THE TOWNELEY CYCLE

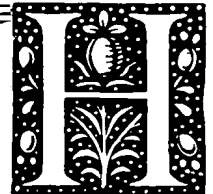

A Facsimile of Huntington MS HM1

With an Introduction by A. C. Cawley and Martin Stevens

Here at last is a facsimile edition of a landmark in English medieval literature. The original manuscript, in the Huntington Library, is the only one in existence. It is reproduced with remarkable fidelity, showing the marks of age and loving use; one page in full color serves as frontispiece. The Cycle includes the well-known Shepherd's Play, once described as a "masterpiece of English religious drama." Critical treatment includes a physical description of the manuscript, a discussion of the format of the various plays, notes on scribal errors and marginalia. Approximate dating for the plays is suggested. An important acquisition for any scholar or professor in the field of Middle English. Paperbound. $24.00

The Complete Works of Washington Irving

Order Now —
2 New Volumes
Available this Month

Prepared under the auspices of the Center for Editions of American Authors, The Complete Works of Washington Irving is the first comprehensive, definitive edition of Irving's writing, including his unpublished letters and journals. It will be published in 27 volumes at the rate of approximately six volumes per year.

Purchasers of the entire edition ordered on a Standing Order basis will receive a discount of 20%. Write for the descriptive brochure with full details.

NEW TITLES

Astoria; or, Anecdotes of an Enterprize beyond the Rocky Mountains

Edited by Richard Dilworth Rust. $25.00

The first of Irving's two Western books, Astoria (1836) is a picturesque chronicle of John Jacob Astor's development of the fur trade in the Northwest Territory.

The Adventures of Captain Bonneville

Edited by Robert A. Rees and Alan Sandy. $25.00

Written as a sequel to Astoria, this work grew out of a meeting between Irving and Captain Bonneville in the home of John Jacob Astor. Irving's interest in the Astor empire in the Northwest Territory naturally extended to Bonneville's recent adventures in the Rocky Mountains, recorded in detailed diaries which Irving worked into The Adventures of Captain Bonneville (1837). This edition contains new illustrations, maps and explanatory notes.

Letters of Jonathan Oldstyle, Gent. and Salmagundi; or The Whim-Whams and Opinions of Launcelot Langstaff, Esq. and Others

Edited by Bruce I. Granger and Martha Hartzog. $25.00

Irving's first two literary efforts, these works reflect his early mastery of wit, satire and the delightful style that is his trademark. The nine Oldstyle letters, written in 1802-03, comment piquantly on the manners and morals of the New York stage. Salmagundi was published in 1806-07 as a satirical periodical that lampooned the social life and personalities of the early American republic. (June 1977).

Hamlet's Castle

The Study of Literature as a Social Experience

By Gordon Mills

Hamlet's Castle examines the process by which a group, typically an academic class, forms a judgment about a literary work. The book is unique in combining forceful theorizing and practical grounding in the art of teaching. 362 pages, illustrated, $14.95

The Sigla of Finnegans Wake

By Roland McHugh

This analysis of the small symbols used by Joyce in his manuscripts to allude to characters, motifs, and themes has been called by Clive Hart "the best single book on Finnegans Wake ever written." 160 pages, $14.95

The Rectory Magazine

We know why you're loyal

Year after year thousands assign THE PRACTICAL STYLIST, and many of you have critiqued it for us. Baker has listened to your suggestions, added his matchless expository skill and flair, to make the fourth edition the most useful ever. There is a new chapter, "Description, Narration, and Process." (Yes, even Process can take The Argumentative Edge!) A new research paper, "America's Classics: When 1850 was Now." A brief but thorough Handbook. An Instructor's Manual.

And hundreds of subtle refinements which show only in the teaching.

The perfect companion to THE PRACTICAL STYLIST. Almost half of these essays are new. All are conveniently summarized in the Table of Contents. There is an expository probe and overview for each piece, and biographical/critical headnotes on each essayist. The third edition still aims for one practical point: How to write an essay.

THE ESSAYIST superbly reinforces the rhetorical concerns of THE PRACTICAL STYLIST as well as those of THE COMPLETE STYLIST AND HANDBOOK.

Who doesn't need a workbook? The revised PROBLEMS IN EXPOSITION FOR THE PRACTICAL STYLIST covers everything—finding a thesis, outlining, punctuation and grammar, spelling and capitalization, footnoting and bibliography. Hundreds of exercises, all very good, and all referenced by page to appropriate chapters in THE PRACTICAL STYLIST. Correction key available to adopters.

