

MICHIGAN CLASSICS IN JAPANESE STUDIES

Center for Japanese Studies / The University of Michigan

All too often landmark works of scholarship are allowed to go out of print or are so expensive that they cannot be used for the classroom. MICHIGAN CLASSICS IN JAPANESE STUDIES, established in 1990, is designed to make works of lasting value available again in attractive, reasonably priced, uniform paperback editions.

Profits and Principles

Global Capitalism and Human Rights in China

MICHAEL A. SANTORO

After the Tiananmen Square massacre, a vigorous international debate erupted, not only about human rights in China, but also about the role of multinational firms. Revelations about serious and pervasive human rights violations in Chinese factories raised even more questions about the clash of profits and principles in China. Michael Santoro investigates these and other dilemmas. His interviews with foreign business executives, Chinese employees of foreign firms, human rights advocates, and foreign consular officials provide a range of perspectives. 5 charts, 8 tables. $25.00

"Lines have been drawn in the sand, with choices reduced to stark either-ors: human rights or expanded commerce, worker protection or globalization. But to anyone looking for reasoned discussion instead of rhetorical posturing, Michael A. Santoro's Profits and Principles is a fine place to start. His solidly grounded analysis deserves a wide audience."—New York Times Book Review

China Transformed

Historical Change and the Limits of European Experience

R BIN WONG

"Wong's approach is to explore carefully similarities and differences between Chinese and European development over the long term, highlighting themes related to state-making and popular action. This is by far the most sophisticated, extended discussion of imperial and modern China in comparative perspective that I have seen."—Peter C. Perdue, Massachusetts Institute of Technology. $19.95

Stay Alive, My Son

PIN YATHAY

Foreword by David Chandler

"[In 1975], the Republic of Cambodia was torn asunder by the 'liberating' forces of Pol Pot. Pin Yathay, an engineer employed by the Ministry of Public Works, was a witness to the tragedy. . . . A heart-rending account of the disintegration of an entire social system, caused by the paranoid policies of Khmer Rouge cadres."—Christian Science Monitor. 12 photos, 1 map, 1 line drawing. $16.95

Think No Evil

Korean Values in the Age of Globalization

C. FRED ALFORD

"C. Fred Alford skillfully examines one of the oldest human dilemmas, "evil," in relation to one of the newest world phenomena, "globalization," as a way of understanding Korean values. This book is highly recommended not only for those who are interested in Korea, experts and non-experts alike, but also for anyone interested in issues dealing with evil and the significance of globalization in East Asia."—Acta Koreana. $34.95

The Politics of the Asian Economic Crisis

T. J. PEMPEL

In the summer of 1997, a tidal wave of economic problems swept across Asia. In short, the vaunted "Asian Economic Miracle" became the "Asian Economic Crisis". A group of experts on the region presents the first account to focus on the political causes and implications of the crisis. The events of 1997–98 involved not just property values, financial flows, portfolio makeup, and debt ratios, they argue, but also the power relationships that shaped those economic indicators. 7 tables, 5 charts/graphs. $49.95 cloth, $19.95 paper

Under the Black Umbrella

Voices from Colonial Korea, 1910-1945

HILDI KANG

"Whereas history is usually a story of 'great men' told by its 'winners,' Hildi Kang's [book] offers new insights into Korean history as it was lived every day by ordinary people. The diversity and heterogeneity of human experiences in [this book] challenge the oversimplified story of the Japanese colonial period in Korea that has held sway in Korean history until now."—Elaine M. The Kitchen Spoon's Handle

Transnationalism and Sri Lanka's Migrant Housemaids

MICHELE RUTH GAMBURD

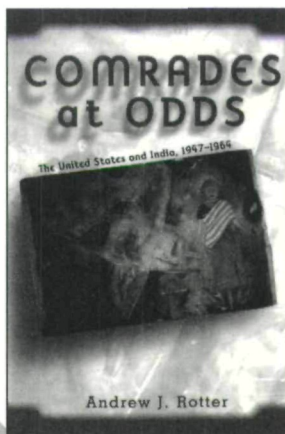

"An insightful study of transnationalism that examines the experiences of Sri Lankan domestic workers who labor in oil-rich Persian Gulf states. It offers a deeply nuanced analysis of the shifting, power-laden social relationships that shape international migration and local life, and it is remarkable in its empirical breadth."—Lesley Gill, American University. 3 maps, 5 photos, 11 tables. $39.95 cloth, $16.95 paper

