EDUCATION SINCE UHURU

The Schools of Kenya

By ERNEST STABLER

A comprehensive review of Kenya's educational developments and problems since independence. Mr Stabler considers the colonial legacy, the current primary system, the harambee schools, and a variety of advanced institutions and teacher-training institutes.

The last section looks sharply at the problems Kenya must face in the coming years: a high rate of population growth and restraints imposed by an agrarian economy, among others.

Mr Stabler is Dean of Althouse College of Education at the University of Western Ontario. Written in a jargon-free style, this work reflects his wide educational experience and common sense—and his first-hand knowledge from two years with the Kenya Ministry of Education.

GENEVA-AFRICA

THE JOURNAL OF THE GENEVA-AFRICA INSTITUTE

Africa in time past lent the European imagination that touch of exotic adventure which its own milieu did not always provide. That time is no more. Africa today seeks her own way through difficulties and incertitudes to which no one open to her desire to meet on terms of equality can remain indifferent.

It is the wish of Geneva-Africa to be an active partner in this unconditional dialogue, and to contribute to a deeper comprehension of the problems and opportunities facing an emergent Africa.

A Historical Geography of Ghana

K. B. DICKSON

This book describes how man has lived on and used the land of Ghana from the earliest times almost up to the present day. It has been written in the belief that the characteristic features and problems of land-use in present-day Ghana can only be fully understood with a sound knowledge of its historical geography. £7 10s. net

Industrialization in an Open Economy

Nigeria 1945 -1966

PETER KILBY

A detailed study of how manufacturing and processing industries have developed in the largest country of West Africa, examined within its historical framework. Dr Kilby shows that the experience of Nigeria's industrialization challenges conventional development theory. 95s. net

The Political Dilemma of Popular Education

AN AFRICAN CASE

David B. Abernethy

In striving for stable political development and rapid economic growth, the new states of Africa and Asia have justifiably placed high priority on the widespread expansion of education. This case study of universal primary education in Southern Nigeria demonstrates, however, that such expansion may create unforeseen new obstacles to modernization. Among them are the burden of the high cost of education on a developing economy, large-scale unemployment among the educated, and low morale among teachers. The author examines the various influences which contributed to Southern Nigeria's early educational history, and in a concluding section he suggests a strategy for maximizing education's contribution to political development. Stanford Studies in Comparative Politics. $10.00

The Politics of Tradition

*Continuity and Change in Northern
Nigeria, 1946-1966*

C. S. Whitaker, Jr.

'... a major contribution to our understanding of the role of tradition in contemporary politics in general and Nigerian politics in particular.'—M. Crawford Young.

Professor Whitaker takes issue with the model of analysis that sees the forces of modernity in inevitable conflict with the traditional patterns of society. Taking Northern Nigeria during the years 1946 to 1966 as an example, he shows how modern institutions—parliamentary representation, a cabinet system, popular suffrage, and political parties—were introduced and how they resulted not in a displacement of tradition but in an astute absorption by traditional forces. He endeavours to show that the contrast between traditional and modern societies has often been exaggerated in the past.

Translated from the Arabic by YOUSEF BEDRI and GEORGE SCOTT,
with an introduction by P. M. HOLT

Babikr Bedri was the outstanding figure in Sudanese education until his death at 94, fifteen years ago. This book, a lively account of a Sudanese childhood nearly a century ago, is also an important historical document, because it spans the period of the Mahdist uprising in which Bedri served as a soldier in the Mahdist army. Imperialism and Nationalism in the Sudan

A Study in Constitutional and Political Development: 1899—1956

MUDDATHIR ABD 'AL RAHIM

The first full-scale study of the constitutional and political development of the Sudan under the Anglo-Egyptian administration of the first half of this century, examined in the context of the cultural and social revolution of the country, and based on hitherto unexplored archives and Arabic sources. 60/- net Frontispiece 63/- net Oxford Studies in African Affairs Forthcoming

A History of the Upper Guinea Coast

WALTER RODNEY

The West African Coast between the Gambia and Cape Mount has a historical, geographical, and ethnical unity despite its arbitrary partitioning between the British, French, and Portuguese in the 19th century. Dr Rodney's study of it is based on the hitherto unexploited archives in the slave trade and other forms of commerce. 5 text-figures. 50/- net Oxford Studies in African Affairs

The Administration of Nigeria 1900-1960

Men, Methods, and Myths

I. F. NICOLSON

The emphasis is on the administrators: what kind of men they were, what they tried to do, their problems, their successes and failures, and the consequences of their actions. It is an account of able, honest stewardship for the most part, although the author has made a drastic reassessment of the work of Lord Lugard. 1 map. 45/- net

THE JOURNAL OF MODERN AFRICAN STUDIES

The Journal offers a quarterly survey of politics, economics, and related topics in contemporary Africa.

The main emphasis is upon the peoples and policies, the problems and progress of this dynamic and disparate continent; upon the many societies that are evolving rather than the essential characteristics of the old; upon the present, not on the more distant past. The best current work is sought from specialists in different academic disciplines, whose contributions can illuminate and cross-fertilise one another.

The Journal seeks to promote a deeper understanding of what is happening in Africa today. It is intended for both the political scientist and the practical politician, the administrator and the advocate, the economist and the educator, the banker and the businessman, the diplomat and the technocrat, the civil servant and the nationalist leader. All have something to contribute to these pages and, it is hoped, much to learn from them.

Editorial policy avoids commitment to any political viewpoint or ideology, whether imperialism, pan-Africanism, capitalism, socialism, or nationalism. Such concepts, however, have relevance to the modern African situation, and merit serious discussion, often from several different points of view, in order that controversial issues may be fairly examined.