If you wish to consider any of these for your course, please write on your letterhead to Cathleen E. Petree, Thomas Y. Crowell Company, 666 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10019

Structuralist Poetics

Structuralism, Linguistics, and the Study of Literature

By JONATHAN CULLER. "Structuralist Poetics is that rare thing, a survey of a broad and complex field of critical inquiry which can clarify ideas for the neophyte while stimulating advanced theorists. The book's strong linguistic emphasis provides a highly useful approach to structuralist thought, and its analysis of the major figures in the movement and their methods is admirable and illuminating. Structuralist Poetics is comprehensive, probing, lucid, and tough-minded; a brilliant contribution to critical discourse."—the Award Citation for the 1975 James Russell Lowell Prize. An Author Index to Selected British 'Little Magazines' 1930-1939

By B. C. Bloomfield

This bibliographical guide indexes, often for the first time, contributions to the literary and artistic 'little magazines' published in the United Kingdom during this important decade. Some 11,000 entries record in full writings that appeared in nearly 75 'little magazines', including minor contributions and book reviews. As an index to the uncollected writings of many major authors as well as to the unlisted works of minor writers and critics, the volume should be of value to all those interested in English creative writing during this period.

The Sovereign Ghost

Studies in Imagination

Denis Donoghue

Donoghue considers the nature and status of imagination in literature taking into account not only the major texts on the poetic imagination, the tradition of esthetics culminating in Coleridge and Richards, but the problematic of imagination raised by current debates in the field of structuralism. In one respect the book offers to mediate between the dominant Romantic tradition in imagination and the structuralist argument.

LITERATURE

ELIZABETHAN EROTIC NARRATIVES

Irony and Pathos in the Ovidian
Poetry of Shakespeare, Marlowe, and Their Contemporaries

William Keach

This incisive, full-length critical study of the epyllion, or Elizabethan erotic mythological narrative, dissolves the mist which has so long enshrouded these poems. The author analyzes the epyllion's characteristic and often disturbing mixture of the comic and the grotesque, the romantic and the brutally physical. Illustrated, $16.00

SAMUEL BECKETT AND THE PESSIMISTIC TRADITION

Steven J. Rosen

Whether lounging in garbage cans, sitting neck-deep in sand, or chatting acidly back and forth between funeral urns, Samuel Beckett's characters express a futility so disturbing and so impressive that it has become the cornerstone of his writing style. Steven J. Rosen's outstanding study of the pessimistic tradition in Beckett's work refutes the critical contention that the meaninglessness of life is the conclusion of Beckett's thematic vision. It shows, instead, that meaninglessness is the springboard from which Beckett's characters are consoled. $12.50

Why interpret meaning in literature?

That's the first question answered by William C. Dowling in The Critic's Hornbook: Reading for Interpretation. Before Dowling and his reader are through with one another, the latter, who began with little more than enthusiasm, will be able to read competently and then write coherently about any poem, play, or novel.

What's new and good about Dowling's Hornbook is that it presents interpretive method in a simplified theoretical context, systematically working from fundamental principles of interpretation towards more general and sophisticated critical concepts. At the same time, Dowling is teaching a way of reading—a foundation upon which the student can operate confidently. The approach has been tested in freshman classes, originally at Harvard, and for a year at the University of New Mexico. The book is self contained, and full of examples. If you would like to consider The Critic's Hornbook for adoption, please write on your letterhead to Cathleen E. Petree, Thomas Y. Crowell Company, 666 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York 10019

Educated Lives

The Rise of Modern Autobiography in America

By Thomas Cooley. Mr. Cooley borrows a term from Henry Adams to distinguish the underlying structure of American autobiographies by Adams's contemporaries — Mark Twain, Henry James, William Dean Howells, and others. He finds them a distinctly modern form of the genre whose structures answer to the rhetoric of fiction as surely as any novel. In works that are complex and eloquent modes of self-expression that derive their essential narrative contours from their creators' preconceptions of the fallen self, these authors betray their encounters with emerging theories of modern psychology. $12.00

An Idea of History

Selected Essays of Américo Castro

Translated from the Spanish and edited by Stephen Gilman and Edmund L. King. With an Introduction by Roy Harvey Pearce. Papers both published and unpublished by the late Hispanist, historian, literary critic, and philosopher, in which he explicates his notion that history rests upon empirical knowledge of an experience whose most important dimension is not demonstrable, though it may be grasped intuitively. Contains a Bibliography of Américo Castro. $12.50

Rousseau's Socratic Aemilian Myths

A Literary Collation of "Emile" and the "Social Contract"

By Madeleine B. Ellis. An illuminating study of two literary milestones in the history of our civilization in which a noted scholar examines the nature of, and the inspiration for, the symbolic language that informs these two great masterworks. She demonstrates conclusively that both productions evolve in obedience to a single and identical plan, the Contract following the novel step by step without once violating the order of the text, and the two proceeding side by side through the whole of their several parts. $15.00

Love and Language

A Study of the Classical French Moralistic Writers

By Louise K. Horowitz. An examination of that important group of seventeenth-century French writers known as the moralistes and how they grappled with a subject that they, with the rest of their age, found persistent, unsettling, and absorbing: the passions and the liberation from them possible through literature. The moralistes saw any powerful emotion as a potentially destructive force; but they viewed with particular alarm the savage might of erotic love, and sought release from its awesome power in moderation of its excesses through language. $10.00

AGE OF TRAVEL

THOMAS M. CURLEY

Taking Johnson as his constant companion and guide, Curley thoroughly documents Johnson's love of travel as expressed in his works, not only those dealing with different lands but also those in which imagery and theme are related to travel. The study provides new perspectives on Johnson's career ambitions, his talents in moral observation and literary creation, and his inquisitive age.

