

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

Anna Calori is Research Fellow at the Imre Kertesz Kolleg, University of Jena. Her research interests cover labour and social history, economic history and global history. Her work on the global business history of Yugoslav enterprises has appeared in Nationalities and Business History. Her current research focuses on economic multilateralism in the non-aligned movement from the 1970s to the present day. For her doctoral studies at the University of Exeter, she researched economic reforms and deindustrialisation in the former Yugoslavia. Outside academia, she has worked in the NGO-sector in the Western Balkans and at the International Labour Organisation in Geneva.

Philipp Casula obtained his PhD at the University of Basel defending a thesis on populism in contemporary Russia. His current research interests cover Russian foreign policy as well as the history of Soviet foreign policy, with special attention to the Middle East. He has recently published ‘The Soviet Afro-Asian Solidarity Committee and Soviet Perceptions of the Middle East’, in Cahiers du Monde Russe, 59, 4 (2018); ‘Between “Ethnocide” and “Genocide”’: Violence and Otherness in the Coverage of the Afghanistan and Chechnya Wars’, in Nationalities Papers, 43, 3 (2015); and ‘Russian Nationalism Shifting’, in Demokratizatsiya, 27, 3 (2019).

Constantin Katsakioris holds a PhD in history from the École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales in Paris (2015). He is Research Fellow of the German Orient Institute in Beirut and Visiting Professor of African History at the University of Bayreuth. He is currently completing his first monograph, entitled Soviet Lessons: The Education of Students from Africa and the Middle East in the Soviet Union during the Cold War. Parts of this research have appeared in the Journal of Global History, the Journal of Contemporary History, the Journal of Modern European History, the Cahiers d’Études Africaines and Kritika: Explorations in Russian and Eurasian History.

Sandrine Kott is Full Professor of Modern European History at the University of Geneva and Invited Professor at New York University. Her main fields of expertise are the history of labour and social welfare in nineteenth and twentieth century Europe (East and West). She has recently developed the transnational and global dimension of her research by taking advantage of the archives and resources of international organisations. Her most recent publications include Organiser le monde. Une autre histoire de la guerre froide (Le Seuil, 2021); Sozialstaat und Gesellschaft. Das deutsche Kaiserreich in Europa (Vandenhoeck und Ruprecht, Kritische Studien, 2014); Day to Day Communism: State Enterprises in East German Society (Michigan University Press, 2014); with Kiran Patel, Nazism Across Borders: The Social Policies of the Third Reich and their Global Appeal (Oxford University Press, 2018); and with Michel Christian and Ondrej Matejka, Planning in Cold War Europe: Competition, Cooperation, Circulation (1950s–1970s) (De Gruyter, 2018).

Adam Mestyan is Assistant Professor of History at the History Department of Duke University. He is currently working on his second monograph, Modern Arab Kingship. Recent publications include Arab Patriotism: The Ideology and Culture of Power in Late Ottoman Egypt (Princeton University Press, 2017) and Primordial History, Print Capitalism, and Egyptology in Nineteenth-Century Cairo (IFAO, 2021). A graduate of Central European University and a Junior Fellow at the Harvard Society of Fellows, he has been the recipient of various research grants and fellowships, most recently at the Institute of Advanced Studies in Paris, 2018–19.

Marta Musso is a historian working on energy history and digital humanities. She specialises in energy policies and state/company relations, as well as methodologies for research in a digital environment and digital archives. She is currently researching the development of the European oil industry and relations with producer countries, particularly in the background of the evolution of international markets after decolonisation. She is the editor of the Resources section of the Journal of Energy History / Revue d'Histoire de l'Énergie (JEH/RHE), as well as Research Manager for Archives Portal Europe. She is currently a researcher at the Royal Institute of Technology (KTH) and visiting fellow at the Grantham Research Institute.

Cyrus Schayegh (PhD, Columbia University, 2004) is Professor of International History and Politics at the Graduate Institute for International and Development Studies in Geneva, Switzerland; previously, he was Associate Professor at Princeton University and Assistant Professor at the American University of Beirut. He has authored Who Is Knowledgeable Is Strong: Science, Class, and the Formation of Modern Iranian Society, 1900–1950 (University of California Press, 2009) and The Middle East and the Making of the Modern World (Harvard University Press, 2017); has published articles in The American Historical Review, Comparative Studies in Society and History and The International Journal of Middle East Studies, among other journals; has co-edited A Global Middle East: Mobility, Materiality and Culture in the Modern Age, 1880–1940 (Tauris, 2014) and The Routledge History Handbook of the Middle East Mandates (Routledge, 2015); and has edited Globalizing the U.S. Presidency: Postcolonial Views of John F. Kennedy (Bloomsbury, 2020).

