Series Editor: Lazar Fleishman

In Quest of Tolstoy By Hugh McLean

ISBN 978-1-934843-02-4,

256 pp. $75.00 USD, cloth

Publication date: February 2008

Lev Tolstoy remains a challenging figure for full understanding. In the essays collected here, Hugh McLean investigates some of the numerous puzzles and paradoxes in the Tolstoyan heritage, engaging both with Tolstoy the artist and Tolstoy the thinker. In two concluding essays, "Tolstoy beyond Tolstoy," McLean deals with the impact of Tolstoy on such diverse figures as Ernest Hemingway and Isaiah Berlin.

Brodsky Through the Eyes of His Contemporaries, Vol. I

By Valentina Polukhina

ISBN 978-1-934843-15-4.

360 pp. $80.00 USD, cloth

Publication date: June, 2008

This book is the first of its kind. It is a fascinating record of 20 conversations with poets of various nationalities about Joseph Brodsky. It combines biographical details with a new and authoritative interpretation of the poetics, style, and ideas of one of the most influential poets to emerge in post-Stalin Russia. The second edition of this volume has been enlarged with previously unpublished interviews.

Brodsky Through the Eyes of His Contemporaries, Vol. II

By Valentina Polukhina

ISBN 978-1-934843-16-1.

400 pp. $90.00 USD, cloth

Publication date: July, 2008

The second volume of interviews draws on eye-witness accounts of Brodsky's friends, publishers, editors, translators, and fellow poets. It is a series of important discussions on the style, ideas, and personality of one of the most brilliant and paradoxical poets of our time. This collection of 40 interviews illuminates a peculiarly intriguing contemporary phenomenon and affords a fascinating insight into the American literary scene.

Texts by Boris Pasternak. Selected, translated, edited, introduced, and provided with commentaries by Angela Livingstone

ISBN 978-1-934843-23-9.

320 pp. $60.00 USD, cloth

Publication date: July, 2008

Boris Pasternak, 1890-1960, thought and wrote all his life about the nature of poetic creation and what is traditionally called inspiration; few have pondered these matters so intently or described them so illuminatingly. This book presents his major writings on these subjects, with the autobiographical A Safe-Conduct being central among them.

The Superstitious Muse:

Mythopoetic Thinking and

Russian Literature

By David Bethea

ISBN 978-1-934843-17-8.

320 pp. $ 80.00 USD, cloth

Publication date: August, 2008

For several decades David Bethea has written authoritatively on the "mythopoetic thinking" that lies at the heart of classical Russian literature, especially Russian poetry. The 'lichnost' (personhood, psychic totality) of the writer is all-important, argues Bethea, as it is that which combines the specifically biographical and the capaciously mythical in verbal units that speak simultaneously to different planes of being. It is this sort of metempsychosis, where the stories that constitute the Ur-texts of Russian literature are constantly reworked in the biographical myths shaping individual writers' lives, that is Bethea's primary focus. This collection contains a liberal sampling of Bethea's most memorable previously published essays along with new studies prepared for this occasion.

Nationalist Politics and Everyday Ethnicity in a Transylvanian Town

“[An] important and conceptually innovative book.”

—Robert Legvold, Foreign Affairs

“For over a decade, Rogers Brubaker has been calling into question the entire edifice underpinning the study of ethnicity by challenging the idea that ethnicity is about real groups founded on ‘ethnic identities.’ In this superb book on Hungarians and Romanians in a Transylvanian town, he amply demonstrates the fruitfulness of his conception. Not only will this be the definitive statement on contemporary ethno-national relations in this very complex region in Europe: it will become a classic for the analysis of such relations in many other parts of the world.”

CALL FOR PAPERS

World War II and the (Re)Creation of Historical Memory in Contemporary Ukraine

September 3-6, 2009, Kyiv, Ukraine

During the post-World War II period, the narrative created by the Soviet Union from the events of the war played a significant role in the construction of an ideology of Soviet unity in the struggle against and victory over Fascism and in the creation of a new Soviet society. A highly-politicized mythology of loyalty and unity amongst all Soviet peoples during the great struggle was propagated through the establishment of state holidays, celebrations and rituals, film and literature, public monuments and public education that emphasized unity. In the process, alternate memories and interpretations of Ukrainians' relationship to the Soviet state and its policies were forbidden or forcibly suppressed. Since independence in 1991, Ukraine and scholars of Ukrainian history have only slowly begun to address the formulation of a new national identity and the evaluation of the ideology and mythology created in the Soviet era. Events such as the genocidal famine of 1932-33, forced collectivization, the Holocaust, and Stalinist persecutions remained hidden deep within the collective memory of most Ukrainians. Among the least studied topics to date has been the role played by Ukraine and Ukrainians during World War II in the context of the Soviet Union and of Europe in general.

The conference "World War II and the (Re)Creation of Historical Memory in Contemporary Ukraine," will address these crucial issues of Ukrainian and European history through the lens of the Ukrainian experience of World War II; the subsequent mythologizing of the war and Ukraine's role in it by Soviet authorities; and the politics of collective memory in contemporary, independent Ukraine. Scholars are invited to advance the broader international dialog of Ukrainian historical memory and national identity. Papers will be welcomed on topics that include (but are not limited to):

- philosophy, theory, and politics of historical memory;
- the creation of historical memory in Soviet and contemporary Ukraine - public commemoration of the war; public education about the war and Ukraine's role in it; representation of the war and its memory in art, film, and literature; and contemporary issues surrounding the politics of historical memory of World War II and national identity in Ukraine.

October 15, 2008 Abstracts of 300-500 words and queries should be sent by e-mail to the organizers at historical_memory@fulbright.com.ua

January 1, 2009 Speakers will be notified of their acceptance.

June 15, 2009 Final drafts of papers are due for distribution to session chairs, participants, and commentators.