GRACES OF HARMONY

Alliteration, Assonance, and Consonance in Eighteenth-Century British Poetry

PERCY G. ADAMS

Adams carefully builds a case for Dryden, Pope, and their contemporaries as masters of the literary art of fitting sound to sense. Although he focuses on Restoration and Augustan poets, the author firmly places his study within its historical framework by tracing the earlier tradition and by following the echoes of vowels and consonants into nineteenth and twentieth-century poetry.

THE NATURE NOVEL FROM HARDY TO LAWRENCE

JOHN ALCORN

From 1870 to 1920 the English novel changed radically in form and technique, reflecting an altered vision of human nature in the age of Darwin. This study traces the development of the nature novel in the works of Thomas Hardy and other major novelists of the time, including Hudson, Doughty, Kipling, Tomlinson, Wells, T. E. Lawrence, Forster, Douglas, and D. H. Lawrence. $15.00.

THE LITERATURE OF FACT

Selected Papers from The English Institute

ANGUS FLETCHER, Editor

This selection of papers from the 1974 and 1975 sessions of the English Institute explores the interaction of "literature" and "fact," two singularly indeterminate terms. The discussion includes the nature of the connection between literary imagination and reality and a reconsideration of the basic question of value and the critical evaluation of literary works. $8.50

SCRIPTURE OF THE LOTUS BLOSSOM OF THE FINE DHARMA

(The Lotus Sūtra)

Translated from the Chinese of Kumārajīva by

LEON HURVITZ

This is a translation of a Buddhist scripture, originally written in Buddhist Sanskrit, but best known to Buddhists through Chinese versions. A work famous and beloved throughout the Far East, it is one of the most influential, as well as one of the most popular, texts of Mahāyāna Buddhism. Accompanying the translation are a foreword by Professor Wm. Theodore de Bary, a glossary, notes, and an index.

THE SYMBOL OF THE SOUL FROM HÖLDERLIN TO YEATS

A Study in Metonymy

SUZANNE NALBANTIAN

This important and original comparative study examines the varied expressions of the soul metaphor in the chief poetic texts of four major literatures: English, American, French, and German. Among the poets studied in this context are Wordsworth, Hölderlin, Novalis, Coleridge, Shelley, Keats, Hugo, Baudelaire, Verlaine, Mallarmé, the Symbolists, and finally Rilke, Eliot, and Yeats, the latter epitomizing the final confrontation between soul and self. $15.00

LANGSTON HUGHES

An Introduction to the Poetry

ONWUCHEKWA JEMIE

Langston Hughes is an introduction to the poet's collected works from the dual perspective of Afro-American oral tradition, and of the tradition of struggle and protest. Particularly stressed is Hughes's contribution in helping to create a Black Esthetic through which American letters came to accommodate black themes and forms, idiom, and style. $10.95

THE TRIAL OF THE POET

An Interpretation of the First Edition of Leaves of Grass

IVAN MARKI

In this new study Ivan Marki offers a critical interpretation of the first edition of Leaves of Grass, the book that Malcolm Cowley, in a modern edition of the text, called "the buried masterpiece of American writing." Concentrating on the Preface and on the controversial long poem "Song of Myself," the book will appeal to Whitman scholars and to all students of American literature. $17.50

ENGLISH POPULAR LITERATURE, 1819-1851

LOUIS JAMES

A unique collection of the popular literature published in England between Peterloo and the Great Exhibition, this volume gives both a glimpse of what the working classes were reading and a fascinating picture of their interests and concerns. Contributing to the special charm of the book are over one hundred illustrations from books and periodicals of the period, reproduced in facsimile when helpful. $19.95

A SEASON OF THE EARTH

Selected Poems of Nirala

DAVID RUBIN, Translator

The work of the modern Indian poet Nirala, recognized as the finest of the new literary Hindi, is contained in this unique volume. Selected on the basis of their accessibility to the Western reader, the poems reveal a sensibility that successfully combined traditional Hindu culture and modern ideas of social reform along with the revelation of personal suffering to create a troubling and original vision.

JAPANESE LITERATURE IN CHINESE

Volume II: Poetry and Prose in Chinese by Japanese Writers of the Later Period

BURTON, WATSON, Translator

This volume completes the collection — begun with Volume One on the "Early Period" — of the most interesting and important examples of the poetry and prose of Japanese writers who composed in classical Chinese. The work is not only a valuable contribution to Oriental studies but also an appealing glimpse into the interrelationships between two important Eastern civilizations.