Ljubica Spaskovska is Lecturer in European History at the University of Exeter. She completed a PhD in History at the University of Exeter in 2014. Between 2014 and 2019 she was a post-doctoral research fellow on the Leverhulme-funded project '1989 after 1989: Rethinking the Fall of State Socialism in a Global Perspective' at Exeter, led by Professor James Mark. She is the author of The Last Yugoslav Generation: The Rethinking of Youth Politics and Cultures in Late Socialism (Manchester University Press, 2017) and 1989: A Global History of Eastern Europe (Cambridge University Press, 2019), with Bogdan Iacob, James Mark and Tobias Rupprecht.

Łukasz Stanek is Senior Lecturer (Associate Professor) at the Manchester Architecture Research Group, The University of Manchester. He has authored Henri Lefebvre on Space: Architecture, Urban Research, and the Production of Theory (University of Minnesota Press, 2011) and edited the first publication in any language of Lefebvre's book about architecture, Toward an Architecture of Enjoyment (University of Minnesota Press, 2014). In his recent research, Stanek has studied socialist internationalism as a framework of global urbanisation and its architecture. On this topic he has edited Team 10 East: Revisionist Architecture in Real Existing Modernism (University of Chicago Press, 2014). His book Architecture in Global Socialism: Eastern Europe, West Africa, and the Middle East in the Cold War, which focuses on the collaboration between architects, planners and construction companies from socialist countries and post-colonial countries, was published by Princeton University Press in 2020. Before Manchester, Stanek taught at the ETH Zurich and held visiting positions at Harvard University and the University of Michigan.

Alp Yenen is University Lecturer in Modern Turkish History and Culture at Leiden University. Previously, he was a research associate and senior resident at the University of Basel. He holds a PhD from the University of Basel and a MA degree from the University of Munich. He has published several articles and chapters on the aftermath of the First World War in the Middle East and is interested in the international history of contentious politics in the modern Middle East.

Rona Yona is editor of the journal Israel: Studies in Zionism and the State of Israel, published by Tel Aviv University. Her main research field is Jewish nationalism, transnationalism and mass politics, with a particular focus on the labour movement and its youth culture in Mandatory

Palestine and Poland. Her work on Polish pioneers was the first comprehensive analysis of Jewish transnational mass politics in the interwar years. Her book explores the rise of Labor Zionism to the leadership of the Zionist movement: Zionists Without Borders: Polish-Jewish Pioneers and the Rise of the Labor Movement in Palestine, 1923–1936 [in Hebrew] (2021). Yona has published articles in the Journal of Israeli History, Gal-Ed, Polin and elsewhere. She currently teaches at Tel Aviv University, New York University in Tel Aviv and Oranim Academic College.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contemporary European History covers the history of Eastern and Western Europe, including the United Kingdom, from 1918 to the present. By combining a wide geographical compass with a relatively short time span, the journal achieves both range and depth. It is open to all forms of historical enquiry – including cultural, economic, international, political and social approaches – and welcomes comparative and transnational analysis.

Submissions

Authors wishing to submit articles for publication should do so through the journal's online submissions system at <http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/conteurohistory>.

Articles should normally be about 8,000 words long, not including footnotes. Review articles should not exceed 6,000 words, including footnotes. The journal also considers special issue proposals. Please contact the editors for details.

The journal is published in English, and contributions are normally submitted in that language; however, we will also consider articles submitted in other major European languages. If accepted for publication, these will be translated. All articles, including those commissioned, will be refereed.

Submission of an article will be taken to imply that it is unpublished and is not being considered for publication elsewhere. On acceptance of an article, the author will be asked to assign copyright (on certain conditions) to Cambridge University Press. An article cannot be published unless a signed copyright form is returned promptly.

Contributors are responsible for obtaining permission to reproduce any material in which they do not hold copyright and for ensuring that the appropriate acknowledgements are included in their text.

Contributors must keep closely to the journal's stylistic conventions. The editors will return any contribution which does not follow the conventions for correction.

Before submitting, prospective authors should refer to the full set of Instruction for Contributors by following the link at <https://www.cambridge.org/ceh>
