IN MEMORIAM

Arthur Fordyce Gamber, associate professor of history and political science at Stetson University since 1948, died June 5, 1956.

Born February 10, 1888 in Norwalk, Ohio, he was educated in the Ohio public schools, Oberlin College, Columbia University and the University of Florida. He taught in public schools in Ohio and North Dakota and entered the college field in 1924. Before joining the Stetson Faculty he had taught at North Dakota Agricultural College, teachers colleges in Dickinson, N. D., Moorhead, Minn., and Valley City, N. D., and the University of Florida.

W. Leon Godshall, head of the department of international relations at Lehigh University, died suddenly on June 1, 1956 at the age of 61. He received his B.S. degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1919, the M.A. in 1920 and the Ph.D. in 1923. Professor Godshall served as instructor in political science at the University of Pennsylvania from 1919-23 and as professor of political science at Union College from 1923-1934. He joined the Lehigh faculty in 1939 as a member of the department of history and government. In 1947 he was appointed chairman of the newly established department of international relations.

In addition to rendering distinguished service at Union College and Lehigh University Professor Godshall accepted invitations as visiting professor at many of our foremost institutions here and abroad. His teaching assignments in Chinese universities reflected his enthusiastic interest in Far Eastern international relations. In 1924-25 and again in 1931-32 he held Penfield traveling scholarships for study in Asia. In 1952-53 he served as the first executive secretary for the Fulbright program in Japan.

Professor Godshall's interest in international relations went far beyond the academic halls. He was a very effective and popular lecturer who spoke to audiences throughout the United States. He served on the national board of directors of the Foreign Policy Association and organized its Lehigh Valley Branch. His work in Rotary International contributed significantly to international understanding. He was very active in the Middle Atlantic States Model United Nations and founded the Model Security Council of Pennsylvania colleges and universities. At the time of his death Professor Godshall was national president of both Pi Gamma Mu and the International Platform Association. He had just received a year's appointment to the Chester W. Nimitz chair of political and social science at the Naval War College.

Professor Godshall's students and colleagues will always remember his stimulating lectures, his careful scholarship, his dynamic ability as an administrator and his leadership in university and community affairs. Above all they will cherish the memory of a man of high character who took time from a very busy life to befriend and encourage young people who shared his enthusiasm for international relations.—EUGENE H. MILLER, Visiting Professor, Department of International Relations, Lehigh University.

Friends of the College of Wooster were grieved to learn this year of the death of Mary Z. Johnson, chairman of the department of political science. Miss Johnson served the college for twenty-eight years and her death culminated a two year illness.

Lawrence Preuss, professor of political science at the University of Michigan, died of a heart attack on July 7, 1956. An alumnus of the University of Michigan, Professor Preuss had served as a member of the faculty since 1928. He was widely known as a scholar and teacher of international law, and on numerous occasions had rendered valuable service to the United States government.

He was associate editor of the Annual Digest and Reports of Public International Law Cases from 1933 to 1942, and a member of the executive council of the American Society of International Law from 1937 to 1940 and from 1943 to 1946. He had been a member of the board of editors of the American Journal of International Law since 1946.

During World War II he was assistant and associate chief of the Division of International Organization Affairs in the Department of State, and was a deputy U. S. representative to the U. N. War Crimes Commission. Subsequently, he served the American delegation to the San Francisco conference as a technical expert.