TWO ESSENTIAL REPORTS ON "LANGUAGE POWER"

LANGUAGE AND DEVELOPMENT

One of the Ford Foundation's most intensive and far-reaching programs during the past quarter-century has been its support of language development in all parts of the world. Efforts have included basic and applied research, training of scholars and teachers, production of teaching materials, and the development of institutions and associations devoted to language study. LANGUAGE AND DEVELOPMENT: A Retrospective Survey of Ford Foundation Language Projects 1952-1974 reviews the programs carried out in 38 countries, including the U.S., Canada, Eastern Europe, and all regions of the developing world. A significant public report on the successes and failures of these efforts, the volume is designed for the general reader and will be of great value to scholars, educators, government officials, and officers of aid agencies.

LANGUAGE IN EDUCATION

Problems and Prospects in Research and Training

By Melvin J. Fox with Betty P. Skolnick

This publication presents a record of the Ford Foundation's work throughout the world in language development - and the social, psychological, and economic implications of language learning within society. In examining how languages are learned the writers of the report have explored such factors as the influence of attitudes and desire for upward mobility; peer group acceptance; the special problems encountered by people learning a second language where their own tongue is not the dominant speech form, and much more. Finally, the state of existing language training programs and resources is reviewed, with some directions for the future of this field.

Our foreign language texts are specially designed to meet the varying needs of different students, instructors, and courses.

We think you'll find at least one of our texts right for your particular approach to language learning. Take a few minutes and see for yourself!

FRENCH: LISTENING, SPEAKING, READING, WRITING, Third Edition
Thomas H. Brown,
Brigham Young University

A balanced-skill introduction to French that combines direct-method, audiolingual, and cognitive approaches to language learning. More opportunities for personalized and creative expression have been added, many of the dialogues and readings have been shortened or rewritten, and all the art is new. 1977, 576 pages. Cahier d'Exercices, tapes, instructor's manual available.

LANGUE ET LITTÉRATURE
Second Edition

Thomas H. Brown,
Brigham Young University

An intermediate French text package that includes grammar review, vocabulary building apparatus, contextual drills, and interesting and challenging reading selections. 1974. 448 pages. Cahier d'Exercices, tapes, and instructor's manual available.

FRENCH: LANGUAGE AND LIFE STYLES
Diane L. Butturff,
Fordham University and
Mary E. Coffman, McGraw-Hill Book Company

This introductory French text integrates language learning with understanding different life styles. Vocabulary is introduced through culturally authentic illustrations, cognates, and definitions in the target language; oral structure drills can be used to teach or to reinforce grammar; carefully controlled readings are people-oriented and cover the French-speaking world; and situational dialogues include practical travel and everyday vocabulary. 1976, 512 pages. Cahier d'Exercices, tapes, and instructor's manual available.

SPANISH LANGUAGE HISPANIC CULTURE
Protase E. Woodford,
Educational Testing Service

This introductory Spanish text combines grammar with conversation, composition, and controlled reading selections related to Hispanic culture. 1975, 480 pages. Workbook, tapes, and instructor's manual available.

LA FUENTE HISPANA
Second Edition
Randall G. Marshall and Conrad J. Schmitt, both of McGraw-Hill Book Company, and Protase E. Woodford, Educational Testing Service

In the second edition of this outstanding text all lessons have been shortened; more variety has been added (including variety in lesson format); all stories have been rewritten and simplified; career-oriented topics are emphasized; and the text has been completely redesigned, using all new photos and illustrations. 1977, 448 pages. Workbook, tapes, instructor's manual, test packages, and test replacements available.

