Caryll Houselander

MAISIE WARD

12/6 net

Caryll Houselander was described by one great man as "that divine eccentric". Others thought her merely eccentric. In this life her goodness and her oddity are shown as facets of a deeply human and loving woman.

Parent and Child

LEO TRESE

8/6 net

Father Trese writes about the common problems of the relationship between parents and their children in straightforward and uncomplicated language. He discusses, at length, the perennial problem of maintaining a right balance between discipline and understanding.

Posthumous Cracks in the Cloisters

BROTHER CHOLERIC

The cloisters portrayed by the late Brother Choleric were cracked indeed. As a memorial to that great and good man we are publishing a final selection of his cartoons.

Grace

ROBERT GLEASON, S.J.

10/6 net

Christians often talk about Grace, without having the least idea of what it means. Father Gleason has written what might be called "a plain man's guide" to this fundamental Christian concept.

Christianity Divided

BARTH, KÜNG, SCHILLEBEECKX & OTHERS

12/6 net

For the first time essays by really great living writers of both the Protestant and Catholic traditions have been brought together in this book to discuss the central questions which divide us. This book does not seek for facile agreement but is out to make intelligent and charitable conversation possible.

The Study of Theology

CHARLES DAVIS

30/- net

This book is a detailed study of our comprehensive experience of Christ and His Church. In some form or another theology must be as much a part of every Christian's life as going to Church and loving his neighbour. The author shows how this study works as a part of our common life.

Take one at Bedtime

MGR. DEREK WORLOCK

18/- net

For most people bedtime reading is simply a soporific. We mean to read intelligently but have not the energy. Anthologies have the advantage that one is intended to read them bit by bit. This anthology is for the Christian who feels obscurely that he would like to read something more than a detective story before going to sleep.

A Hoax Called Jones

NIALL BRENNAN

12/6 net

This book introduces us to a different Australia, not just that of the popular imagination, the rolling outback, burly men, and hard-working mums, but a world of beatniks and academic fringes which seems to flourish as well in that country as it does in England.
