

in 1994 on women and politics. Beth A. Simmons, Duke University, took home the 1995 Woodrow Wilson Foundation Award for the best book published in the United States during 1994 on government, politics or international affairs. Her winning book, Who Adjusts? Domestic Sources of Foreign Economic Policy During the Interwar Years, was published by Princeton University Press.

The Benjamin E. Lippincott Award, given to a work of exceptional quality by a living political theorist that is still considered significant after a span of at least 15 years since the original publication, was awarded to Charles E. Lindblom of Yale University for Politics and Markets, The World's Political-Economic Systems. The 1978 winner of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation Award, Politics and Markets was published by Basic Books in 1977. Lindblom, a former APSA President (1981-82), later returned to the dais named as this year's John Gaus Distinguished Lecturer. The Gaus Award honors the recipient's lifetime of exemplary scholarship in the joint tradition of political science and public administration and, more generally, to encourage scholarship in public administration.

The Hubert H. Humphrey Award, presented each year in recognition of notable public service by a political scientist, was awarded to Madeleine Albright. Albright, formerly of Georgetown University, is currently U.S. Permanent Representative to the United Nations. Recognizing his pioneering work and "original vision," Brian Lamb, President and CEO, C-SPAN, was named winner of the Carey McWilliams Award, honoring his contribution to our understanding of politics.

A number of departments celebrated multiple award recipients. Harvard University faculty members Robert D. Putnam, Gary King and Paul Pierson each walked to the dais. Recent Harvard graduate Robert C. Lieberman was also a winner. Rutgers University APSA award winners, Patrick Deneen and Alan Rosenthal, were later joined by section award winners Elizabeth

Kelly, who received her Ph.D. from Rutgers in 1990, recipient of the Michael Harrington Award from the Caucus for a New Political Science and Gerry Pomper, winner of the Samuel Eldersveld Career Achievement and Jack Walker Awards from the Political Organizations and Parties section. Details on all the Organized Section Awards follows later in Association News.

Travel Grants Bring International Scholars to Annual Meeting

In a continuing effort to internationalize the annual meeting, the APSA secured travel funding for 51 international scholars to attend the 1996 Annual Meeting in Chicago. Twenty-four international graduate students, representing 16 countries, were selected to receive travel money. These international students,

Annual Meeting Perspectives

Participation by Women in the 1995 APSA Annual Meeting

Martin Gruberg, University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh

Participation by women in the 1995 annual meeting continues its positive trend.

Year	CHAIRPERSONS
	Total	Women	%
1971	154	12	7.8
1981	137	16	11.7
1991	439	107	24.4
1992	463	106	22.9
1993	452	115	25.4
1994	509	164	32.2
1995	480	134	27.9
	PAPERGIVERS
1971	552	43	7.8
1981	520	98	18.8
1991	1940	512	26.4
1992	1986	445	22.5
1993	2053	525	25.6
1994	2200	576	26.2
1995	2160	598	27.7
	DISCUSSANTS
1971	184	13	7.1
1981	161	28	17.4
1991	455	120	26.4
1992	568	118	20.8
1993	521	152	29.2
1994	594	157	26.4
1995	583	157	26.9

Where women head divisions or panels, there is a greater likelihood of other women being selected for program contributions. This year (and next) we have a male and a female co-chairing the Program Committee. In 1995 19 of the 49 division persons were women (38.8%). The divisions they headed had women as 30.7% (59 of 192) of the chairpersons, 34.2% (287 of 839) of the papergivers, and 31.0% (66 of 213) of the discussants.

The program divisions led by women had 44.0% of the meeting's female panel chairs, 48.0% of the papergivers, and 42.0% of its discussants. Women-chaired panels had 41.0% female papergivers and 42.5% female discussants. These constituted 40.8% of the women giving papers at the 1994 convention and 43.3% of the women serving as discussants.

The divisions with the strongest female representation were those on Normative Political Theory, Foundations of Political Theory, Public Policy, Women and Politics*, Race, Gender and Ethnicity*, Communist Politics and After*, and Political Psychology (* = headed by women).

The divisions with the weakest female representation in 1995 were those on Political Methodology, Elections and Electoral Behavior, Foreign Policy Analysis, Representation and Electoral Systems, Conflict Processes, Applied Political Science, Computers and Multimedia, New Political Science, Internships and Experiential Education, and Teaching and Learning in Political Science.

enrolled in American universities, were assisted through funds made available by the Huang Hsing Foundation (USA) and the APSA Council. Through the assistance of the United States Information Agency and the APSA Council, 27 senior scholars who had been invited to participate at the Annual Meeting were also awarded travel grants.

