

advances

in psychiatric treatment

From the Editor

- 81 Ways of seeing
Joe Bouch

Articles

- 82 Assessing and managing mild to moderate emotion dysregulation
Rajiv Raju, Frank M. Corrigan, Alan J. W. Davidson & David Johnson
- 94 Neuropsychiatric aspects of carbon monoxide poisoning: diagnosis and management
Roger Chun Man Ho, Wendy Cheng, Anna Nyap Cheng Chua & Anselm Mak
- 102 Understanding the science of synthesis
John Wallace
- 109 Personality disorder in adolescence
Gwen Adshead, Paul Brodrick, Jackie Preston & Mayura Deshpande
- 119 Anxiety: a hidden element in dementia
Vellingiri Raja Badrakalimuthu & Andrew F. Tarbuck
- 129 Domestic violence: its relevance to psychiatry
Louise M. Howard
- 137 Working with guilt and shame
Andrew Clark
- 144 Dementia in schizophrenia
Raghavakurup Radhakrishnan, Robert Butler & Laura Head
- 154 Couple relationship problems and sexual dysfunctions: therapeutic guidelines
Michael Crowe

In other words

- 136 Extract from *A Guard Within
Sarah Ferguson

Cover image

© iStockphoto/Ivan Ivanov. Guilt and shame are an essential part of being human, but their intense or chronic experience can be debilitating. Clark (pp. 137–143) considers the social, cultural and psychological origins of these affects, and their pathological manifestations and treatment.

<http://apt.rcpsych.org>

ISSN 1355-5146