Action

D. G. BROWN

'He offers an unusually full analysis of the action of inanimate agents, which he regards as the primary instantiation of agency. In the course of developing this thesis, Professor Brown makes a number of fascinating minor discoveries.' Times Literary Supplement 45s.

Prelude to Aesthetics

EVA SCHAPER

'Dr Schaper has brought off some notable coups, most significant being that of giving fresh and deserved emphasis to Plato's earlier work on aesthetics, the Ion, while at the same time reducing the import which can be attached to the aforementioned section of the Republic. In addition she has provided some thought provoking material on Aristotle.' The Scotsman 40s.

Freedom and Rights

A. J. M. MILNE

'Has an original contribution to make to the study and definition of fundamental social and political values.' Church Times 60s.

Hegel's Science of Logic

Translated by ARNOLD MILLER

Muirhead Library of Philosophy

Fills the real need for an accurate and faithful presentation of this fundamentally important work at a time when there is a revival of interest in the work of Hegel. £5.

Laws of Form

G. SPENCER BROWN

'In this book Mr Spencer Brown has succeeded in doing what, in mathematics, is very rare indeed. He has revealed a new calculus of great power and simplicity. I congratulate him.' BERTRAND RUSSELL 45s.

Metaphysical Analysis

JOHN W. YOLTON

Problems of truth and reference are explored and the author shows how truth and reference function in metaphysical talk, and details a theory of objects requisite to metaphysical inventories. 63s.

George Allen & Unwin

Moral Knowledge and its Methodology in Aristotle

J. Donald Monan

This book analyses Aristotle's changing conceptions of moral knowledge through the Protrepticus, the Nicomachean Ethics, and the Eudemian Ethics. The author departs significantly from the interpretations of Jaeger, Düring, and Gauthier in his reading of Aristotle's ex professo theorizing on moral knowledge. Aristotle's most mature view of the supreme good he finds justified, in the Eudemian Ethics, by a method that foreshadows those nowadays in favour. 38/- net

The Concept of the Categorical Imperative

A Study of the Place of the Categorical Imperative in Kant's Ethical Theory T. C. Williams

Mr Williams seeks to clarify the central concept of Kant's ethical theory, that the categorical imperative is the supreme principle of morality. It is his purpose to establish that the doctrine is not a mere 'tissue of patent whimsies' as has so often been assumed, but is a position of sound common sense. 32/- net

Aristotle's Ethical Theory

W. F. R. Hardie

In this book the author examines Aristotle's main ethical doctrines as expounded in his Nicomachean Ethics. Important passages are translated and their philosophical meaning and implication explained. A select Bibliography and a full Index are included. 50/- net

The Foundations of Wittgenstein's Late Philosophy

E. K. SPECHT. A critical survey of Wittgenstein's philosophical methods, in which five of the salient features in his teaching are discussed. His position is related throughout to that of the major philosophers, including Kant, Plato and Ockham. Translated from the German by D. E. Walford. 42s. net

The Beginning

A. A. T. EHRHARDT. This study is concerned with the long history of controversy lying behind the revolutionary assertion 'In the beginning was the Word'. Dr. Ehrhardt discusses the concept of 'arche' as it was understood in Hellenistic philosophy from the Pythagoreans to Aristotle, refers to the history of magic and finally ends with the Fourth Gospel. 42s. net

The Greek Patristic View of Nature

D. S. WALLACE HADRILL. Through a close examination of the writings of the Greek Fathers of the first 4 centuries A.D. the author studies the early Christian attitude to the natural world. Among the subjects discussed are nature, the structure and functions of the human body and man's place in the universe. 35s. net
