COMPUTER STUDIES in the Humanities and Verbal Behavior

Co-Editors: FLOYD R. HOROWITZ (University of Kansas)

LEWIS SAWIN (University of Colorado)

SALLY Y. SEDELOW (University of North Carolina)

The impetus for the organization of Computer Studies in the Humanities and Verbal Behavior has followed from a widely felt assumption by scholars and researchers that there ought to be an appropriate humanities outlet for expanding computer oriented research in the humanities and verbal areas.

Presently, the humanities researcher is faced with the impasse of either attempting to publish his program in mathematically oriented organs, or hoping to find an outlet in a humanities journal in his own field, which publication seldom has an editorial reader conversant with computer techniques, and which as often is simply not interested in computer oriented research.

Because the logic of analysis and the elements of programming for one area of the humanities so much coincides with those employed in another, centering as they often do upon a quantitative methodology applied to language data processing, it is realistic to include them all in one publication that is edited by a board comprised of experts in their respective areas. These areas represent ANTHROPOLOGY, ARCHAEOLOGY, ART and ARCHITECTURE, BIBLIOGRAPHY, CLASSICS, EDUCATION, FOLKLORE, HISTORY, LIBRARY SCIENCE, LINGUISTICS, LITERATURE and MODERN LANGUAGES, MASS COMMUNICATION, MATHEMATICS, MUSIC, PHILOSOPHY, POLITICAL SCIENCE, PROGRAMMING, PSYCHOLINGUISTICS, SOCIAL PSYCHOLOGY, SOCIOLOGY, SPEECH, STATISTICS, THEATER, and TRANSLATION.

Computer Studies in the Humanities and Verbal Behavior appears quarterly in issues of approximately 60 pages. Four issues constitute a volume.

Subscription price per Volume: f 36,— / 50 F / $ 10.00 / DM 40.—

Price per single issue: f 10,50 / 15 F / $ 3.00 / DM 11.50

POPULATION AND POLITICAL SYSTEMS IN TROPICAL AFRICA

ROBERT F. STEVENSON

This is a reply to the claims set forth in the classic African Political Systems of Fortes and Evans-Pritchard that, on the basis of African data, no relationship could be determined between population density and political organization in a given area. Historical materials here supplement the original synchronic approach to demonstrate a strong relationship between population density and political complexity in tropical Africa. $10.00

THE LATIN AMERICAN TRADITION

CHARLES WAGLEY

A collection of essays on the variety and unity in Latin American society. The author discusses the set of traditions, institutional values, and patterns of behavior which are shared by most Latin Americans, stressing the persistence of traditional ways of thought and behavior patterns and their tenacity in the face of the dynamic social and economic changes now underway in Latin America. By describing the regional and internal subcultures of Latin America (such as the tribal Indian, the peasant, the metropolitan middle class) as well as seeking the universal or common denominator in Latin American culture, the author presents a framework for further research on Latin America. $6.75

Essays in the Theory of Society

Ralf Dahrendorf

These ten essays by Europe's leading sociological theorist deal with important issues on the borderline between sociology and social philosophy, and demonstrate the author's deep insight into history and political analysis. He holds that the structures of power in which the political process takes place not only originate change and give it direction, but also produce the conflicts that create new solutions to human problems and cast doubt on them as soon as they have been created. $8.50

Basic Thinking in Regional Planning

by

F. B. GILLIE

(Publications of the Institute of Social Studies, Series Maior, 14)

1967. Cloth. 95 pages.

Dglds.15,-/US $4.30/21 F

This book is intended for readers without specialist training in planning who become concerned with regional planning in developing countries. It seeks to make clear the kind of thinking necessary in all regional planning, the proper role of research, some of the problems of securing and examining evidence, and the question of the time element. The treatment throughout is broad rather than technical. The aim is to elucidate principles, so that the reader will know how to derive maximum benefit from specialised techniques. Successive chapters then deal with problems of almost universal occurrence such as population growth, urbanisation, industrial changes, and the evolution of transport. Finally, the book discusses the form of the plan, action subsequent to its preparation and the need for follow-up plans to take further the process started by the first.

CONTENTS: The Nature of a Planner's Work (Preliminary Note on National Planning and its Relations to Regional Planning, Regional Planning – Its Nature, its Purposes and its Intellectual Demands, The Place of Research Work in Planning and the Nature of the Research Required, Problems of Evidence, Problems of Choice); Population and Communities (Some Fundamental Considerations – Importance of Population Growth and the Trend towards Urbanisation, The Relationships of Towns, Other Urban Problems); Economic Activities (Fundamental Problems, Agriculture, Industry, Commerce and Finance, The Economic Use of Water, Fuel and Power, Transport); Social Problems; The Time Element; The Final Product (The Importance of Presentation, The Kind of Presentation Required, Reactions to a Regional Planning Report, Subsequent Evolution and the Importance of Continuity).