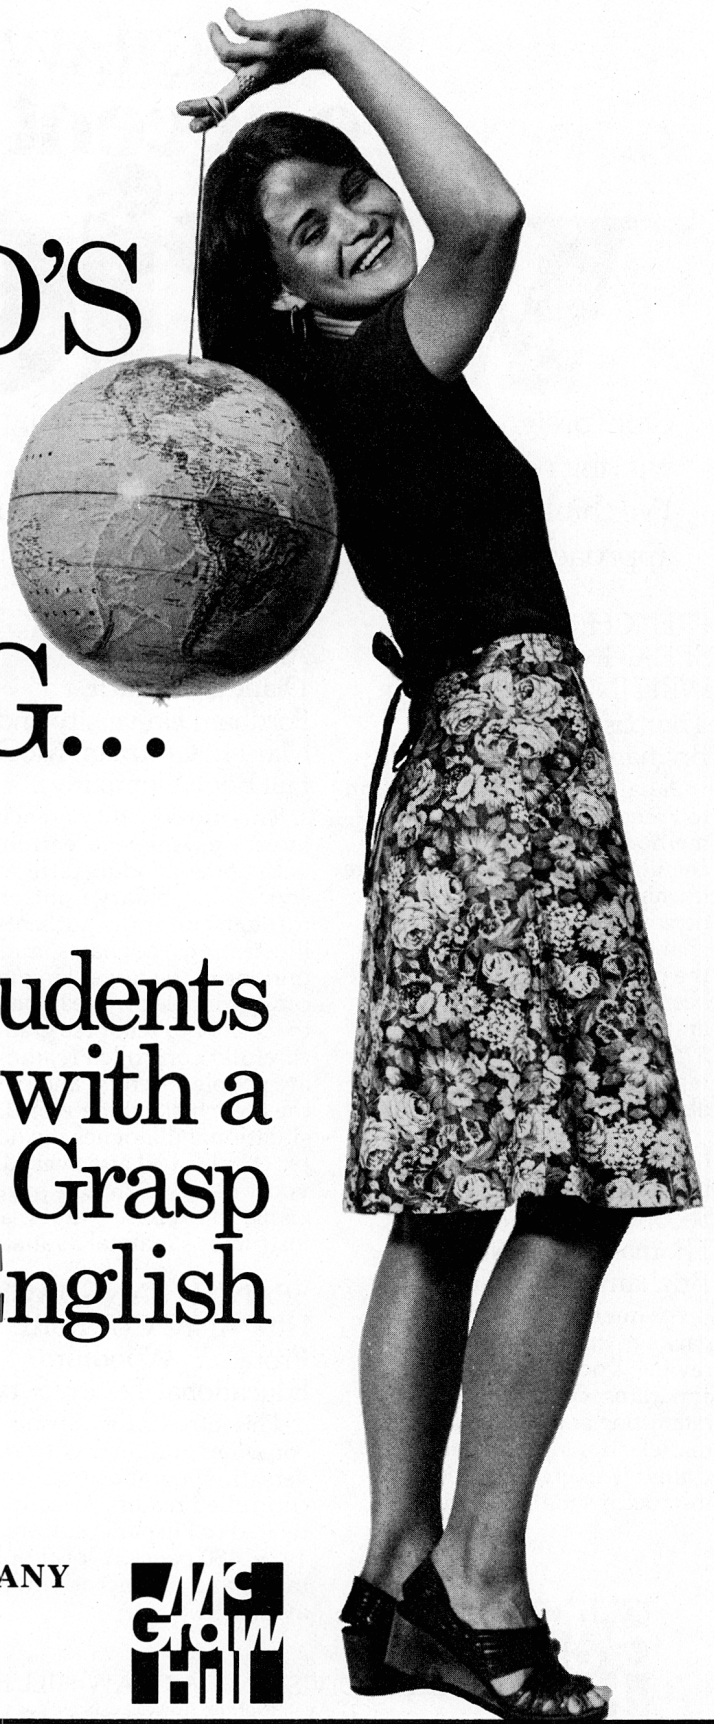

HOY: CONVERSAR Y ESCRIBIR
Thomas O. Bente,
Temple University

A conversation-composition text that incorporates vocabulary development, realistic life situations, and developmental exercises that lead to innovative discussion and writing. Each lesson includes a photograph that encourages role play and creative use of new vocabulary. 1976, 320 pages.

Help Them Take Hold with a McGraw-Hill Text...

For those students already familiar with the fundamentals of writing, McGraw-Hill offers a revision of the highly respected text PROSE STYLE: A Handbook for Writers by WILFRED STONE and J.G. BELL. Concise and eminently readable, this informal approach to the problems of writing should prove beneficial as both a review and reference.

If, on the other hand, your students could benefit from remedial coverage, there's a new edition of HARVEY WIENER's extremely successful worktext CREATING COMPOSITIONS. The text is thematically organized, and each chapter teaches one form of exposition and two or three areas of mechanics, provides vocabulary for writing, and presents writing samples from both student and professional writers.

Tone is merely one aspect that sets the second edition of ELIZABETH McMAHAN's A CRASH COURSE IN COMPOSITION apart from other texts. Speaking directly to the student in a manner that reviewers have described as "witty and conversational," Professor McMahan explains only those fundamentals that are necessary to help students communicate clearly and effectively.

Yet another exceptional basic text is JOHN LANGAN's ENGLISH SKILLS. It is a combined rhetoric-handbook that presents four essential principles of effective writing—then reinforces these principles in paragraphs, themes, and specialized types of writing. The entire book is activity oriented, using both a question-response format and abundant practice exercises.

The second edition of FREDERIC RISSOVER and DAVID C. BIRCH's MASS MEDIA AND THE POPULAR ARTS continues to provide a broad introduction to the varied facets of this dynamic subject. The book features over 60 articles from books, magazines, and newspapers; 15 ads; two dozen photographs; and over 40 cartoons and comic strips. Numerous student aids are now included and the majority of selections are new.

