Recent modules and podcasts

Podcast Lithium for bipolar disorder: the John Cade story

In this podcast, Dr Raj Persaud interviews Professor Greg de Moore about the life and work of Australian doctor John Cade, discussing his remarkable – but often overlooked – contribution to the history of mental health treatment in discovering that lithium could serve as an effective treatment for manic depression, now bipolar disorder. CPD credits: 0.5

Podcast Aphorisms and their place in psychiatry

Aphorisms – or philosophical short sayings – appear everywhere, from Confucius to Twitter, the Buddha to the Bible, Heraclitus to Nietzsche. Yet despite this ubiquity, the aphorism is the least studied literary form. In this podcast Professor Andrew Hui talks to Dr Raj Persaud about his work on aphorisms and explores how their use could be applied in a meaningful and helpful way when working with patients. CPD credits: 0.5

Module Frontotemporal dementia

Frontotemporal dementia (FTD) is a degenerative neurological condition that is characterised by relatively selective, progressive atrophy of the frontal and/or temporal lobes of the brain. This module will cover the clinical and pathological aspects of FTD, as well as its symptoms and progression. We will also look at diagnosis and treatment of symptoms, in addition to the clinical management of FTD. CPD credits: 1.5

Podcast Timefulness: could geology help to shape our minds?

In this compelling podcast, Dr Raj Persaud talks to Professor Marcia Bjornerud about the concept of timefulness, arguing that opening our minds to geology could benefit us all psychologically and give us the perspective we need for a more sustainable future. CPD credits: 0.5
