A Companion to Wittgenstein's 'Tractatus'

MAX BLACK

Wittgenstein's 'Tractatus Logico-Philosophicus' is a masterpiece of extreme compression, to which Professor Black has now provided a reliable guide. He gives a line-by-line commentary on the Tractatus, with introductory and expository essays, critical comment and paraphrases of obscure passages. 55s. net

An Exploratory Study of Perception of Causality

L. HOUSSIADAS

This monograph is a contribution towards an understanding of the psychological laws that determine how we experience causal relations between events. The author considers causality as a perceptual rather than a cognitive phenomenon. From a discussion of Professor Michotte's ideas and his own experimental work, he concludes that experiences of causality are directly related to external stimuli. 22s. 6d. net

A Short History of Medieval Philosophy

JULIUS R. WEINBERG

Tracing the extent to which medieval thought was influenced by Plato, Aristotle, and the Neoplatonists and the extent to which Greek thought had to be modified to be useful to the medievalist, the author examines the central doctrines of some of the most important Christian, Jewish and Muslim philosophers: Augustine, Aquinas, Saadia, Averroes and Avicenna among others. 48s net

The Political Theory of Possessive Individualism

Hobbes to Locke

C. B. MACPHERSON

In the two years since it was first published this book has come to be recognized as of fundamental importance.
‘Professor C. B. Macpherson . . . is an “original”. He presents us with a fundamental reinterpretation of political theory from Hobbes to Locke. . . .’ THE TIMES LITERARY SUPPLEMENT Paper covers 10s 6d net

Sense and Sensibilia

J. L. AUSTIN

These lectures, brilliantly reconstructed from the manuscript notes by G. J. Warnock, are the best introduction to the thought of the late J. L. Austin. In them he argued that traditional philosophical distortions of the facts of language have been due fundamentally to certain certain errors in the theory of knowledge. Paper covers 6s 6d net

FREDERICK VIVIAN

Human Freedom and Responsibility

The author claims that since we are all products of our heredity and environment our responsibility can never be ultimate. Punishment cannot be justified as retribution but only so far as it reforms or deters. 'Carefully thought out, beautifully written, remarkably clear.' SIR ISAIAH BERLIN