Chronologically arranged, THE REALM OF FICTION by JAMES B. HALL and ELIZABETH C. HALL groups short stories by national origin, thus making the text ideally suited to the "comparison and contrast" approach. The third edition now includes early and modern masters in both science fiction and detective fiction, more women writers and more nontraditional writers—a total of 39 new stories and 23 new authors.

For both the undergraduate and graduate student RONALD WARDHAUGH continues to provide a superb INTRODUCTION TO LINGUISTICS. His text offers a balanced view of basic linguistic concepts. Covering both descriptive and historical linguistics, it includes major concepts from both structural and generative-transformational linguistics. In the second edition, the text and workbook have been combined.

Of Grammatology

Jacques Derrida

translated by Gayatri Chakravorty Spivak

"Gayatri Spivak's authoritative translation of Jacques Derrida's De la Grammatologie is an event of great importance for humanistic studies in the English-reading world. One of the major works in the development of contemporary criticism and philosophy is available at last in English."—J. Hillis Miller, Yale University

So influential as to have affected the entire French critical scene, Derrida has been hailed as the most important philosopher in France today. Of Grammatology presents the early formulations of his ideas and answers questions they raise. The translator's introduction places him within the lineage of Hegel, Nietzsche, Husserl, Freud, and Heidegger and illuminates his relationship with illustrious contemporaries like Jacques Lacan and Michel Foucault. It also explicates such terms as have passed into common currency of Derridean criticism.

Autobiographical Acts

The Changing Situation of a Literary Genre

Elizabeth W. Bruss

"This work opens new avenues of interpretation and explicates several important works with great penetration."—Avrom Fleishman, The Johns Hopkins University

Examining the changing contexts of autobiography over four centuries, Elizabeth Bruss demonstrates how the "force" of autobiography shifts in response to the range of alternative genres available to each author. She compares Bunyan's Grace Abounding and Pilgrim's Progress, Boswell's London Journal and Life of Johnson, De Quincey's Autobiographical Sketches and Suspiria de Profundis, and Nabokov's Speak, Memory and Lolita.

The Figure in the Landscape

Poetry, Painting, and Gardening during the Eighteenth Century

John Dixon Hunt

"An important contribution to our understanding of eighteenth century aesthetics and poetry. His scholarship is impeccable, his criticism enlightening, his prose brisk and clear."—Martin C. Batestin, University of Virginia

Well known for his work on the relationship between literature and the visual arts, John Dixon Hunt now delves into the psychology of the landscape garden. He traces how altering perspectives toward the garden and nature are first registered in landscape poetry, and to a lesser extent in painting, and later effect changes in these arts.

An Introduction to Old Irish

R. P. M. and W. P. Lehmann

Written by two distinguished linguists, this important new book enables the reader to learn the Old Irish language while studying its literature. The basic text consists of a notable Old Irish story supplemented with poems, glosses, and annotations. The grammatical information in the annotations is summarized in separate sections dealing with specific syntactical constructions and forms. The book includes a glossary, facsimiles of Old Irish manuscripts, and discussions of word formation, pronunciation, metrics, and other subjects necessary for a full appreciation of Old Irish, its literature, and the culture that produced it. $13.50.

A Potpourri of the Language Arts

Syntax & Semantics

FOUNDATIONS OF SYNTACTIC THEORY

Robert P. Stockwell — University of California, Los Angeles

Introduces the beginner to the study of the structure of sentences in such a way as to show them why syntactic rules must take certain forms, and what their purposes are, without overwhelming them with the technicality of formalism. Goes well beyond superficial introductions and discusses all major aspects of syntactic theory.

1977 256 pp. (est.) Paper $6.95 Cloth $11.95

WORKBOOK IN SYNTACTIC THEORY AND ANALYSIS

Robert P. Stockwell — University of California, Los Angeles;

Dale E. Elliott — California State College; Marian Bean — University of Wisconsin, Madison

Problems in syntactic analysis, with data from English and twenty other languages. The problems are organized under fifteen headings representing areas of general interest. Workbook is keyed to Stockwell's Foundations of Syntactic Theory and Analysis, but can be used independently or with other texts.

1977 128 pp. (est.) Paper $4.95

INTRODUCTION TO GENERATIVE-TRANSFORMATIONAL SYNTAX

C. L. Baker — University of Texas, Austin

General introduction to Noam Chomsky's modern approach to the study of syntax. Provides the student with an extensive background in English grammar; employs this background to show the way in which the study of individual language is connected with the study of universal grammar. Prepares the student to read current scholarly works in syntax.

1977 480 pp. (est.) Paper $11.95 Cloth $15.95

INTRODUCTION TO CONTEMPORARY LINGUISTIC SEMANTICS

George L. Dillon — Indiana University/Purdue University, Ft. Wayne, Indiana

Introduction to the principal concepts that have developed in the past 15 years for describing meaning. Introduces topics of current concern, such as: the logic of natural language, fuzzy reference, pragmatics, case grammar, word structure and metaphor. Text provides training and practice in distinguishing and describing meanings of words and sentences, rather than in theory or formal models.

