To the Editor:

This is a footnote to the Fifth Anniversary Special Issue, on "Teaching about Politics and the Life Sciences"; and especially to the syllabi reproduced (e.g., William Kitchin's at 5:11-12; Robert Blank's, at 5:69-70; Lois Moreland's, at 5:80-81; and Hiram Caton's, at 5:115-116); and Fred Kort's generous description of my own experience in teaching biopolitics (5:18-19). Your readers may be interested to know that, in addition to the Kitchin syllabus cited above, two of my syllabi, "Introduction to Biopolitics" and "Biopolitical Theory," have been published in Allan Kornberg (ed.), Political Science Reading Lists and Course Outlines; Vol. II: Conduct of Inquiry, Durham, N. C.: Eno River Press, 1981, pp. 210-215.