Money Rules

The New Politics of Finance in Britain and Japan

HENRY LAURENCE

Henry Laurence traces financial market reform in Britain and Japan over the last two decades, charting the movement of the Anglo-Saxon and Japanese styles of capitalism toward a new, hybrid form of economic organization. He explains what these two stories reveal about changes in the nature of business-government relations in an age of convergence. Comrades at Odds

The United States and India, 1947-1964

ANDREW J. ROTTER

"More than a bilateral history of U.S.-Indian relations in the early decades of the Cold War, Comrades at Odds offers a new and exciting way of thinking about international relations as cultural relations. It is a must-read for scholars seeking to expand the horizon of the old diplomatic history."—Michael J. Hogan, Ohio State University. 19 photos, 1 line drawing. $55.00 cloth, $19.95 paper

Women of Okinawa

Nine Voices from a Garrison Island

RUTH ANN KEYSO

"Keyso's book emphasizes the many positive features of Okinawan women's postwar experience without disguising the hardship and discrimination they have variously experienced. Furthermore, the way in which she has chosen her interviewees . . . only serves to deepen our understanding of the complex problems raised by the U.S. presence on Okinawa."—The Japan Times. 21 photos. $45.00 cloth, $16.95 paper

INSIDE ASIA

Human Development Report: Making New Technologies Work for Human Development

New technologies hold the promise of tackling the most pressing needs of human development: vaccines for HIV and malaria, drought-resistant seeds for sub-Saharan Africa, sustainable energy sources for the 2 billion people who have no access to electricity and accessible information technologies for people currently marginalized by the digital divide. The Human Development Report 2001 explores the evolving and complex trends of how technology is shaped, created and owned and proposes bold new ideas for ensuring that the needs of the world's poor people are not left on the sidelines.

Cities in a Globalizing World: Global Report on Human Settlements

The central challenge of the 21st century will be how to make both globalization and urbanization work for all the world's people. This report describes the impact of globalization on cities and what can be done to ensure that the fruits of globalization are shared more equally. Cities in a Globalizing World: Global Report on Human Settlements is a comprehensive review of conditions in the world's cities and the prospects for making them better. It chronicles the human settlement conditions and trends since the second UN Conference on Human Settlements (Habitat II) convened in Istanbul in June 1996. It takes a look at the progress made in the past five years and the issues that continue to confront a changing world. The publication also focuses on key strategies to promote and facilitate the implementation of the Habitat Agenda, the main policy document and plan of action.

State of the Environment in Asia and the Pacific

The present report is the fourth in a series of reports published every five years on environmental trends in the region. The report looks at the prevailing environmental conditions in the terrestrial, aquatic and atmospheric systems and highlights the responses to environmental problems. It examines the relationship between environmental change and economic and social conditions. In addition, it reviews the national and regional responses to the problems of environment and sustainable development. It also presents key emerging issues in human ecosystems, which are described in terms of urban environment, wastes, poverty and food security. Finally, the report identifies key challenges and areas in which urgent action is needed, particularly in regard to regional and international collaboration efforts.

Origins of the Modern Chinese State

PHILIP A. KUHN

“This is a work of the first importance, one that successfully attempts to reach both a specialist and a broader audience. . . . It not only offers new and provocative historiographic arguments, but also recasts the familiar outline of post-1800 Chinese history in consistently novel and refreshing terms. . . . Both audiences will be intrigued by its implications for contemporary Chinese politics.”

THE JAPANESE WAY OF JUSTICE

Prosecuting Crime in Japan

DAVID T. JOHNSON

The Japanese way of justice is largely determined by the way prosecutors perform their jobs. This book paints an empirical sketch of prosecutors at work, the contexts that influence their actions, and the content of the decisions thereby rendered. The author is the first researcher to gain access to the work worlds of prosecutors in Japan.