1977 176 pp. (est.) Cloth $8.95 (est.)

A Potpourri of the Language Arts

Literature...Drama...Film

MODERN ENGLISH READER, 2nd Edition

Robert M. Gorrell and Charlton Laird — both of University of Nevada; William Lutz — Rutgers University; Ronald E. Freeman, University of California, Los Angeles

An excellent anthology of contemporary and classical writing samples, chosen for their liveliness and uniqueness. Selections include fiction, journalism, personal writing and serious essay. Rhetorical orientation provides orderly, succinct machinery for discussion of subject material, writing techniques, and vocabulary, with practical suggestions for writing assignments.

1977 416 pp. Paper $7.95

PROSE STYLE FOR THE MODERN WRITER

Lee Robert Miles and Marc F. Bertonasco — both of California State University, Sacramento
Basic and advanced principles of style incisively show the student how to use an effective "middle range" style in writing. Sequential format, abundant exercises and illustrative passages from contemporary writers make the text quite flexible. Style is clear, lively and non-technical.

1977 240 pp. (est.) Paper $6.95

THE NEW LANGUAGES:

A RHETORICAL APPROACH TO THE MASS MEDIA AND POPULAR CULTURE

Thomas H. Ohlgren — Purdue University; Lynn M. Berk — Florida International University

Selective overview of the forms, contents and effects of mass media and popular culture. Goals of the text are to provide students with: a motivation for reading, speaking and writing; interesting essays to reinforce their literacy; basic critical approaches to the new languages of mass communications; and a means to study the artistry and tyranny of the popular arts.

1977 400 pp. (est.) Paper $7.95

STAR SIGHT: VISIONS OF THE FUTURE

Patricia Wallace Garland — University of California;

Maryjane Dunstan and Dyan Howell Pike — both of College of Marin, California

This anthological text presents three world views, each of which offers a different perspective on who we are and what we might become. One projects the path of the future as the effort to reform the environment; another, as the quest for self-transformation; and the third, as the search for wholeness — in our society and in ourselves. Abundant teaching and learning aids help students interrelate the materials of the reader and work with them.

1977 384 pp. (est.) Paper $7.95

PROMISES TO KEEP: READING AND WRITING ABOUT VALUES

Jo Ann Wolf Dahlstrom and Deborah E. Rye — both of College of Du Page, Illinois

This collection of contemporary short stories, poetry, non-fiction narratives and essays is organized around five major life experiences: growing up, work, sex and love, marriage, and death. Flexibility to fix course requirements, author index, and rhetorical index enable individual instructors to adapt the text to their objectives.

1977 464 pp. (est.) Paper $7.95

FILM AND/AS LITERATURE

John Harrington — University of Massachusetts

Extensive anthology surveying the interrelationships between film and literature. Organized to move from the most direct and obvious relationships to those which are more subtle and complex. Suggests the common roots between works of literature and film. Wide variety of styles and approaches are presented.

1976 448 pp. (est.) Paper $9.95

SHORT STORY/SHORT FILM

Fred H. Marcus — California State University, L.A.

Text presents a contrasting media approach to film and fiction. Screenplays and additional cinematic material depict the creative process by which films evolve from short stories. Most of the ten fiction/film units have won major film festival prizes, including two Academy Awards. Unusual presentation of material encourages student interest and participation.

1977 448 pp. (est.) Paper $8.95

FICTION: THE NARRATIVE ART

James W. Kirkland and Paul W. Dowell — both of East Carolina University, N.C.

Collection of fifty-five short stories, broad in scope, including those that reflect a wide, balanced cultural and geographical distribution, as well as a range of styles and values. Headnotes discuss themes of universal significance and key fictional devices. Organized thematically and structurally.

1977 448 pp. (est.) Paper $7.95

THE SOUNDS OF CHILDREN

Frederick Williams — University of Southern California;

Robert Hopper and Diana S. Natalicio — both of the University of Texas, El Paso

A straight-forward, practical view of child language development. Noteworthy for the inclusion of recording examples related to the text, which provide an excellent focus for workshop activities. This non-technical, highly readable and easily understood text provides direct relevance to everyday concerns of the teacher.

1977 208 pp. (est.) Paper $6.95

TIME, FORWARD!

BY VALENTIN KATAEV

Translated by Charles Malamuth

Foreword by Edward J. Brown

The most successful of the Russian "industrial novels" of the 1930s, Time, Forward! is a valid fictional document of the times and an engrossing story in its own right, written in a style reminiscent of the early Dos Passos. 352 pages paper $3.95 cloth $12.50

THE USE OF MANUSCRIPTS IN LITERARY RESEARCH
Problems of Access and Literary Property Rights

BY JAMES THORPE

At long last a publication that saves the inexperienced student or scholar from the confusions and uncertainties in the use of literary manuscripts. Since libraries and private collections rightfully safeguard manuscripts from irresponsible use and because manuscripts have certain legal protection, scholars are often frustrated in the freedom they need and baffled in how to go about getting it.