A list of international grantees, their countries, and their U.S. affiliations follows.

APSA Council Grantees

Yun Lin, P.R.C., University of New Orleans
Jongwoo Han, South Korea, Syracuse University
Rieko Mohara, Japan, Johns Hopkins University
Ramayanto Basoeki, Indonesia, The Claremont School
Jung-Ki Kim, South Korea, University of Houston
In-Sang Chong, South Korea, University of Missouri–Columbia
Volker Franke, Germany, Syracuse University
Ming Xia, P.R.C., Temple University
Duckjoon Chang, South Korea, SUNY–Buffalo
Svetlana V. Morozova, Russia, The Claremont School
Michael Clarke, Canada, Boston College
Samira Ali Atallah, Lebanon, Boston University
Indrya De Soysa, Sri Lanka, University of Alabama
Nicholas Ampomsah, Ghana, The Claremont School
Fran Lisa Buntman, South Africa, University of Texas at Austin
Rupen Cetinyan, Turkey, University of California–Los Angeles
Silvia Colazingari, Argentina, Yale University
Jacqueline Leigh Pfeffer, Canada, Duke University
Andrew Reynolds, Great Britain, University of California–San Diego
Janusz Puzniak, Poland, University of Missouri–Columbia
Michael J. Hiscox, Australia, Harvard University

Huang Hsing Foundation

Shing-Yuan Sheng, Taiwan, University of Michigan
Chien-chung Yin, Taiwan, University of California–Los Angeles
Bing Wu, University of Oklahoma

Senior Scholar Grants—APSA Council Grantees and USIA Grantees

Peter Hardi, Budapest University of Economic Sciences, Hungary
Detlef Sprinz, Potsdam Institute for Climate Impact Research, Germany
Paloma Aguilar, Instituto Juan March de Estudios e Investigaciones, Spain
Desmond King, St. Johns College, United Kingdom
Janneke van der Rus, College of Lillehammer, Norway
Patrick Dunleavy, London School of Economics
Bob Jessop, Lancaster University, United Kingdom
Philip Ludlow, Center for European Studies, Belgium
Gerry Stoker, University of Strathclyde, United Kingdom
Alan Harding, Liverpool John Moores University, United Kingdom
Pradeep Saxena, University of Rajasthan, India
Colin Hay, Lancaster University, United Kingdom
Jeffery Sellers, Humboldt-Universität Zu Berlin, Germany
Patricia Peterson, University of Toronto, Canada
Jan Škaloud, University of Economic, Czech Republic
Michael Minkenberg, University of Göttingen, Germany
Algis Kruoavicius, Lithuania
Vyacheslav Cherepanov, Kharkov State Polytechnic University
Krishna Hachhethu, Tribhuvan University, Nepal
Dani Nabudere, Uganda
Eduardo Barajas, Rosario University, Columbia
Rene Armand Dreifuss, Federal Fluminense University
Teh Fu Huang, National Cheng Chi University, Taiwan
Mikhail M. Nazarov, Russian Academy of Sciences

Georgi Mateev Karasimeonov, Sofia University, Bulgaria
Muhamed Masalha, University of Jordan
Michalis Spourdalakis, University of Athens, Greece

APSA Awards Advanced Graduate Student Travel Grants

For the second straight year the APSA issued 23 travel grants to advanced American graduate students presenting papers at the annual meeting. Funded through a variety of sources, including the APSA Council, T-shirt sales from the 1994 Annual Meeting, and a donation from the Kansas Political Science Association. Their names and affiliations follow:

Andrea K. Gerlack, University of Arizona
Sheri Leronda Wallace, Cornell University
Eric Schickler, Yale University
Andrew Grossman, New School/CSSC
Diane Heith, Brown University
Jason A. Scorza, Princeton University
Richard Groper, University of Southern California
Laura Parisi, University of Arizona
Gregory J. Wawro, Cornell University
David Redlawsk, Rutgers University
John Bohte, Texas A&M University
Michael Link, University of South Carolina
Lori Weber, University of Colorado–Boulder
Shannon Blanton, University of South Carolina
Marcia A. Marshall, Georgetown University
Robert E. Bohrer, Texas A&M University
Charles Menifield, University of Missouri–Columbia
Stephanie A. Lindquist, University of South Carolina
Bernadette Kilroy, University of California–Los Angeles
Valerie O'Regan, University of California–Riverside
David Powell, Miami University