ELECTIONS AND DEMOCRACY IN GREATER CHINA

Edited by LARRY DIAMOND and RAMON H. MYERS

This book examines why and how limited electoral competition developed in Greater China. The editors attribute Taiwan's electoral competition to breakthroughs in the political, ideological, and economic marketplaces and suggest that, without similar breakthroughs, Hong Kong and Mainland China won't achieve electoral competition.

TWICE DEAD

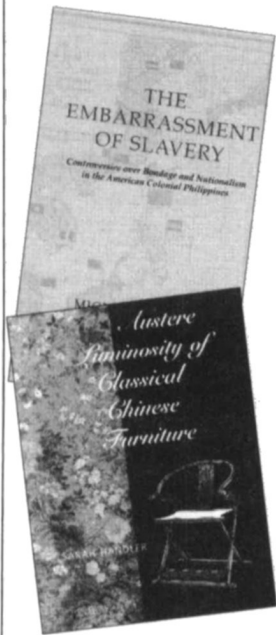

Organ Transplants and the Reinvention of Death

MARGARET LOCK

Lock explores the cultural, historical, political, and clinical reasons for the acceptance of brain death in North America and its rejection, until recently, in Japan, with the result that organ transplantation has been severely restricted in that country. This incisive and timely discussion demonstrates that death is not self-evident, that the space between life and death is historically and culturally constructed, fluid, multiple, and open to dispute.

THE U.S. AND CHINA:

Into the Twenty-first Century

THIRD EDITION

MICHAEL SCHALLER

From the Opium Wars of the 1840s, to the Red Scare of the 1940s, through the Tiananmen "massacre" of 1989, and the Wen Ho Lee "espionage case" of 2000, Chinese-American relations have swung like a pendulum throughout the years. The U.S. and China: Into the Twenty-first Century—now in its third edition and thoroughly revised and updated—looks at over a century of Chinese-American turmoil from a dual perspective, examining how two dramatically different cultures have interacted and collided. Based on research by the author as well as by scholars in both the U.S. and China, it examines the periodic cooperation and hostility between both governments and people in the United States and China. The book places special emphasis on understanding China's unique role in the Cold War and its centrality to the American obsession with the Vietnam War. It explains the interactions between domestic policies in China and the United States and their international behavior. The discussion of the post-World War II period, which constitutes a major portion of this textbook, has been completely revised to incorporate a vast new body of primary materials and research monographs written by Chinese and American scholars since 1990. Two entirely new chapters analyze Chinese-American relations during the Reagan, Bush, and Clinton administrations and examine the paradox of how, despite increasingly close social, political, and economic cooperation, fear of China has again become part of the American political debate.

Fellowship Opportunities for 2002-2003

The Johns Hopkins University and Nanjing University announce fellowship competitions for in-residence research at the Institute for International Research at the Hopkins-Nanjing Center in Nanjing, China, for the academic year 2002-2003. The fellowships will include a financial award that covers some combination of salary support, living expenses, travel, and general research support. Resident at the Hopkins-Nanjing Center, visiting fellows will be able to utilize and draw upon its academic resources, including its excellent library and research assistance.

Purpose: Taking advantage of Nanjing's dynamic regional location, world-class historical archives, and the fifteen-year-old Hopkins-Nanjing Center, the institute's purpose is to further research and collaboration among international and Chinese scholars that promotes a broad research agenda using diverse methodologies.

Examples of the kinds of research projects that may be undertaken in academic year 2002-2003 include but are not limited to: international relations and U.S.-China relations, modern Chinese history, judicial reform and the rule of law, the evolution of governing and administrative institutions, the impact of economic reforms, public health and the environment, the development of non-governmental organizations, and multicultural studies in the U.S. and China.

Eligibility: The competition is open to professors, associate professors, and assistant professors, as well as established scholars holding non-faculty appointments. Individuals completing their post-doctoral training are also eligible for appointment as junior fellows. Applicants must hold a Ph.D. or the terminal degree in their field.

For complete information and application instructions, see website www.nanjing.jhu.edu or contact Daniel B. Wright, Executive Director, Hopkins-Nanjing Center Washington Program Office. E-mail: wright@jhu.edu; telephone: 202/663-5801.