In this informative and lively pamphlet, Dr. Thorpe, with his many years as a library director, has condensed a vast amount of information gathered from experienced scholars and heads of libraries throughout the world. He gives sage advice on how to locate manuscripts, how to use libraries and private collections, and how to carry on research at a distance. The many varieties of situations in gaining access to manuscripts such as admittance, regulations governing use, the making of photocopies, and permissions to publish are all clearly explained. The scholar will acquire all the basic facts of literary property rights he needs with an abundance of examples.

As a by-product of this publication, Dr. Thorpe hopes that some out-moded practices will be altered. Changes are due, and the pamphlet is replete with suggestions and salient reflections.

ANGLO-IRISH LITERATURE A REVIEW OF RESEARCH

edited by Richard J. Finneran

The concept of a viable tradition of Anglo-Irish literature is essentially a creation of the Revival period at the end of the nineteenth century, though the beginnings are evident some fifty years earlier. Developing out of that tradition—in different ways, of course—were some of the major writers of this century, as well as a great number of less familiar but nonetheless significant figures.

This volume provides essays on writers associated with the Anglo-Irish tradition who have been the subject of a substantial body of published research. There are also chapters on general works, the major authors before the Revival, and the Irish drama (the last of which includes brief comments on many of the minor or contemporary writers otherwise excluded).

A list of chapters and contributors follows: General Works (Richard M. Kain), Nineteenth-Century Writers (James F. Kilroy), Oscar Wilde (Ian Fletcher and John Stokes), George Moore (Helmut E. Gerber), Bernard Shaw (Stanley Weintraub), W. B. Yeats (Richard J. Finneran), J. M. Synge (Weldon Thornton), James Joyce (Thomas F. Staley), Four Revival Figures: Lady Gregory, A. E. (George W. Russell), Oliver St. John Gogarty, and James Stephens (James F. Carens), Sean O'Casey (David Krause), and the Modern Drama (Robert Hogan, Bonnie K. Scott, and Gordon Henderson).

LEO BERSANI

A FUTURE FOR ASTYANAX
CHARACTER AND DESIRE IN LITERATURE

“Bersani is an original and careful thinker who does not give in to critical fads and terminologies. He assesses new critical trends with quiet mastery and applies them with pertinency to the analysis of literary text... His is a valuable, in fact, indispensable book for scholars and critics of literature.” —*Germaine Bree

MINDFUL PLEASURES ESSAYS ON THOMAS PYNCHON

Edited by George Levine and David Leverenz

Although Thomas Pynchon has won universal recognition as a major force in contemporary American literature, much mystery surrounds the novelist himself, and argument rages over his works. Mindful Pleasures unites the most telling insights of established critics such as Richard Poirier and Tony Tanner with those of younger writers. An indispensable resource to the growing throng of Pynchon readers. $9.95 cloth, $4.95 paper

The Grammar of Dreams

THOMAS HARDY

The Poetry of Necessity

James Richardson

"This is an excellent literary essay. Its value lies in its fresh, stimulating, gracefully and trenchantly phrased interpretation. The value of such criticism lies altogether in the insight and sensitivity of the critic. I'd say that at least in some important respects Richardson brings one closer to Hardy than any previous critic has done."—David Perkins,

MODERN LATIN AMERICAN NARRATIVES

The Dreams of Reason

Alfred J. MacAdam

While it is now commonly acknowledged that the literature of Latin America, and in particular its narrative, is among the most important "new" literatures of the second half of the twentieth century, little has been done to ascertain its basic identity. This study of twelve novelists demonstrates, for the first time, that satire is the dominant form of narrative in Latin America.

Karl Marx and World Literature

S.S. Praver. □ "Very few men," Bakunin said, "have read as much and, it may be added, have read as intelligently as M. Marx." That Marx's reading included the work of poets, novelists and dramatists writing in many languages has long been known; what has not been fully appreciated is the extent to which imaginative literature penetrated and shaped Marx's writings. In this book Professor Praver documents and analyzes the use Marx made of literary texts throughout his life.

The Literary Ballad in

Early Nineteenth-Century Russian Literature

Michael R. Katz, Williams College. □ Popular fascination with the ballad in late eighteenth-century European literature inspired Russian poets to experiment with this genre; after the publication of Zhukovsky's Lyudmila in 1808 the literary ballad became the most influential and controversial genre in Russian literature for almost two decades. Katz follows the development of the Russian literary ballad and compares and contrasts the work of several Russian poets. (Oxford Modern Languages and Literature Monographs)
