Essays published in Law & Society Review.

—Nancy Reichman, Review Essays Editor